TTR_{US} = the sum of TTR_{State} for all States and D.C.;

(For New FMAP of D.C., personal income is substituted for TTR in both definitions of terms above):

$SAEN_{State}$ = State aggregate expenditure need that, as defined earlier, is the product of four terms: poverty count, caseload cost index, input cost index, and U.S. average expenditure per person in poverty;

$SAEN_{US}$ = the sum of $SAEN_{State}$ for all States.

The New FMAP formula amount is also subject to constraints that limit its range, and prevent decreases and limit increases when compared to the Old FMAP. The New FMAP cannot be less than 40 percent, nor more than 83 percent; and the New FMAP cannot be less than Old FMAP, nor exceed Old FMAP plus 10 percentage points.

APPENDIX A TO TITLE II

RESTRUCTURING MEDICAID

Preamble

For most of the last decade, health care expenditures in the United States have far exceeded overall growth in the U.S. economy. And while medical inflation is declining, public and privately funded health care costs continue to limit the long term economic growth of the Nation. For States, the primary impact of health care costs on State budgets has been in the Medicaid program. Annual Medicaid growth over the last decade has been well in excess of 10 percent, and in half of those years annual growth approached 20 percent. Determining the causes of such unbridled growth is difficult. However, major contributing factors include: congressional expansions in the program, court decisions limiting the States in their ability to control costs, policy decisions by States maximizing Federal financing of previously State-funded health care programs, and changing demographics.

Restricting the growth of Medicaid is no easy task. Medicaid is the primary source of health care for low income pregnant women and children, persons with disabilities, and the elderly. This year, States and the Federal Government combined will spend more than $140 billion in this program providing care to more than 28 million people. The challenge for the Nation, and Governors as the stewards of this program, is to redesign Medicaid so that health care costs are more effectively contained and those that truly need health care coverage continue to gain access to that care while giving States the needed flexibility to maximize the use of these limited health care dollars to most effectively meet the needs of low income individuals.

The New Program

Within the balanced budget debate, a number of alternatives to the existing Medicaid program have been proposed. The following outlines the Nation's Governors proposal that blends the best aspects of the current program with congressional and administration alternatives toward achieving a streamlined and State-flexible health care system that guarantees health care to our most needy citizens.

Program goals

The program is guided by four primary goals:

1. The basic health care needs of the Nation's most vulnerable populations must be guaranteed.

2. The growth in health care expenditures must be brought under control.

3. States must have maximum flexibility in the design and implementation of cost-effective systems of care.

4. States must be protected from unanticipated program costs resulting from economic fluctuations in the business cycle, changing demographics, and natural disasters.

Eligibility

Coverage remains guaranteed for:

Pregnant women to 133 percent of poverty.

Children to age 6 to 133 percent of poverty.

Children age 6 through 12 to 100 percent of poverty.

The elderly who meet SSI income and resource standards.

Persons with disabilities as defined by the State in their State plan. States will have a funds set-aside requirement equal to 90 percent of the percentage of total medical assistance funds paid in fiscal year 1995 for persons with disabilities.

Medicare cost sharing for Qualified Medicare Beneficiaries.

Either:

Individuals or families who meet current AFDC income and resource standards (States with income standards higher than the national average may lower those standards to the national average); or States can run a single eligibility system for individuals who are eligible for a new welfare program as defined by the State.

Consistent with the statute, adequacy of the State plan will be determined by the Secretary of HHS. The Secretary should have a time certain to act.

Coverage remains optional for:

All other optional groups in the current Medicaid program.

Other individuals or families as defined by the State but below 275 percent of poverty.

BENEFITS

The following benefits remain guaranteed for the guaranteed populations only: Inpatient and outpatient hospital services, physician services, prenatal care, nursing facility services, home health care, family planning services and supplies, laboratory and x-ray services, pediatric and family nurse practitioner services, nurse midwife services, and Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis and Treatment Services. (The "T" in EPSDT is redefined so that a State need not cover all Medicaid optional services for children.)

At a minimum, all other benefits defined as optional under the current Medicaid program would remain optional and long term care options significantly broadened.

States have complete flexibility in defining amount, duration, and scope of services.

PRIVATE RIGHT OF ACTION

The following are the only rights of action for individuals or classes for eligibility. All of these features will be designed to prevent States from having to defend against an individual's suit on benefits in Federal court.

Before taking action in the State courts, the individual must follow a State administrative appeals process.

States must offer individuals or classes a private right of action in the State courts as a condition of participation in the program.

Following action in the State courts, an individual or class could petition the U.S. Supreme Court.

Independent of any State judicial remedy, the Secretary of HHS could bring action in the Federal courts on behalf of individuals or classes but not for providers or health plans.

There should be no private right of action for providers or health plans.

SERVICE DELIVERY

States must be able to use all available health care delivery systems for these populations without any special permission from the Federal Government.

States must not have federally imposed limits on the number of beneficiaries who may be enrolled in any network.

PROVIDER STANDARDS AND REIMBURSEMENTS

States must have complete authority to set all health plan and provider reimbursement rates without interference from the Federal Government or threat of legal action of the provider or plan.

The Boren amendment and other Boren-like statutory provisions must be repealed.

“One hundred percent reasonable cost reimbursement” must be phased out over a 2-year period for federally qualified health centers and rural health clinics.

States must be able to set their own health plan and provider qualifications standards and be unburdened from any Federal minimum qualification standards such as those currently set for obstetricians and pediatricians.

For the purpose of the Qualified Medicare Beneficiaries program, the States may pay the Medicaid rate in lieu of the Medicare rate.

NURSING HOME REFORMS

States will abide by the OBRA '87 standards for nursing homes.

States will have the flexibility to determine enforcement strategies for nursing home standards and will include them in their State plan.

PLAN ADMINISTRATION

States must be unburdened from the heavy hand of oversight by the Health Care Financing Administration.

The plan and plan amendment process must be streamlined to remove HCFA micromanagement of State programs.

Oversight of State activities by the Secretary must be streamlined to assure that Federal intervention occurs only when a State fails to comply substantially with Federal statutes or use own plan.

HCFA can only impose disallowances that are commensurate with the size of the violation.

This program should be written under a new title of the Social Security Act.

PROVIDER TAXES AND DONATIONS

Current provider tax and donation restrictions in Federal statutes would be repealed.

Current and pending State disputes with HHS over provider taxes would be discontinued.

Financing

Each State will have a maximum Federal allocation that provides the State with the financial capacity to cover Medicaid enrollees. The allocation is available only if the State puts up a matching percentage (methodology to be defined). The allocation is the sum of four factors: base allocation, growth, special grants (special grants have no State matching requirement) and an insurance umbrella, described as follows:

1. Base. In determining base expenditures, a State may choose from the following—1993 expenditures, 1994 expenditures, or 1995 expenditures. Some States may require special provisions to correct for anomalies in their base year expenditures.

2. Growth. This is a formula that accounts for estimated changes in the State's caseload (both overall growth and case mix) and an inflation factor. The details of this formula are to be determined. This formula is calculated each year for the following year based on the best available data.

3. Special Grants. Special grant funds will be made available for certain States to cover illegal aliens and for certain States to assist Indian Health Service and related facilities in the provision of health care to Native Americans. States will have no matching requirement to gain access to these Federal funds.

4. The Insurance Umbrella. This insurance umbrella is designed to ensure that States will get access to additional funds for certain populations if, because of unanticipated consequences, the growth factor fails to accurately estimate the growth in the population. Funds are guaranteed on a per-beneficiary basis for those described below who were not included in the estimates of the base and the growth. These funds are an entitlement to States and not subject to annual appropriations.

Populations and Benefits: Access to the insurance umbrella is available to cover the cost of care for both guaranteed and optional benefits. The umbrella covers all guaranteed populations and the optional portion of two groups—persons with disabilities and the elderly.

Access to the Insurance Umbrella: The insurance umbrella is available to a State only after the following conditions are met.

1. States must have used up other available base and growth funds that had not been used because the estimated population in the growth and base was greater than the actual population served.

2. Appropriate provisions will be established to ensure that States do not have access to the umbrella funds unless there is a demonstrable need.

5. Matching Percentage. With the exception of the special grants, States must share in the cost of the program. A State's matching contribution in the program will not exceed 40 percent.

6. Disproportionate Share Hospital Program. Current disproportionate share hospital spending will be included in the base. DSH funds must be spent on health care for low income people. A State will not receive growth on DSH if these funds constitute more than 12 percent of total program expenditures.

Provision for Territories: The National Governors' Association strongly encourages Congress to work with the Governors of Puerto Rico, Guam, and other territories towards allocating equitable Federal funding for their medical assistance programs.

APPENDIX C TO TITLE II

CONGRESSIONAL RESEARCH SERVICE,
LIBRARY OF CONGRESS,
Washington, DC, June 11, 1996.

To: Honorable Thomas Bliley, Jr. Attention: Howard Cohen.
From: Jennifer O'Sullivan, Specialist in Social Legislation, Education and Public Welfare Division.
Subject: Qualified Medicare Beneficiary Program.

The following information is in response to your inquiry concerning current and proposed payment policies under the Qualified Medicare Beneficiary (QMB) program.

Current law

The Medicare program offers protection for aged and certain disabled persons against the costs associated with acute health care services. Medicare beneficiaries are required to pay a portion of the cost of these services themselves in the form of cost-sharing charges. Such charges could pose a potential hardship for some persons, especially those who do not have supplementary protection either through an individually purchased "Medigap" policy or employer-based coverage. In response to this concern, legislation was enacted in 1988 establishing the QMB program. Under this program, certain low-income Medicare beneficiaries are entitled to have their Medicare cost-sharing charges paid by the federal-State Medicaid program.¹

Persons meeting the QMB qualifications for coverage, but not otherwise eligible for Medicaid, are not entitled to the regular Medicaid benefit package. Instead, they are entitled to have Medicaid make specified payments in their behalf.

Definition. State Medicaid programs are required to make Medicare cost-sharing assistance available to QMB. A QMB is an aged or disabled Medicare beneficiary who has: (1) income at or below the Federal poverty line; and (2) resources below 200 percent of the limit set for the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program (the cash assistance program for low income aged and disabled persons). Medicaid is required to pay Medicare premiums and cost-sharing charges for these persons. Medicaid coverage is limited to payment of these charges unless the beneficiary is otherwise eligible for Medicaid.

¹More limited Medicaid coverage is offered for two other population groups: (1) persons who meet the QMB criteria except that their income is slightly in excess of the poverty line (the Specified Low-Income Medicare Beneficiary (SLMB) population); and (2) qualified disabled and working individuals (QDWIs). Medicaid protection for the SLMB population not otherwise eligible for Medicaid is limited to payment of the monthly Part B premium. Medicaid protection for the QDWI population is limited to payment of the Part A premium.

Persons meeting the QMB definition must be entitled to Medicare Part A Hospital Insurance coverage. Included is the relatively small group of aged persons who are not automatically entitled to Part A coverage, but who have bought Part A protection by paying a monthly premium. Not included are working disabled persons who have exhausted Medicare Part A entitlement but who have extended their coverage by payment of a monthly premium.

To be eligible as a QMB, an individual must have income at or below 100 percent of the Federal poverty line for a family of the same size.² In 1996, the Federal poverty level is $7,740 for a single and $10,360 for a couple.³

A QMB must also meet specified resources standards, namely resources cannot exceed 200 percent of that allowed under SSI. For the QMB program, the limits are $4,000 for an individual and $6,000 for a couple. Certain items such as an individual's home and household goods are always excluded from the calculation.

QMB Benefits. Medicaid law requires States to pay Medicare premiums and cost-sharing charges for QMBs, as follows:

Medicare Part B monthly premiums ($42.50 in 1996). Medicare Part B pays for physicians' services and other medical services. Almost all persons entitled to Medicare Part A are also enrolled in Medicare Part B.

Medicare Part A monthly premium paid by the limited number of aged not automatically entitled to Part A protection. The premium is $289 in 1996.⁴

Coinsurance and deductibles under Medicare Part A and Part B. This includes the Medicare hospital deductible ($736 in 1996), the Part B deductible ($100) and the Part B coinsurance (20 percent of Medicare's approved payment.)

Coinsurance and deductibles that health maintenance organizations (HMOs) and competitive medical plans (CMPs) charge their enrollees. These are in lieu of the Medicare coinsurance and deductibles which would be paid if the individuals were not enrollees of these plans. States, at their option may also pay the HMO and CMP enrollment premiums.

A person entitled to regular Medicaid benefits as well as QMB assistance is entitled to Medicaid payment for Medicare premiums and cost-sharing charges as well as to the full range of Medicaid services otherwise available to them.

Payment of QMB Benefits. Medicaid law requires States to pay Part A and Part B premiums in full for the QMB population. They are also required to pay the requisite deductibles and coinsurance, though the actual amount of required payment has been the subject of some controversy.

State Medicaid programs frequently have lower payment rates for services than those applicable under Medicare. Federal program ²The determination of income is made in the same manner as is made for SSI. Individuals with income above the threshold are not permitted to spenddown to meet the eligibility criteria.

³The Federal poverty level is published annually (usually in mid-February) in the Federal Register. By law, cost-of-living increases (COLAs) in social security benefits are disregarded in determining QMB eligibility through the month following the month in which the annual update is published. Thus, in most years COLAs are disregarded through March. For QMBs without social security income, the poverty levels are effective as of the date of publication.

⁴Part A coverage is available at a reduced premium to persons who do not have coverage as social security or railroad retirement beneficiaries but who have at least 30 quarters of social security or railroad retirement coverage. The premium for these persons is $188 in 1996.

guidelines implementing the QMB provision permit States to either (1) pay the full Medicare deductible and coinsurance amounts; or (2) only pay those amounts to the extent that the Medicare provider or supplier has not received the full Medicaid rate for the service. For example, assume Medicare's recognized payment amount for a service is $100 and Medicaid's recognized amount is $75. Medicare actually pays $80 (assuming the beneficiary has met the deductible) leaving $20 in coinsurance charges. Under the guidelines, Medicaid could pay nothing (since the provider had received more than the full Medicaid rate) or any amount up to $20 (the full Medicare coinsurance amount).

If the Medicare service is not covered under the State Medicaid program, the State may either pay the full Medicare deductible and coinsurance amounts or alternatively provide for reasonable payments (subject to approval by DHHS).

The Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) surveyed the States in March 1995, and reported that 29 States were using payment rates below those applicable under Medicare.⁵ However, in July 1995, HCFA informed us that the United States Court of Appeals for four judicial circuits had issued decisions which required States in their jurisdictions to pay the full Medicare cost-sharing expenses for QMBs.⁶ As a result, 8 of the 29 States were required to change their policies.⁷

According to a telephone conversation with a HCFA official in June 1996, the March 1995 survey is not expected to be updated because HCFA's central office no longer maintains detailed information on State plans. However, the official stated that there have been no subsequent court decisions affecting any additional circuits.

Proposed legislation—H.R. 3507

The Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act of 1996 (H.R. 3507) includes QMB provisions in the Medicaid Restructuring division. Section 1501(b), "Guaranteed coverage of Medicare premiums and cost-sharing for certain Medicare beneficiaries" mandates States to provide coverage for Medicare cost-sharing assistance to the QMB population.⁸ The bill contains language comparable to current law language defining the eligible QMB population and required Medicare cost-sharing.

H.R. 3507 also defines State obligations for cost-sharing assistance for Medicare's coinsurance and deductibles. It specifically defines State liability both in cases where Medicaid payments exceed Medicare payments (which rarely occurs) and where Medicaid payments are less than Medicare payments. The bill provides that nothing in the requirement could be construed as preventing a State from limiting its assistance to the amount (if any) by which the payment amount for the service under its Medicaid plan for non-Medicare beneficiaries exceeded the Medicare payment amount. Further, if Medicare's payment amount exceeded the State's general Medicaid payment amount, the State would have no further obligation. This language is similar to current HCFA policy, though as noted above, State implementation of HCFA policy has been effectively barred in certain judicial circuits.

APPENDIX D TO TITLE II

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, April 19, 1996.

Hon. WILLIAM J. CLINTON,
President, The White House,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: We write concerning the ongoing efforts to reform Medicaid and our concern over the Federal medical assistance percentage (FMAP).

As you know, FMAP refers to the Federal share of each State's payments for Medicaid items and services. The FMAP is set annually according to a statutory formula designed to pay a higher percentage to a State with low per capita income relative to the national average for per capita income. No State may have a FMAP lower than 50 percent or higher than 83 percent.

New York has long received only the minimum FMAP which we believe does not adequately account for the actual burden which New York bears in caring for its less fortunate citizens. For example, the current FMAP formula takes into account only per capita income which can be skewed by a few extremely high or low incomes and does not adequately measure a State's fiscal capacity.

In addition, the current formula does not take into account a State's needs. The FMAP formula is based mostly on measures of a State's ability to pay, with less wealthy States currently receiving a greater Federal share. However, ability to pay does not adequately reflect a State's needs. While wealthier States may have more income, they may also have more poverty and/or health care needs. Unfortunately, poverty is also often an accurate indicator of disease because there are a number of diseases stemming from poor nutrition, or unsafe living conditions.

Lastly, the current formula ignores the relative cost of providing health care services by assuming that a dollar buys the same amount of health care in New York as in a poorer State. The FMAP only tangentially measures health needs through the inclusion of transfer payments (e.g. Medicare, Medicaid, and income maintenance); the formula presumes that States with higher needs would have larger transfer payments, but under the current formula they would also have higher per capita income payments and elevated State shares.

We believe that the minimum FMAP should be raised from 50 percent to 60 percent of Medicaid program costs. This change would benefit 24 States including New York.

Reducing New York's required contribution would substantially diminish or eliminate the gross disparity imposed on New York taxpayers compared to the taxpayers of almost 40 other States.

Each year New York sends far more tax dollars to Washington, DC than we receive back in grants or services. There is no reason why New York taxpayers should be forced to spend disproportionately more than most other States in order to qualify for Federal Medicaid assistance. Indeed, some States receive as much as 4 Federal dollars for every State dollar expenditure. Reforming the FMAP formula would correct this inequity.

Thank you in advance for your consideration in this matter.

Sincerely,

NITA LOWEY.

APPENDIX E TO TITLE II

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, June 10, 1996.

Hon. THOMAS J. BLILEY, Jr.,
*Chairman, Committee on Commerce,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC*

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: At your request, CBO has examined the President's proposal for a per capita cap on Federal Medicaid spending to determine whether the proposal contains an intergovernmental mandate. After a preliminary review, CBO has determined that the proposal does not contain a mandate as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 (Public Law 104-4).

The main purpose of this proposal is to cap the Federal Government's financial responsibility. However, this limit would not constitute a mandate because States would have the flexibility to offset the loss of Federal funds by reducing their own financial or programmatic responsibilities.

Public Law 104-4 defines a Federal intergovernmental mandate, in part, as: "any provision in legislation, statute, or regulation that relates to a then-existing Federal program under which $500,000,000 or more is provided annually to State, local, and tribal governments under entitlement authority, if the provision—

"(i)(I) would increase the stringency of conditions of assistance to State, local, or tribal governments under the program; or

"(II) would place caps upon, or otherwise decrease, the Federal Government's responsibility to provide funding to State, local, or tribal governments under the program; and

"(ii) the State, local, or tribal governments that participate in the Federal program lack authority under that program to amend their financial or programmatic responsibilities to continue providing required services that are affected by the legislation, statute, or regulation."

If a cap on Federal Medicaid spending was so restrictive that Federal spending was insufficient to cover the Federal Government's matching share of mandatory Medicaid spending, then the cap would create a mandate. In the case of the per capita cap in the President's proposal, however, CBO believes that this situation would not arise in the first 5 years after enactment, because States would have significant flexibility to offset reductions in Federal funding with reductions in optional services and beneficiaries. (Public Law 104-4 requires CBO to evaluate proposals for mandates for the first 5 years that they would be in effect.) Courses of action available to States include eliminating or reducing some optional services, such as prescription drugs or dental services, and not serving some optional beneficiaries, such as the medically needy or pregnant women and children whose family income is between 133 percent and 185 percent of poverty. These options provide substantial flexibility to States. A frequently cited figure is that 60 percent of Medicaid spending is optional. Even though this flexibility varies dramatically between States, all States have significant flexibility.

In addition to the flexibility provided in current law, the President's proposal would grant States additional flexibility. For example, it would repeal the Boren Amendment and allow States to adopt managed care without a Federal waiver.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The staff contact is John Patterson.

Sincerely,

JUNE E. O'NEILL, Director.

APPENDIX F TO TITLE II

GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE,
Washington, DC, June 10, 1996.

Hon. THOMAS J. BLILEY, Jr.,
Chairman, Committee on Commerce,
House of Representatives.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Medicaid is the largest Federal program providing financial assistance to State governments. States received over $80 billion in fiscal year 1995, and the Congressional Budget Office estimates that they will receive $898.4 billion in Federal funds between fiscal year 1996 and fiscal year 2002. The Congress is now considering alternatives that would slow the growth in Federal Medicaid spending by giving States more flexibility in the administration of the program and by changing the mechanism for allocating Federal assistance among States.

This letter responds to your request for an explanation of the relationship between Federal funding and State funding needs under the current open-ended entitlement program and how it would change under H.R. 3507, being considered by your committee. Under the open-ended entitlement the level of assistance provided to the poor varies from State to State depending on how many people are made eligible under State law and how extensive are the services the State provides. In contrast, under H.R. 3507 the distribution of Federal assistance to States would be much less related to State spending patterns and become more closely related to measures of State funding needs, such as the number of poor, elderly, and disabled.

Federal funding not based on State funding needs

The amount of Federal aid that a State receives under Medicaid is not closely linked to measures of its potential funding needs. In many instances, States with larger numbers of poor and disabled individuals receive less Federal assistance than States with both larger numbers of those in need and weaker tax bases. New York, for example, has fewer poor people than California yet it received $12.5 billion in Federal assistance in fiscal year 1995 while California, with more people in need, received less than $9.2 billion that year. When expressed in terms of funding per person in poverty, New York received 60 percent more than California; more than $4,350 per person compared with less than $1,725 per person in California.

Because the Federal Government matches whatever States spend on eligible services, States with the most generous eligibility requirements, that offer more extensive services, and that provide higher provider reimbursement rates receive more Federal funding. Consequently, States with greater numbers of needy individuals can receive less Federal aid because of their more restrictive eligibility rules and because they provide fewer services.

Most Federal programs provide funding based on State needs

The current linkage between State needs and the amount of Federal assistance a State receives under Medicaid does not reflect how most Federal grant programs are designed. Aside from the major entitlement programs (Medicaid, Aid to Families With Dependent Children, and Foster Care), most other Federal grant programs distribute Federal assistance on the basis of need measures (for example, high risk population groups such as the poor, children, or the elderly) rather than on the basis of State spending patterns.

A recent example of needs-based targeting is the Ryan White Comprehensive AIDS Resources Emergency (CARE) Act reauthorized by Congress earlier this year. The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee and your committee revised the formula used to distribute CARE Act funds to States and metropolitan areas to improve the needs-based targeting of that program. The new system would strengthen the relationship between Federal funding and people in need by more closely linking the amount of Federal aid a State or metropolitan area receives with the number of people with acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS).

Other examples of need-based targeting include the Chapter 1 program for the Educationally Disadvantaged and the Maternal and Child Health program, which target Federal funding based on the number of children in poverty. Similarly, the Airport Improvement program provides funding based on the number of passengers using an airport and the Older Americans Act allocates Federal funding based on the number of elderly. Based on work currently underway, it appears that over 90 percent of Federal formula grant programs target funding based on measures of State need.

The Medicaid restructuring plan would gradually shift Federal funding to a needs-based system

A restructured Medicaid program under provisions in H.R. 3507 would gradually realign Federal funding over a number of years so that it will be more closely related to State needs rather than State spending patterns. This would be accomplished by linking Federal allocations to the number of people in poverty and giving greater weight to the number of elderly and disabled for whom care is more expensive. Additional adjustments would be made to account for cross-state differences in the cost of health care, and low-income States' matching rates would continue to be higher.

Shifting to a needs-based funding system will be accomplished by allowing funding for States like California, whose Federal funding is low in relation to the number of people in need, to grow at above average rates. Conversely, funding for States like New York would grow at slower rates until funding for all States is brought into line with State needs.

APPENDIX G TO TITLE II

NATIONAL GOVERNORS ASSOCIATION,
Washington, DC.

C-27. SHORT-TERM MEDICAID POLICY

27.1 PREFACE

The Nation's Governors recognize that rapidly escalating health care costs in the face of the increasing need for health care access is the essence of the health care costs that confronts our Nation. The Governors are aware of the varied and complex factors that must be dealt with if we are to achieve a solution to this crises.

Currently, 31 States are struggling with budget shortfalls. A significant part of the fiscal pressure on States is coming from increased costs in the Medicaid program. In 1980, Medicaid spending accounted for 9 percent of States budgets; in 1990, it accounted for nearly 14 percent of all State spending.

The increased costs of Medicaid not only represent the generally inflated cost of health care experienced by all purchasers, but are exacerbated by 4 years of Medicaid mandates.

States must have some immediate relief from the real and pressing problems presented by the Medicaid program if they are to move forward on long-term solutions. Therefore, the Governors call on Congress and the administration to work with us to immediately make the following changes to the Medicaid program.

Congress should delay the mandated implementation of the 1990 Medicaid mandates for 2 years. This will give Federal and State governments time to assess the depth of the recession and the opportunity to develop long-term solutions for the restructuring of the Medicaid program. Accountability based upon results is a better test of State performance than strict compliance with mandated procedures. In return for flexibility, the Governors seek to work with the administration and Congress to develop State-specific mutually acceptable agreements to measure accountability.

States must not be expected to implement any Medicaid program changes until the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) has published final regulations to guide program administration.

States must be allowed to maintain their complete authority to raise funds to match Federal Medicaid dollars without restriction from the Federal Government.

To promote cost control and efficiency, States should be encouraged to continue innovations in provider payment methods. Though Medicare and most private payers have moved away from cost based reimbursement, Federal legislation has mandated that certain Medicaid providers be paid on the basis of costs. In operating out Medicaid programs, States should not be denied costs control options available to the Federal Government in operating the Medicare program.

In addition, with respect to three particularly troublesome mandates over the last 4 years, the Governors call upon Congress and the administration to make the following specific program-matic changes.

27.2 QUALIFIED MEDICARE BENEFICIARIES (OMB'S)

Congress should assume full financial responsibility for all low-income Medicare beneficiaries who are not otherwise Medicaid-eligible. Since the passage of the Medicare Catastrophic legislation in 1988, the Federal Government has increasingly passed on to the States the responsibility to protect low-income Medicare beneficiaries.

27.3 NURSING HOME REFORM

States should be considered in compliance with the law if a comparable quality assurance program is in place or developed. In the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1987, Congress mandated extensive new quality assurance measures for the Medicaid nursing home program. The statutory language permits limited State flexibility and puts Congress in the position of micro-managing the program.

27.4 EARLY PERIODIC SCREENING, DIAGNOSIS, AND TREATMENT (EPSDT)

In "technical" amendments to the EPSDT program legislated in 1989, Congress added major costs to this program. Therefore, the Governors propose two technical amendments to the 1989 law to:

With regard to screening services, clarify that States have the authority to specify qualified screening providers and that States are permitted to insist that such a provider can be required to provide all screening services.

Give States the authority to provide only those services identified in a screen that are currently in a State's Medicaid program.

While these changes clearly will not resolve the Nation's long-term struggle to restructure the Medicaid program, they will provide immediate and sensible relief in dire economic times. These changes also would mark the beginning of a new and real partnership between the Federal Government and State governments over the design and implementation of the Medicaid program.

“PART F—MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS

“(a) PARTICIPATION RATE REQUIREMENTS.—

“(1) ALL FAMILIES.—A State that is operating a program under part A for a fiscal year shall achieve the minimum participation rate specified in the following table for the fiscal year with respect to all families receiving assistance under the State program operated under part A:

1996	20
1997	25
1998	30
1999	35
2000	40
2001	45
2002 or thereafter	50.

“(2) 2-PARENT FAMILIES.—A State that is operating a program under part A for a fiscal year shall achieve the minimum participation rate specified in the following table for the fiscal year with respect to 2-parent families receiving assistance under the State program operated under part A:

“If the fiscal year is:	The minimum participation rate is:
1996	50
1997	75
1998	75
1999 or thereafter	90.

“(b) CALCULATION OF PARTICIPATION RATES.—

“(1) ALL FAMILIES.—

“(A) AVERAGE MONTHLY RATE.—For purposes of subsection (a)(1), the participation rate for all families of a State for a fiscal year is the average of the participation rates for all families of the State for each month in the fiscal year.

“(B) MONTHLY PARTICIPATION RATES.—The participation rate of a State for all families of the State for a month, expressed as a percentage, is—

“(i) the number of families receiving assistance under the State program operated under part A that include an adult who is engaged in work for the month; divided by

“(ii) the amount by which—

“(I) the number of families receiving such assistance during the month that include an adult receiving such assistance; exceeds “(II) the number of families receiving such assistance that are subject in such month to a penalty described in subsection (e)(1) but have not been subject to such penalty for more than 3 months within the preceding 12-month period (whether or not consecutive).

“(2) 2-PARENT FAMILIES.—

“(A) AVERAGE MONTHLY RATE.—For purposes of subsection (a)(2), the participation rate for 2-parent families of a State for a fiscal year is the average of the participation rates for 2-parent families of the State for each month in the fiscal year.

“(B) MONTHLY PARTICIPATION RATES.—The participation rate of a State for 2-parent families of the State for a month shall be calculated by use of the formula set forth in paragraph (1)(B), except that in the formula the term ‘number of 2-parent families’ shall be substituted for the term ‘number of families’ each place such latter term appears.

“(3) PRO RATA REDUCTION OF PARTICIPATION RATE DUE TO CASELOAD REDUCTIONS NOT REQUIRED BY FEDERAL LAW.—The Secretary shall prescribe regulations for reducing the minimum participation rate otherwise required by this section for a fiscal year by the number of percentage points equal to the number of percentage points (if any) by which—

“(A) the number of families receiving assistance during the fiscal year under the State plan approved under part A is less than

“(B) the number of families that received aid under the State plan approved under part A during fiscal year 1995.

The minimum participation rate shall not be reduced to the extent that the Secretary determines that the reduction in the number of families receiving such assistance is required by Federal law.

“(4) STATE OPTION FOR PARTICIPATION REQUIREMENT EXEMPTIONS.—For any fiscal year, a State may, at its option, not require an individual who is a single custodial parent caring for a child who has not attained 12 months of age to engage in work and may disregard such an individual in determining the participation rates under subsection (a).

“(c) ENGAGED IN WORK.—

“(1) ALL FAMILIES.—For purposes of subsection (b)(1)(B)(i), a recipient is engaged in work for a month in a fiscal year if the recipient is participating in work activities for at least the minimum average number of hours per week specified in the following table during the month, not fewer than 20 hours per week of which are attributable to an activity described in paragraph (1), (2), (3), (4), (5), (6), (7), or (8) of subsection (d):

“If the month is in fiscal year:	The minimum average number of hours per week is:

“(2) 2-PARENT FAMILIES.—For purposes of subsection (b)(2)(B)(i), an adult is engaged in work for a month in a fiscal year if the adult is making progress in work activities for at least 35 hours per week during the month, not fewer than 30 hours per week of which are attributable to an activity described in paragraph (1), (2), (3), (4), (5), (6), (7), or (8) of subsection (d).

“(3) LIMITATION ON NUMBER OF WEEKS FOR WHICH JOB SEARCH COUNTS AS WORK.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), an individual shall not be considered to be engaged in work by virtue of participation in an activity described in subsection (d)(6), after the individual has participated in such an activity for 4 weeks (except if the unemployment rate is above the national average, 12 weeks) in a fiscal year. An individual shall be considered to be participating in such an activity for a week if the individual participates in such an activity at any time during the week.

“(4) LIMITATION ON VOCATIONAL EDUCATION ACTIVITIES COUNTED AS WORK.—For purposes of determining monthly participation rates under paragraphs (1)(B)(i) and (2)(B)(i) of subsection (b), not more than 20 percent of adults in all families and in 2-parent families determined to be engaged in work in the State for a month may meet the work activity requirement through participation in vocational educational training.

“(5) SINGLE PARENT WITH CHILD UNDER AGE 6 DEEMED TO BE MEETING WORK PARTICIPATION REQUIREMENTS IF PARENT IS ENGAGED IN WORK FOR 20 HOURS PER WEEK.—For purposes of determining monthly participation rates under subsection (b)(1)(B)(i), a recipient in a 1-parent family who is the parent of a child who has not attained 6 years of age is deemed to be engaged in work for a month if the recipient is engaged in work for an average of at least 20 hours per week during the month.

“(6) TEEN HEAD OF HOUSEHOLD WHO MAINTAINS SATISFACTORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE DEEMED TO BE MEETING WORK PARTICIPATION REQUIREMENTS.—For purposes of determining monthly participation rates under subsection (b)(1)(B)(i), a recipient who is a single head of household and has not attained 20 years of age is deemed to be engaged in work for a month in a fiscal year if the recipient—subject to such good cause and other exceptions as the State may establish.

“(ii) terminate such assistance,

“(B) EXCEPTION.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), a State may not reduce or terminate assistance under the State program operated under part A based on a refusal of an adult to work if the adult is a single custodial parent caring for a child who has not attained 11 years of age, and the adult proves that the adult has a demonstrated inability (as determined by the State) to obtain needed child care, for 1 or more of the following reasons:

“(B) PENALTY BASED ON SEVERITY OF FAILURE.—The Secretary shall impose reductions under subparagraph (A) based on the degree of noncompliance.

“(g) NONDISPLACEMENT IN WORK ACTIVITIES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), an adult in a family receiving assistance under a State program operated under part A attributable to funds provided by the Federal Government may fill a vacant employment position in order to engage in a work activity described in subsection (d).

“(2) NO FILLING OF CERTAIN VACANCIES.—No adult in a work activity described in subsection (d) which is funded, in whole or in part, by funds provided by the Federal Government shall be employed or assigned—

“(A) when any other individual is on layoff from the same or any substantially equivalent job; or

“(3) NO PREEMPTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall preempt or supersede any provision of State or local law that provides greater protection for employees from displacement.

“(h) SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the Congress that in complying with this section, each State that operates a program under part A is encouraged to assign the highest priority to requiring adults in 2-parent families and adults in single-parent families that include older preschool or school-age children to be engaged in work activities.

“(i) SENSE OF THE CONGRESS THAT STATES SHOULD IMPOSE CERTAIN REQUIREMENTS ON NONCUSTODIAL, NONSUPPORTING MINOR PARENTS.—It is the sense of the Congress that the States should require noncustodial, nonsupporting parents who have not attained 18 years of age to fulfill community work obligations and attend appropriate parenting or money management classes after school.

“(a) ASSESSMENT.—The State agency responsible for administering the State program funded under part A shall make an initial assessment of the skills, prior work experience, and employability of each recipient of assistance under the program who—

“(2) has not completed high school or obtained a certificate of high school equivalency, and is not attending secondary school.

“(b) CONTENTS OF PLANS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—On the basis of the assessment made under subsection (a) with respect to an individual, the State agency, in consultation with the individual, shall develop an individual responsibility plan for the individual, which—

“(A) shall provide that participation by the individual in job search activities shall be a condition of eligibility for assistance under the State program funded under part A, except during any period for which the individual is employed full-time in an unsubsidized job in the private sector;

“(B) sets forth an employment goal for the individual and a plan for moving the individual immediately into private sector employment;

“(C) sets forth the obligations of the individual, which may include a requirement that the individual attend school, maintain certain grades and attendance, keep school age children of the individual in school, immunize children, attend parenting and money management classes, or do other things that will help the individual become and remain employed in the private sector;

“(D) to the greatest extent possible shall be designed to move the individual into whatever private sector employment the individual is capable of handling as quickly as possible, and to increase the responsibility and amount of work the individual is to handle over time;

“(E) shall describe the services the State will provide the individual so that the individual will be able to obtain and keep employment in the private sector, and describe the job counseling and other services that will be provided by the State; and “(F) at the option of the State, may require the individual to undergo appropriate substance abuse treatment.

“(2) TIMING.—The State agency shall comply with paragraph (1) with respect to an individual—

“(A) within 90 days (or, at the option of the State, 180 days) after the effective date of this part, in the case of an individual who, as of such effective date, is a recipient of aid under the State plan approved under part A (as in effect immediately before such effective date); or

“(B) within 30 days (or, at the option of the State, 90 days) after the individual is determined to be eligible for such assistance, in the case of any other individual.

“(c) PROVISION OF PROGRAM AND EMPLOYMENT INFORMATION.—The State shall inform all applicants for and recipients of assistance under the State program funded under part A of all available services under the program for which they are eligible.

“(d) PENALTY FOR NONCOMPLIANCE BY INDIVIDUAL.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the State shall reduce, by such amount as the State considers appropriate, the amount of assistance otherwise payable under the State program funded under part A to a family that includes an individual who fails without good cause to comply with an individual responsibility plan signed by the individual.

“(2) EXCEPTION.—A State may not terminate the provision of assistance to an individual under the State program funded under part A, or reduce the amount of assistance to be provided to an individual under the program, if the State has failed to provide to the individual the services referred to in subsection (b)(1)(E) that are described in the individual responsibility plan for the individual.

“(3) The problem of child abuse and neglect requires a comprehensive approach that—

“(A) integrates the work of social service, legal, health, mental health, education, and substance abuse agencies and organizations;

“(B) strengthens coordination among all levels of government, and with private agencies, civic, religious, and professional organizations, and individual volunteers;

“(C) emphasizes the need for abuse and neglect prevention, assessment, investigation, and treatment at the neighborhood level;

“(D) ensures properly trained and support staff with specialized knowledge, to carry out their child protection duties; and

“(4) The child protection system should be comprehensive, child-centered, family-focused, and community-based, should incorporate all appropriate measures to prevent the occurrence or recurrence of child abuse and neglect, and should promote physical and psychological recovery and social reintegration in an environment that fosters the health, safety, self-respect, and dignity of the child.

TITLE III—COMMITTEE ON ECONOMIC AND EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, COMMITTEE ON ECONOMIC AND
EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES,
Washington, DC, June 13, 1996.

Hon. JOHN R. KASICH,
*Chairman, Committee on the Budget,
Washington, DC.*

DEAR CHAIRMAN KASICH. Pursuant to the reconciliation directives contained in the Conference Report on House Concurrent Resolution 178, the budget resolution for fiscal year 1997, I am pleased to transmit reconciliation recommendations for programs within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities. The recommendations contained in this formal transmission were approved by the full committee on June 13, 1996 by a vote of 23 to 11. A copy of the legislation, and report, including the Committee Views together with Summary, Section by Section Analysis and other items necessary to comply with House Rules are enclosed. Pursuant to your letter of June 12, 1996, the cost estimate, Ramseyer, and minority views will be forthcoming, but in no event later than Monday, June 17, 1996.

I realize that the instructions given to the committee under H.Con.Res. 178 were derived from H.R. 3507, the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunities Act of 1996. I know you understand that this committee was not directed to include provisions from Title IV, Restricting Welfare and Public Benefits for Aliens and, hence, we did not include any provisions from that title; however, section 424, the cosignature of alien student loans provision amends the Higher Education Act of 1965 and I respectfully request that you delete that provision as it has negligible savings and needs further review.

I hope these proposals will be of assistance to your committee in meeting the budget reconciliation targets. If you have questions or comments, please do not hesitate to call me.

Sincerely,

BILL GOODLING, Chairman.

The purpose of the Committee Recommendations is to establish work requirements for persons receiving cash public assistance, provide increases in funding for child care, increase in funding for protecting children from abuse, and streamline nutrition assistance programs in order to reduce administrative burdens.

EXPLANATION OF AMENDMENTS

The amendments adopted in committee are explained in this report.

Legislative action

On January 3, 1995, Representatives Shaw, Talent and LaTourette introduced the Personal Responsibility Act, H.R. 4, which was part of the Republican Contract with America. H.R. 4 included provisions relating to work requirements, child care, child protection, child nutrition and other provisions related to welfare reform within the jurisdiction of the committee.

On February 21, 1995, Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities Chairman William Goodling introduced H.R. 999, the Welfare Reform Consolidation Act of 1995. H.R. 999 consisted of the committee's initiatives and program reforms relating to welfare reform, consistent with overall welfare reforms contained in the Personal Responsibility Act, H.R. 4.

On February 22 and 23, 1995, the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities considered H.R. 999. The committee adopted an amendment in the nature of a substitute, agreed to additional amendments, and reported the legislation favorably, on a recorded vote.

H.R. 999 was combined with proposals from other committees in H.R. 1214 was introduced by Representatives Archer, Goodling, and Roberts on March 13, 1995, and considered (upon substituting the text of H.R. 1214 into H.R. 4) by the House of Representatives on March 21–24, 1995. H.R. 4 was approved by the House of Representatives on a vote of 234–199. The Senate approved H.R. 4 on September 19, 1995. The text of H.R. 4 as approved by the House was also included in H.R. 2491, the Balanced Budget Act of 1995, which was approved by the House of Representatives on October 26, 1995.

Conference reports on H.R. 2491, the Balance Budget Act of 1995, and H.R. 4, the Personal Responsibility Act, were approved by the House of Representatives on November 17, 1995 and December 20, 1995 respectively. President Clinton vetoed both H.R. 2491, the Balanced Budget Act on December 6, 1995 and H.R. 4, the Personal Responsibility Act on January 9, 1996.

On May 22, 1996 Representative Archer introduced H.R. 3507. H.R. 3507, contains welfare reforms from H.R. 4 together with certain changes reflected changes to H.R. 4 requested by the Nation's Governors, as well as reforms to the Medicaid program. The Budget Resolution for fiscal year 1997 includes instructions to the respective committees of jurisdiction to report savings consistent with adoption of H.R. 3507 to the Budget Committee by June 13, 1996.

On June 12, 1996, the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities considered its report to the Budget Committee consistent with the instructions described above.

SUMMARY

SUBTITLE A—WORK REQUIREMENTS

This subtitle, as reported by this committee, replaces the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills (JOBS) program with new mandatory work requirements. Under these provisions, States will be required to move an increasing percentage of their welfare caseload into real work activities for a minimum number of hours per week.

SUBTITLE B—CHILD AND FAMILY SERVICES BLOCK GRANT

This subtitle, as reported by this committee, consolidates six existing child protection programs into a new block—“The Child and Family Services Block Grant.” The purpose of this block grant is to allow States to have one pool of Federal funds from which to access funds in order to implement programs which best meet the needs of children and families in their State. By simplifying the administrative burden currently placed on States because of the fragmentation of child welfare programs, there will be less paperwork, allowing professionals to focus on providing needed services to children and families.

This block grant is part of a larger reform along with other child welfare programs which primarily fall within the jurisdiction of the Ways and Means Committee. Combined, these reforms will retain the open-ended entitlement funding for foster care maintenance payments, training, and administration; the open-ended entitlement stream for adoption assistance payments, administration and training and the existing capped entitlement for Independent Living services. In addition, the child protection standards found in current law would be retained. Taken together, the reforms consolidate 11 existing child protection programs into block grants that require only one State application, one State plan, and one State report. Combined across these provisions, States will have $32.2 billion available in entitlement funds—about $200 million more than current law—to protect abused and neglected children.

SUBTITLE C—CHILD CARE

This subtitle consolidates seven Federal child care programs into the Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG) to create a single consolidated program to assist low-income parents in paying for child care. The consolidation of these programs eliminates conflicting income requirements, time limits, and work requirements between the programs so Federal child care funds may “follow the parent” as they move from welfare to work. The block grant also gives States much greater flexibility in targeting child care assistance, and ensures that States set effective policies on health, safety, and licensing standards.

Merged programs include: Child Development Associate Scholarship Assistance, State Dependent Care Planning Grant, Child Care activities under Title X of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, native Hawaiian Family Centers, At Risk Child Care, Transitional Child Care, and Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Child Care funds made available through the block grant total $22 billion over 7 years as follows: (1) $15 billion in mandatory funds (rising from $1.97 billion in 1997 to $2.72 billion in 2002); and (2) $1 billion in each of 7 years (fiscal year 1996–fiscal year 2002) in discretionary funds. According to the Congressional Budget Office, the total of $22 billion is $4.5 billion above funding provided under current law for the same period.

SUBTITLE D—CHILD NUTRITION PROGRAMS

This subtitle contains numerous provisions designed to streamline and simplify the operation of child nutrition programs and give State and localities greater flexibility to operate their programs efficiently and effectively and control program growth and Federal costs. Program savings totaling $3.0 billion from 1997–2002 are achieved by the following measures: the implementation of a two-tiered reimbursement program for family day care homes under the Child and Adult Care Food Program, the elimination of startup grants for the School Breakfast and Summer Food Programs, modifications to the reimbursement rates for the Summer Food Program, and a provision which converts the Nutrition Education and Training program from an “entitlement” program to a “discretionary program.” The bill also eliminates numerous obsolete and conflicting provisions in laws that have been amended more than 25 times over the past 25 years.

SUBTITLE E—RELATED PROVISIONS

Under Subtitle E, the Secretary of Health and Human Services (in consultation with the Secretary of Education) is required to publish updated poverty estimates every 2 years. These updates must begin in 1997 for State, county, and city poverty estimates, and in 1999 for school district poverty estimates. This section authorizes the appropriation of $1.5 million per year to carry out these provisions. In addition this title expresses the sense of Congress that the welfare reform legislation should not result in an increase number of children in poverty or who lack food, homes, or medical care.

COMMITTEE VIEWS

Background and need for the legislation

As the foregoing history shows, the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, along with many others in Congress, have given considerable time and effort in the 104th Congress to attempting to reform our Nation’s welfare system.

The need for major welfare reform is obvious to almost everyone. According to a public opinion poll conducted in January, 1994, 71 percent of the American public said the current welfare system does “more harm than good.” The current welfare system, though intended to show society’s compassion for those of limited means, in far too many cases actually creates more dependence on government, and rewards behaviors destructive to individuals, families, and society. As a witness before the committee put it, “in welfare, as in most other things in life, you get what you pay for. The current system pays for nonwork and nonmarriage, and has achieved dramatic increase in both.”

During the most of the past thirty years, the answer to every problem and the means to every “reform” has been to create another Federal program. Of course, each new Federal program required separate regulations, separate applications, separate eligibility rules, separate reports. Each of these in turn requires additional personnel to administer the program, to check the paperwork, to write the regulations. Much of the good intentions behind all of these programs was lost in a maze of red tape and regulations. In the end, the programs seemed more designed to meet the needs of those who administer them than those who were the intended beneficiaries.

The welfare reform proposal in H.R. 4 and in the welfare reform legislation of which this bill is a part, move in a new direction. States are given more flexibility in their use of Federal funds, but with accountability for results in reducing welfare dependence. Although President Clinton vetoed two bills very similar to this legislation, the committee believes strongly that welfare reform legislation is needed and that the approach to welfare reform outlined in H.R. 4 and in this legislation will lead to a more effective system for assisting those in need. The current legislation provides additional guaranteed funding for child care (over both current law and the President’s own proposal) and maintains funding for school lunch approximately $400 million higher than that proposed by the President. In addition, the legislation maintains strong work requirements and consolidates several child care and child welfare programs.

SUBTITLE A—WORK REQUIREMENTS

Efforts by this committee and its predecessor, the Committee on Education and Labor, to place a stronger emphasis on work requirements in welfare extend back to 1964, with the passage of the Economic Opportunity Act. Title V of that Act authorized the Work Experience Program for heads of households who could not support their families. Although this program did not include mandatory work requirements, it was one of the first major attempts to assist individuals to move off welfare and into work.

The Work Experience Program was eventually replaced by the Work Incentive Program which was specifically placed under the Education and Labor Committee’s sole jurisdiction in 1975 under the Rules of the House of Representatives. Although well intentioned, the law failed to effectively move welfare recipients into employment due largely to its lack of mandated work requirements—even after reforms in 1981 which expanded options for States to include mandatory work in the programs.

By 1986 most States began experimenting with a variety of welfare-to-work programs. However, these programs also failed to stress mandatory work requirements and instead continued to focus upon education and training activities. Nevertheless, these State initiatives were the impetus for bolder attempts by this committee to enact legislation making work a requirement in exchange for cash welfare assistance.

In 1987, the Education and Labor Committee approved the Family Welfare Reform Act of 1987, which included the proposed establishment of the Fair Work Opportunities Program. This program, (which under the final legislation, the Family Support Act of 1988, renamed Job Opportunities and Basic Skills (JOBS)), had as a principal objective to move welfare recipients into work. Towards that objective, the legislation included three fundamental concepts which were unique to Federal welfare programs up to that time. First, certain recipients were required to participate in work activities at the risk of reduced benefits. Second, it required those participants in work activities to do so for a minimum number of hours. Third, it held States accountable for moving recipients into work activities through the implementation of “minimum participation rates.”

Although an ambitious attempt at emphasizing work, the JOBS program has in fact not met expectations for moving recipients into real jobs, and off welfare.

The work requirements included in this welfare reform legislation reflect the work provisions included in H.R. 999, along with several changes stemming from negotiations during the conference committee of H.R. 4 as well as negotiations with the Nation’s Governors since the veto of H.R. 4. These work requirements build upon the lessons learned from previous attempts at Federal welfare-to-work programs and represent a significant step forward in focusing on actual job placement and employment opportunities as opposed to stand-alone education and training programs.

Need for legislation

There is overwhelming public support for the idea that any able-bodied adult receiving public assistance should work. (see, e.g. “What To Do About Welfare,” The Public Perspective, Feb./March, 1995, pp. 39–46, citing December, 1994 survey showing 84 percent support strict work requirements.) However, the current JOBS program under AFDC fails to adequately move in this direction for several reasons. First, it does not emphasize work as the first goal. Second, it fails to provide adequate State flexibility to carry out the types of work programs States feel would be successful. Finally, the current JOBS program lacks adequate accountability.

Under the legislation passed out of this committee, these shortfalls are addressed by replacing the current JOBS program with strong, mandatory work requirements designed to move towards a “work-first” system of welfare reform and providing States the flexibility necessary to implement successful welfare-to-work programs—while holding all States accountable for placing a minimum percentage of welfare recipients in work.

JOBS Program lacks employment as goal

Under the JOBS program, the emphasis is not on work and job placement, but instead on education and training activities which too often are designed with little relevance to the realities of the working world. This view has been supported in testimony given before this committee as well as in several recent reports, including reports from the General Accounting Office, which recently issued a study specifically related to the lack of emphasis on work in the JOBS program:

“[the JOBS] programs are generally not well focused on recipients’ employment as the ultimate goal. Our recent nationwide survey of local programs administrators revealed that JOBS programs have generally not forged the strong links with local employers that may be important to helping AFDC recipients gain work experience and find jobs.” (US General Accounting Office, “Current AFDC Program Not Sufficiently Focused on Employment” December 1994)

More recent findings by the GAO also found that about one-half of the county JOBS administrators nationwide stated that they do not work enough with employers to find jobs for participants. (US General Accounting Office, “Most AFDC Training Programs Not Emphasizing Job Placement,” May 1995)

The view that work activities are not a priority under JOBS was highlighted by Mark Greenberg, Senior Staff Attorney, Center for Law and Social Policy. Mr. Greenberg testified before this committee that:

While the JOBS program has demonstrated a strong commitment to education, its progress has been much less in those areas which involve direct employer linkages; job placement and development activities, work supplementation, and on-the-job training. The lack of stronger employment linkages is of concern for several reasons: First, in many instances, individuals do not wish to participate in education; they want to enter employment as rapidly as possible. In those cases, a more comprehensive program could increase their employment opportunities. Second, the impact of education and training efforts may be diminished when a program lacks the ability to readily translate education gains into employment opportunities in the local community.

His testimony is supported by data from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (JOBS Program Information Memorandum, No. ACFIM 94-8, September 29, 1994) which indicates that for the most recent program year, almost 58 percent of JOBS participants engaged in education and training related activities, as compared to just 12.8 percent who were placed into work-directed activities including job search assistance (8 percent), community work experience (4.3 percent), on-the-job training (0.2 percent), and work supplementation (0.3 percent).

Additional evidence that the lack of priority on work in the JOBS program is the wrong approach in reducing welfare dependency was provided by Michael Genest, Deputy Director, Welfare Programs Division, California Department of Health and Human Services, who testified before the committee on this point, stating:

“(What we have found), thanks to Ms. Gueron’s evaluation in the Manpower Demonstration Research Corporation (MDRC) report of our four California counties that were extensively studied, is that the GAIN Program, and

I believe the other State's jobs programs, can only be successful when it is strongly focused on employment. I would cite Riverside County as evidence for that, and the MDRC report goes into some detail as to what caused that in Riverside County, but basically I think the main thing that sets Riverside apart and makes it the most effective welfare-to-work program ever rigorously studied in this country is the management, the staff, the providers of service, and the participants, all keep their attention focused on that one goal of getting a job. I think that job focus is, more than anything, responsible for why Riverside County returned $2.84 of savings for every taxpayer dollar of cost. The flip side of that, the other lesson that I think we have learned, is that stressing long-term education and long-term training as opposed to stressing immediate job placement does not work. I would cite our Alameda County, which was also part of the MDRC report, as evidence of that. In Alameda County they truly did focus on long-term educational involvement to the exclusion of an emphasis on an immediate job, and that is why their program failed, and that is why it returned only 45 cents in savings for every dollar of taxpayer investment, not an acceptable return on investment.

Taking this, and other similar testimony into account, the committee's legislation replaces the concept of the JOBS program with the idea of "work first," in which work mandated recipients, current and new, would be required to enter into private sector employment, subsidized employment, community work, on-the-job training or job search assistance. Unlike the current JOBS program, education and training is not permitted until a recipient has participated in work or the education and training is conducted in conjunction with work. The legislation replaces the JOBS concept of "education and training first—maybe work later," with "work first."

State flexibility

The existing statutory restrictions under the current JOBS program limit the flexibility for States to readily design and implement welfare-to-work programs which meet their needs. Ms. J. Jean Rogers, Administrator, Division of Economic Support, Wisconsin Department of Health and Human Services, provided testimony on what Wisconsin would be able to do without these restrictions.

"We would help people who come to us find employment or alternatives to cash assistance before their application is approved and they begin down the path of welfare dependency. We have discovered in our early county pilots that many individuals can be helped to maintain their economic independence in this way, and we would like to make cooperation in such efforts at self-sufficiency a requirement of eligibility for welfare in the first place. However, under current law, this sensible approach requires a Federal waiver."

Ms. Rogers continued:

“We would also like to make participation in JOBS more like a real job. Employers say that a positive attitude and good work habits are the characteristics that they most seek when making hiring decisions. Therefore, we would pay cash assistance only for hours of successful completion of program activities, making participation in JOBS move like a wage. This is currently allowed only for two-parent families, except with another Federal waiver. We would also like to continue to encourage greater use of active private employment as preparation to fully unsubsidized employment. Our experience shows that diverting some welfare funds to temporarily help cover the wage and other costs with a private employer is far more effective than placing the same individual in a Government education or training program alone. In fact, we are more than twice as successful at placing individuals in employment with a private company than we are in placing individuals who have participated in any of our educational components, and yet the current wage subsidy provision of the AFDC law called work supplementation is extraordinarily complex, leading to a low response rate by businesses. For instance, the law says an employer cannot accept a subsidized employee in an existing position. Instead, the employer has to create an entirely new position. This is unreasonable. Also, we might like to use a simple procedure giving clients vouchers for wage subsidies. Instead, there is a very complicated process for a business to claim wage subsidies under the current law.”

The committee’s decision to repeal the JOBS program and replace it with a highly flexible, mandatory work provision, will allow States to move forward with these types of innovations outlined by Ms. Rogers.

Accountability

State flexibility is key to the reform of our welfare system, but the public also wants the assurance that States are held accountable for placing able-bodied welfare recipients into work. Under Subtitle A, States will be required to meet “participation rates regarding the proportion of their entire welfare caseload in work activities. The committee believes that setting such “performance standards” for work without prescribing in detail how States must implement their programs, best combines flexibility and accountability and help reach the overall goal of moving welfare recipients from dependency to employment and self-sufficiency.

Description of legislation

Participation rates. Subtitle A requires States to meet certain requirements regarding the percentage of their caseload in work activities. Under an amendment adopted by the committee, the participation rate (calculated for each month) for 1996 through 2002 is as follows:

Year:	Participation Rate
	Participation Rate
1996	20
1997	25

	Participation Rate
1998	30
1999	35
2000	40
2001	45
2002	50

Thus by the year 2003, 50 percent of the adult welfare case load will be required to participate in work activities. Higher rates (from 50 to 90 percent) apply to two-parent families.

It should be noted that States are given flexibility in determining who will be required to participate in work activities in order to meet these percentages. Subtitle A also allows, but does not require, States to exempt single custodial parents of children under the age of 1 from work requirements and from the calculation of participation rates.

Credit for caseload reductions. Title I allows States to receive credit for welfare caseload reduction for the purposes of meeting the participation requirements. States are able to count net reductions in the caseload below the 1995 baseline as participation. This provision, in effect, provides States with the ability, and in fact the incentive, to do away with the concept of measuring participation rates, (which is by and large a “process” measurement), and move toward having their performance based on a true outcome—a reduction in welfare dependency, a goal in which no one can argue. However, it is not the intention of this committee that States be able to count reductions in caseloads to the extent such reductions are determined by the Secretary to be required by Federal law.

Two-parent families. Subtitle A imposes strict work requirements for two-parent families receiving AFDC. The committee feels that there is strong evidence to suggest that strict work requirements greatly reduces welfare dependency for this population. As such, these provisions require that States ensure that in a minimum of 50 percent (moving to 90 percent in 1999) of two-parent families, one parent is participating in unsubsidized employment, subsidized private sector employment, or subsidized public sector employment or work experience if sufficient private sector employment is not available.

Allowable work activities. The allowable work activities in Subtitle A are those which may be counted by the State towards meeting the participation requirements. Of course, States may use either the specified activities or other work not counted towards meeting the participation rate requirements.

It is the committee’s strong belief that every adult on welfare, or applying for welfare, should first be directed towards placement into unsubsidized employment through job search assistance. In the event that unsubsidized employment can not be found, attempts should be made to find subsidized private sector employment. Only when these options have failed should attempts be made for placement into subsidized public sector employment or work experience be made.

Subtitle A allows States to count education and training as allowable work activities, but with several restrictions. First, recipients should not be placed into such programs until they have first participated or are participating in one or more of the work activities described above. Secondly, any education or training should be directly related to employment. The committee believes that this model of work-first has the most promise in truly changing the nature of this Nation's current welfare-to-work initiatives.

However, the committee recognizes the need to allow States to continue with successful programs involving vocational education as a way in which to assist individuals off welfare. For this reason, the committee language allows for States to count up to 20 percent of their working caseload to meet the work requirement through participation in vocational education.

The committee recognizes the fact that a vast number of individuals who end up as long-term welfare recipients are those who have not obtained a high school diploma. Therefore, the committee gives States the ability to count "satisfactory attendance at secondary school" as a work activity for those individuals who have not completed secondary school and who meet the minimum hours per week specified in the bill. It further allows States to deem as engaged in work, single teen heads of households who are maintaining satisfactory attendance in high school and who participate in such education for the minimum number of hours required under this section.

An amendment adopted by the committee specifies that job search and job readiness assistance may only be counted as work activities for 4 weeks except that, if the State's unemployment rate exceeds the national average, such job search and job readiness assistance may be counted for 12 weeks.

Penalties. Under this legislation, if an adult recipient refuses to engage in required work, the State is required to reduce the amount of assistance to the family pro rata (or more at State option) with respect to the period of work refusal, or is required to discontinue aid subject to good cause and other exceptions that the State may establish. A State may not penalize a single parent caring for a child under age 11 for refusal to work if the parent proves that there is a demonstrated inability to obtain needed child care for specific reasons.

These changes reflect one of the major goals of this committee that families on welfare must work for benefits just as other families must work for their paychecks. In keeping with this principle, families that refuse to engage in work are subject to penalties reducing their benefits accordingly, with the exception of single parents with young children, at State option.

The committee believes that States should also be held accountable for meeting the participation rates set forth under this proposal. The committee language establishes penalties for States failing to meeting the required participation rates equal to not more than 5 percent of the amount of the (AFDC) grant otherwise payable to the State in the following year. (This penalty is designed in coordination with the Ways and Means provisions of this welfare reform, which will replace individual entitlements to welfare with a single block grant to States, referred to as Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF)). This section also requires that the Secretary impose the penalties upon States based on the degree of noncompliance.

Supplemental grants. The committee bill includes authorization of supplemental grants to assist the States in achieving the work participation requirements in the bill. A grant may be made to a State if the State's own expenditures in that fixed year for these purposes exceed the State's expenditures in 1994 and if the State's work programs are coordinated with job training programs established under Title II of the Job Training Partnership Act or its successor. The bill authorizes $3 billion in fiscal year 1999 for this purpose, and provides that funds appropriated would remain available until expended.

Nondisplacement in work activities. The committee feels that no adult in a work activity under this part should be employed or assigned when another person is on layoff from the same or a substantially equivalent job or when the employer has terminated the employment of a regular worker or otherwise caused an involuntary reduction of its workforce in order to fill the vacancy thus created with a subsidized worker. This provision does not preempt or supersede any State or local law providing greater protection from displacement.

Sense of Congress that State should place a priority on placing certain parents in work. The committee feels strongly that in complying with the mandatory work requirements, States should assign the highest priority to requiring families that include older preschool or school age children to be engaged in work activities.

Individual responsibility plan. The committee adopted an amendment which requires States to develop an Individual Responsibility Plan for each recipient of cash welfare assistance. The Individual Responsibility Plan would include a plan for moving the individual into private sector employment as quickly as possible, and would also describe the services to be provided by the State to assist the individual in obtaining and keeping employment. The plan may also provide, at the option of the State, requiring the individual to undergo substance abuse treatment.

The amendment requires that the State consult with the individual recipient in developing the Individual Responsibility Plan. The amendment also provides the State shall reduce assistance to the individual if he or she fails, without good cause, to comply with the plan. The amendment provides an exception to the previous sentence if the State has failed to provide services described in the plan. This exception is stated as an exception to the mandatory penalty for noncompliance with the Individual Responsibility Plan and does not apply or limit any penalties, withdrawal of benefits, or reduction of benefits provided for elsewhere in the bill or elsewhere in law. The amendment also states that the exercise of the authority of this section shall be within the sole discretion of the State.

SUBTITLE B—CHILD AND FAMILY SERVICES BLOCK GRANT

Child protection system in crisis

As an estimated 1 million children fall victim to child abuse or neglect on an annual basis, the average length a child stays in foster care has risen to over 2 years, and the number of adoptions have steadily decreased, most citizens and advocates agree that the child protection system is seriously flawed.

The 1991 Report of the U.S. Advisory Board on Child Abuse and Neglect concluded that "The system the Nation has devised to respond to child abuse and neglect is failing." The Report states, "No matter which element of the system that it (the Advisory Board) examined—prevention, investigation, treatment, training, or research—it found a system in disarray, a societal response ill-suited in form or scope to respond to the profound problems facing it. It was forced to conclude that the child protection system is so inadequate and so poorly planned that the safety of the Nation's children cannot be assured."

In conducting research on the child protection system, the committee has been presented with evidence that the system has failed in two ways. It unnecessarily intrudes in the family life of millions of Americans who are wrongfully accused of child abuse or neglect, and the system too often fails to protect children who are truly at risk.

The stresses on the child protection system have dramatically increased in the last several years. During the 1980's, two crises greatly challenged the capacity of the child welfare system to protect children. First, beginning in the mid-1980's, the crack cocaine epidemic dramatically changed the type of client being served by the child welfare system. Whereas the typical foster care placement in the 1970's and early 1980's involved neglect or highly episodic, and stress related, abuse, the new crack cocaine cases frequently involved much more severe and chronic abuse resulting in longer and repeated stays in foster care.

Second, the 1980's saw an acceleration of the trend toward fatherless households. Given evidence that abuse is up to forty times more likely to occur when the biological father is not living in the home, the trend toward increasing father absence greatly increased the number of children interacting with the child protection system.

In addition, a philosophical change within the child welfare system began to move programs toward an orientation of family unification and family preservation. This philosophy of treatment took the view that all families have some strengths upon which to build, and that with appropriate early intervention and services, abuse could be prevented. In addition, the philosophy held that, even when abuse had occurred, through appropriate crisis intervention, families could be strengthened and restored.

Despite the prominence that this approach has gained, there are experts who dispute the validity of the approach, at least in its more extreme applications.

In testimony before the Subcommittee on Early Childhood, Youth and Families and the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Human Resources, Dr. Wade Horn, child psychologist and former Commissioner for Children, Youth and Families in the Department of Health and Human Services said,

Although some advocates of family preservation services claim that out-of-home placement is prevented for as many as 90 percent of children served, the few experimental evaluations of family preservation services to date have not shown substantially lower rates of placement in foster care months after the termination of family preservation services.

In addition, according to Toshio Tatara of the American Public Welfare Association, the dramatic increase in children in foster care placements is not due to an increase in the rate at which children are entering foster care, but rather to a significant decline in the rate at which children are exiting foster care. (Tatara, T. U.S. Child Care Flow Data For fiscal year 1992 and Current Trends in the State Child Substitute Care Populations, VCIS Research Notes, no. 9 (August, 1993))

Despite the absence of empirical evidence attesting to its effectiveness, advocates for family preservation services were successful in persuading Congress to legislate a new funding stream which can be utilized only for family preservation and support services. Consequently, whether or not such services are effective or best meet the needs of a particular community, States are now required to use a substantial portion of Federal funds to provide family preservation services.

In his testimony before the Early Childhood, Youth and Families Subcommittee on January 31, 1995, Congressman Tim Hutchinson (AR) also raised concerns about the implications of a rigidly implemented family preservation philosophy. "There is another side to this problem and it is the one that I would like to focus on today. That is the problem of too little intervention. The reality is that while child welfare divisions are chasing down false accusations or even dealing with minor cases of neglect, there are children who are being beaten and killed."

Hutchinson recounted the story of Kendall Shea Moore, who in the first 5 months of his life had virtually every bone in his body broken and his skull cracked. Authorities in Arkansas arrested the child's father and, as an accomplice, the baby's mother. Hutchinson described how the baby's father was sentenced to 28 years in prison, and a 5-year sentence for the mother was downgraded to a 3-year suspended sentence. Hutchinson further described how, on January 18, 1995, just over 9 months from the time Kendall was admitted to the intensive care unit, he was permanently returned to his mother's custody.

Carol Bevan Statuto, of the National Council for Adoption, told the subcommittee, "It is time to put to rest the myth that all foster care is bad for children and to expose the myth that biological ties are the only real 'ties that bind'."

In summary, Dr. Horn said, "The child welfare system is not only in crisis, it is also at a crossroads. We must decide whether the solution to today's child welfare crisis is to continue down the road we are on toward more Federal oversight, more Federal regulation, and more Federal micro-management of the child welfare system, or to change directions and allow greater State flexibility and experimentation. I am here to argue that one of the most important reasons why the current system is in crisis is because of too much Federal micro-management of the States and too little flexibility at the State and local level."

The committee shares this view, and believes that fragmentation of programs at the Federal level has hindered States from focusing appropriate resources on solving problems with child welfare.

Subtitle B accomplishes these improvements by consolidating various grant programs, as well as providing a unified basis for research, and demonstration projects. With regard to the letter, the 1991 report of the U.S. Advisory Board on Child Abuse and Neglect noted that, "within the social services component of Department of Health and Human Services, NCCAN (National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect) has had remarkably little impact on the huge Title IV-B, Title IV-E and Title XX programs which provide the largest Federal share of State and local CPS (child protective services) funding."

The report continued, "the approach which the Federal Government has pursued in child protection—vesting a small agency with authority for Federal leadership—has led to the inadequate involvement in child protection efforts by public health, mental health, substance abuse, developmental disabilities, justice, education, and community development agencies. No one agency can be expected to deal adequately with a problem as complex as child abuse and neglect, even if it is labeled as 'national'."

According to the Advisory Board, "over the last decade, most NCCAN demonstration projects have not had a scientifically sound evaluation component. Nor has NCCAN created a mechanism for assuring that the results of those few demonstrations that have had an evaluation component are translated into practice."

The committee is confident that the new Child and Family Services Block Grant, with significant resources and a unified Federal focus, will ensure that significant attention is given to child abuse and neglect at both the Federal and the State levels.

Increasing reports of abuse and neglect

In order to be eligible for a State grant under CAPTA, States must meet certain requirements such as having mandatory reporting systems and providing for the confidentiality of victims and their families.

All States now have laws that mandate designated professionals to report specific types of child maltreatment. Under threat of civil and criminal penalties, these laws require most professionals who serve children to report suspected child abuse and neglect. About 20 States required all citizens to report, and in all States, any citizen is permitted to report.

In 1993, about 3 million reports of suspected abuse or neglect were made. This is a 20-fold increase since 1963, when about 150,000 reports were made to the authorities.

The public and professional definition of child maltreatment seems to have expanded to include more cases of "moderate" harm to children.

The committee is concerned that only $\frac{1}{3}$ of reports of abuse and neglect are substantiated. Based on this figure, in 1986 anywhere from 1.9 to 3.8 million Americans were investigated by State child protective services for abuse that could not be substantiated. True, some unsubstantiated reports may have been actual cases of abuse or neglect, but for which the abuse could not be proven. But there is obviously a serious problem when such a preponderance of alleged abuse and neglect is unsubstantiated. The Child and Family Services Block Grant maintains a general requirement that States have laws requiring reporting by officials and professionals. However, the content of such laws will not be subject to micro-management by NCCAN officials. The committee believes that the Child and Family Services Block Grant will give States greater flexibility in targeting investigations and services toward the more serious allegations of abuse, and not force States to give the same weight of resources to more minor allegations of abuse that are often unsubstantiated.

Spiritual treatment of children

The Child and Family Services Block Grant includes language to address the issue of spiritual treatment of children. The section does not require a parent or legal guardian to provide a child with medical service or treatment, against his or her religious beliefs, nor does it require a State to find, or prohibit a State from finding, abuse or neglect in cases where the parent or guardian relied solely or partially on spiritual means rather than medical treatment, in accordance with their religious beliefs. The section requires a State to have in place authority under State law to pursue any legal remedies necessary to provide medical care or treatment when such care or treatment is necessary to prevent or remedy serious harm to the child, or to prevent the withholding of medically indicated treatment from children with life-threatening conditions. In general, each State has sole discretion over its case-by-case determinations relating to the exercise of authority of the subsection and is not foreclosed from considering treatment by nonmedical or spiritual means. However, in light of special concerns about enforcement of Federal law protecting disabled infants from medical neglect (see e.g., U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, Medical Disabilities), the legislation retains existing language concerning the Federal oversight with references to cases involving the withholding of medically indicated treatment from disabled infants with life-threatening conditions.

SUBTITLE C—CHILD CARE

The history of Federal support for child care has been marked, and marred, by the repeated creation of new and distinct child care programs, each with separate program requirements. The multiple programs has lead to what is sometimes described as the “public day care maze.” What’s lost in this maze are the families and children whom these programs are supposed to help. Of the current major Federal child care programs, four are relatively new and account for most of the Federal expenditures. These include child care for families receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) and Transitional Child Care for families leaving AFDC, which were created as part of a welfare reform initiative in 1988, and two programs for low-income working families, the Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG) and At-Risk Child Care, which were created in 1990. Estimated Federal spending for these four programs combined in fiscal year 1994 is $1.9 billion.

Since 1990, concern has developed that too many Federal child care programs now exist, with inconsistent and uncoordinated eligibility rules and other requirements that interfere with service delivery and cause children and families to experience disruptions in their day care arrangement.

According to a May 1994 General Accounting Office study:

Despite State progress in developing seamless systems of providing child care, gaps in services remain because of different program requirements. These program requirements differ in specifying (1) the categories of clients who can be served, (2) the activities clients are permitted to pursue while remaining eligible for child care, (3) the ceiling on the amount of income that may be earned while retaining program eligibility, and (4) the length of time the child care subsidy is allowed to be paid. States told us that these conflicting requirements and resulting gaps can have negative consequences when they need it to remain in the labor force.

“Child Care: Working Poor and Welfare Recipients Face Service Gaps,” United States General Accounting Office, May 1994, GAO/HEHS 94-87.

This concern about service gaps and inconsistencies in the current mix of Federal child care programs was echoed in the following policy statement adopted by the Nation’s Governors at the Winter 1995 National Governors Association meeting:

The Governors urge Congress to move toward a more seamless system incorporating all of the Federal child care programs. In general, the Governors are of the belief that CCDBG should be the foundation for that seamless system and that other Federal child care programs, such as the Title IV A [AFDC and Transitional] and At-Risk Child Care programs, should be consolidated with the Child Care and Development Block Grant to form a single child care system operated by the States.

The committee is committed to assisting States develop the most efficient and effective use of Federal funds provided for child care assistance for low income families. In addition, as Congress undertakes efforts to significantly reform the welfare system by consolidating cash assistance and job training programs for welfare recipients, it must also simplify the delivery and administration of Federal assistance for child care services.

By providing a single source of Federal child care funding to the States with much greater flexibility for administration, States will be able to decide how best to use the funds, target funds toward low income families in a rational fashion, and allow subsidies to “follow the parent” in a seamless system that will help welfare recipients move from welfare to long-term employment and independence.

In reforming the Child Care and Development Block Grant, the committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities intends to create a system that: allows more Federal dollars to be made available for direct child care services than under current authorities; provides flexibility for States to develop more efficient systems for helping parents avoid welfare or move from welfare to work; and, provides more choice for parents to select quality child care settings for their children.

Subtitle C consolidates seven separate Federal child care programs into the existing Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG), a single consolidated block grant to assist low-income parents in paying for child care. This consolidation eliminates conflicting income requirements, time limits, and work requirements between the programs. These conflicting requirements have caused service gaps, unnecessary paperwork, and disincentives for parents to break free from dependence on cash assistance.

Under the new system, Federal funds “follow the parent” as they move from welfare to work. States will have much greater flexibility in targeting child care assistance and in merging Federal child care assistance with sources of State child care assistance. In addition, this title continues to ensure that States set specific requirements for child care providers on health and safety standards.

The reformed block grant also contains a key provision that gives parents the authority to decide where to send their child for day care services, creating a “parent-driven” system. This will allow market forces and the competition for child care funds to help bring improvements to the quality of child care available within a State.

Funding

The reformed block grant significantly increases funding for child care. Child Care funds made available through the block grant total $22 billion over 7 years as follows: (1) $15 billion in mandatory funds (rising from $1.97 billion in 1997 to $2.72 billion in 2002); and (2) $1 billion in each of 7 years (fiscal year 1996–fiscal year 2002) in discretionary funds. According to the Congressional Budget Office, the total of $22 billion is $4.5 billion above funding provided under current law for the same period.

The bill establishes a single child care block grant and State administrative system by adding mandatory funds to the existing Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG). Specifically, one discretionary and two mandatory streams of funding will be consolidated into a revamped CCDBG.

First, $1 billion will be authorized annually in discretionary funds for the CCDBG. Allocation to States of these funds continues under the existing allocation formula of the CCDBG.

From the mandatory amounts provided, each State will receive the amount of funds it received for child care under all of the entitlement programs currently under Title IV of the Social Security Act (AFDC Child Care, Transitional Child Care, At Risk Child Care) in fiscal year 1994, in fiscal year 1995 or the average amount in fiscal years 1992 through 1994, whichever is greater. This source of funds will provide States with approximately $1.2 billion for child care each year between 1997 and 2002.

The mandatory funds remaining after the allocation to Indians (1 percent of the total) and the State allocations based on child care allotments from previous years will be distributed among the States based on the formula currently used in the Title IV A At Risk Child Care grant. Specifically, funds will be distributed based on the proportion of the number of children under age 13 residing in the State to the number of all the Nation's children under age 13. States must provide matching funds at the fiscal year 1995 Medicaid rate to receive these funds and must maintain spending at their fiscal year 1994 or 1995 level, whichever is higher under the Title IV A child care programs. The money available to States through this source of funds for fiscal years 1997 through 2002, respectively will be: $0.76 billion, $0.86 billion, $0.96 billion, $1.16 billion, $1.36 billion, and $1.51 billion.

Program goals

The committee believes that establishing goals for the States, with proper assessments and accountability for results in relationship to these goals, rather than the current fragmented and highly regulatory Federal system of support for child care, will provide more efficient and effective use of the Federal funds.

Following is an explanation of each goal:

(1) Provide States maximum flexibility in developing child care programs that best suit the needs of their residents. In providing Federal support for child care, Congress has not previously made a serious attempt to develop systems that can be well coordinated at the State level. States and local providers spend an inordinate amount of effort and energy trying to integrate Federal and State funding sources so they can provide a set of seamless services to parents. Generally, States and local providers have integrated programs in such a way that parents are unaware of the many different sources of funding paying for their child's care. However, enormous resources are directed at these administrative issues rather than allowing a greater focus on services to families and improving the quality of these services.

Douglas J. Besharov, resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, said in testimony before the Subcommittee on Early Childhood, Youth and Families and the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Human Resources, Annoying as it is for families, the morass of programs is a nightmare to administer. "Child care providers spend more time trying to coordinate programs than operate them," protests one agency executive. Fitting the various pieces of funding together is like trying to complete a huge jigsaw puzzle. Needless to say, Federal funds don't simply flow in: Each comes with its own complicated application and approval process that forces many programs to employ at least one full-time staff person to coordinate funding and document eligibility resources that would be better spent on the children.

(2) Promote parental choice to empower working parents to make their own decisions on the child care that best suits their family's needs. There are numerous arrangements that parents may make for child care, including parent care, relative care, in-home care, family day care, and center-based care. According to the National Child Care Survey of 1990, for children under age 5, a total of 48 percent of children were cared for by a parent, 22 percent by a relative, 2 percent by a nonrelative in the home, 8 percent in family day care, 15 percent in centers, and 6 percent in other arrangements.

For children age 5–12, a total of 48 percent of children were cared for by a parent, 20 percent by a relative, 4 percent by a non-relative in the home, 4 percent in family day care, 6 percent in centers, and 19 percent in other arrangements.

As there are numerous arrangements for child care available to parents, there are also many perspectives on what is important in choosing day care, and what constitutes “quality.”

As Larner and Phillips state,

Parents care about child care quality, but they define quality in relation to the needs of their own children. In contrast to professionals, parents want assurances that their individual child’s experiences will be safe, pleasant and developmentally sound. The critical difference between parent and professional perspectives on child care is that parents are seeking a child care arrangement that will meet the needs of their own child and family; they bear no broader responsibility for the child care field. They need only find one arrangement, but their stake in the quality of that arrangement is immense “Defining and Valuing Quality As a Parent,” Mary Larner and Deborah Phillips. Valuing Quality in Early Childhood Services, 1994, Paul Chapman Publishing, Ltd., London, England.

The committee believes that, for welfare reform to be truly effective, parents must fully assume the responsibilities of parenthood. Among these responsibilities is the need to ensure that one’s child is cared for in a safe and positive environment. Ensuring parental choice is a vital component to helping parents carry out their role.

(3) Encourage States to provide consumer education information to help parents make informed choices about child care. Subtitle C encourages States to provide consumer information to parents on child care so that they may make informed choices. The committee believes that providing information to consumers about sources of child care and elements that may indicate quality of care is an important determinant of the quality of care that children receive. Under the block grant, not only will parents exercise control over where their child receives care, they will have available to them a greater breadth of knowledge to inform their choice.

(4) Assist States to provide child care to parents trying to achieve independence from public assistance. This goal recognizes that securing affordable, consistent child care services can eliminate a major barrier to a parent, particularly a single parent, entering the work force and transitioning away from dependence on public assistance. In this context, subsidies for child care are appropriate, not only for the welfare recipient getting training or beginning employment, but also for low-income working poor parents that may have never been on welfare.

The committee also recognizes that, as States work to move recipients off public assistance, they may rightfully choose to target welfare recipients who are the most employable, such as two-parent families, individuals with higher educational achievement, or individuals with school-age children. This type of flexibility in targeting individuals for transition off welfare can help a State avoid a sudden increase of demand for the most expensive types of child care.

(5) Assist States in implementing State health, safety, licensing and registration standards. Subtitle C achieves this goal in two fashions. First, it relieves the State of the burden of developing and implementing four individual sets of requirements for health, safety and licensing from the four major separate Federal programs. It provides States flexibility in establishing these standards, and also, through a more flexible funding structure, allows States to merge Federal and State funds to improve child care programs.

The committee expects that States will utilize this flexibility and opportunity for a more efficient system, and not apply different criteria or rules to child care provided through Federal funds than apply to comparable child care not subsidized by Federal funds.

Lead entity

Subtitle C requires States to identify a lead agency to administer all the child care funds received under the Act, including funds received through other “governmental or nongovernmental” agencies (instead of other “State” agencies). States must ensure that “sufficient time and statewide distribution of the notice” be given for the public hearing on the development of the State plan.

Application and plan

The bill requires the State plan to cover a 2-year period. States must provide a detailed description of procedures to be used to assure parental choice of providers. Instead of “providing assurances,” States must “certify” that procedures are in effect within the State to ensure unlimited parental access to the families providing care to children and to ensure parental choice of child care providers; the bill also requires that the State plan provide a detailed description of such procedures. A State must “certify” that it maintains a record of parental complaints, and requires the State to provide a detailed description of how such a record is maintained and made available. The bill changes the consumer education part of the State plan to require assurances that the State will collect and disseminate consumer education information. States must certify that they have in effect child care licensing requirements and provide a detailed description of how they are enforced. This provision does not require that licensing requirements be applied to specific types of child care providers. The Secretary is required to develop minimum standards for Indian tribes and tribal organizations receiving assistance.

The committee believes that the information collected and disseminated by the State should directly support the goal of helping parents make informed child care choices rather than being focused solely on bureaucratic requirements. The committee also notes that consumer information should not only include sources for subsidized care, but should make a concerted effort to provide information on other sources of affordable care, such as family and relative care.

Additionally, States may spend no more than 5 percent on administrative costs. The committee does not view the following as administrative costs: eligibility determination, resource and referral, automation and data collection.

Assistance for certain families

States must comply with a requirement that at least 70 percent of mandatory funds must be used for welfare or at risk families. States must demonstrate how they will meet the child care needs of welfare and at risk families. States must spend a substantial portion of the amounts available to provide child care to low income working families who are not working their way off welfare or are at risk of becoming welfare dependent.

Activities to improve the quality of child care

The committee firmly believes in providing all families with access to quality child care services and therefore has dramatically increased the quality improvement funding above the set aside amounts in the current CCDBG.

A State that receives child care funds shall use not less than 4 percent for activities designed to provide comprehensive consumer education to parents and the public, activities that increase parental choice, and activities designed to improve the quality and availability of child care.

The 4-percent set-aside is of the total funding amounts (both mandatory and discretionary) and is a significant increase over the current law quality set aside in CCDBG.

The committee recognizes the role of before- and after-school care programs in providing an important source of child care services for the older children. The bill in no way impedes States from using grant funds for such purposes.

Under the committee proposal, States are given more money to pay for child care while also being given more flexibility and increased funds to improve the quality of care.

Administration and enforcement

This changes the current law requirement that the Secretary withhold further payments to a State in case of a finding of non-compliance until it is corrected. The Secretary is authorized to require that the State reimburse the Secretary for any improperly spent funds, or the Secretary may deduct an amount equal or less from the administrative portion of the State's subsequent allotment.

Annual report and data

States must collect on a monthly basis and report to HHS on a quarterly basis the following information for each family receiving assistance: family income; county of residence; the gender, race, age of children receiving benefits; whether the family includes only one parent; the sources of family income, including the amount obtained from employment, including self employment; cash assistance or other assistance under IV-A of the Social Security Act; housing assistance; food stamps; and other public assistance; the number of months the family has received benefits; the type of care in which the child was enrolled; whether the provider was a relative; the cost of care; and the average hours per week of care.

Twice each year, the State must submit the following aggregate data to HHS: the number of providers separately identified in accord with each type of provider; the monthly cost of child care services and the portion of such cost paid with assistance from this Act by type of care; the number of payments by the State in vouchers, contracts, cash and disregards from public benefit programs by type of care; the manner in which consumer education information was provided and the number of parents who received it; and the total number of children and families served.

The Secretary must prepare and submit biennial reports rather than annual reports summarizing and analyzing information provided by the States.

Allotments

The bill maintains the current law set asides for the Territories and Indian tribes and tribal organizations except that the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands is deleted; the set aside for Indian tribes and tribal organizations and Native Hawaiian Organizations is 1 percent of the total funds for child care made available under this Act. Indian tribes are provided with a 1 percent set aside of all funds, both entitlement and appropriated, authorized by this section each year.

Definitions

Child care deposits are added as an allowable use of child care certificates. The definition of eligible child is revised to one whose family income does not exceed 85 percent of the State median, instead of 75 percent. The definition of relative child care provider is expanded.

Repeals

The bill repeals the following programs: Child Development Associate Scholarship Assistance; State Dependent Care Development Grants; Programs of national Significance under Title X of the Elementary and Secondary Education Assistance Act of 1965 and Native Hawaiian Family Based Education Centers; AFDC Child Care; Transitional Child Care; and At Risk Child Care.

SUBTITLE D—CHILD NUTRITION PROGRAMS

The Federal Government currently provides cash and commodity support to child nutrition programs serving over 30 million children and 1.5 million mothers. These programs provide Federal cash and commodities to States to distribute to institutions serving meals (or milk) to children in schools, in residential and nonresidential child care facilities and summer camps. They also provide aid to State health departments for supplemental nutrition programs for low-income women, infants and young children at nutritional risk. Additional Federal support is also provided for the State administrative costs of operating programs, nutrition education and training, studies, research and evaluations, dietary guidance, Federal review, and the operation of a Food Service Management Institute. Child nutrition programs include the school lunch, school breakfast, child care food, summer food service, special milk, nutrition education and training (NET), State administrative expenses, commodity distribution programs, and special supplemental nutrition program for women, infants and children.

Over the years, as the number of Federal nutrition programs has grown, so too have the number of Federal, regulations and administrative and operating requirements for them. There are now some 30 different reimbursement rates for lunches and/or suppers, breakfasts, meal supplements (snacks) served to children in schools and child care facilities, summer programs, universities participating in athletic programs for lower income children, and homeless shelters. New reporting requirements have been added without old ones being deleted. The result is that far too much time and money is spent on serving paperwork requirements rather than serving food.

The committee has heard testimony concerning the detailed and burdensome regulations which currently govern the various child nutrition programs Marilyn Hurt, Food Service Supervisor, School District of LaCrosse, Wisconsin testified:

The first thing that seems to me that needs to be addressed is the whole process of collecting, reviewing, sorting, and tracking the income of the families who apply for the meal benefits. Surely there are other agencies who are gathering and tracking the very same data. You know, I have one 10-month employee in my office that is there just to keep track of this information and see that it is all in order for an audit. It used to be that at the beginning of the school year for the first 2 months all of us in the office really concentrated on the information with income and collecting that data. But now we must continually update that information, so it is become a full-time position.

Secondly, we need to have one program, and you heard it mentioned here this morning already, to use a popular word in our business, a seamless program.

I brought with me the file that we have to turn in order to have the summer food service program in nine sites in LaCrosse for a five-week program. This is what we send into the State of Wisconsin in order to have that program. As you can see, it takes a great deal of time to fill out all of those forms. We need one contract for all programs with one set of rules. We also need to eliminate some of the burdensome rules that are not friendly to children. For example, checking their plates at the end of the line to see that they have at least three items on their plate. That is no way to teach children how to eat. They glare at us when we tell them, you need to go back for one more item, then they go get that item and later when they go to dump their tray, they throw it away.

We would much rather be teaching children how to make the right choices, and then they are much more likely, we have learned from our experience, to take all the items and to consume them.

The committee believes that States and local providers shall be given relief from the myriad of Federal requirements and restrictions that currently often force States and local agencies to spend nearly as much time on paperwork and administration as they spend on feeding hungry children. The committee has previously proposed substantial reforms to address these problems. The current legislation begins to address them by eliminating duplicative requirements, outdated provisions, and excessive paperwork requirements, and easing certain State and local operating requirements which restrict local flexibility in serving the needs of program participants.

Easing administrative and paperwork burdens

The bill reduces administrative tasks by: removing a range of requirements as to State obligations to provide training, technical assistance, and “outreach” information; making clear that all program records need only be available for inspection at “reasonable” times; dropping a requirement for annual announcements of eligibility standards; reducing the number and scope of State plan requirements for the Summer Food Service program; eliminating specific requirements on how States process applications for the Child Care Food program; and removing numerous detailed requirements for how State nutrition education coordinators carry out their job.

The bill lessens paperwork burdens with amendments that: permit schools to file revisions to their free and reduced price “policy statements” only when there is a substantial change in policy, not annually; allow States to submit only substantive changes in their plans for using State administrative expense funds, not annual State plans; and drops requirement for monthly State reports on school lunch program participation.

Giving States and schools more control over program operations

The bill facilitates the process of receiving waivers from Federal rules, reduces restrictions on what types of rules can be waived, allows schools to use the “offer versus serve” option in the Summer Food Service program; deletes permission for the Secretary to deny funding for State administrative expenses simply because a State does not agree to participate in a Federal study or survey; and eliminates Federal mandates on how schools use commodity assistance.

Removing unnecessary and out-of-date provisions of law

The bill eliminates numerous unneeded provisions, such as directives that the Secretary and the States carry out the Summer Food Service and Child Care Food programs so as to “expand” them, funding for a food assistance “information clearinghouse,” unnecessarily detailed provisions governing the use of Nutrition Education and Training funds, and a requirement that cereal and shortening and oil products be among commodities given to schools. In addition, it eliminates out-of-date provisions of law, provisions that simply repeat policies laid out elsewhere in child nutrition laws, and authority for six pilot projects and grant programs that have not been implemented.

Tightening program rules

The bill makes three changes in law that will improve the integrity of the Child Care Food program and the Summer Food Service program. It prohibits payments to sponsors of family day care homes in the Child Care Food program if they base payments to employees on the number of homes they recruit. It eliminates a current requirement for advance monthly payments of Federal subsidies to service institutions in the Child Care Food program, leaving it to States to judge if these payments are appropriate. Third, changes Summer Food Service program rules for National Youth Sports program sponsors to limit their Federal reimbursements to operations during the summer months, reduce the especially high subsidies they receive, and require that participating children be from low-income areas or meet an income test.

In addition, the committee has been instructed to report legislation to the Budget Committee reducing anticipated expenditures by $3.0 billion between 1997 and 2002. The committee proposes the following changes to achieve those savings:

Focusing the child care food program on those in greater need

The committee believes that, as Congress attempts to bring the Federal budget under control, we should insure that programs designed to serve the needy are in fact targeted to those families in need. As a step in this direction, Subtitle D implements a two-tiered reimbursement structure for the Child and Adult Care Food Programs for programs operated in family day care homes and group homes. The Congressional Budget Office has estimated that three-fourths of the families that receive food assistance in family day care homes do not qualify as low income. Unlike assistance provided to children in day care centers who participate in this program, benefits in family day care homes are not means tested and providers receive the same benefits for children from middle and upper income families as they do for low income, needy children. The family day care food program is the only Federal nutrition program not currently means tested.

The committee has, therefore, provided a two-tier structure which provides lower reimbursements for meals served to children in family day care homes operated in middle and upper income areas. Federal subsidies for family day care homes would be restructured by lowering subsidies for homes in middle and higher income. Currently family day care homes receive a flat reimbursement rate for meals and snacks. They receive $1.50 for lunch; $.82 for breakfast and $.4475 cents per snack. Under H.R. 3507, there would be a two-tier reimbursement program. Tier I (homes with one half of children in an area from families with income below 185 percent of poverty or an area served by a school where 50 percent of students are eligible for free and reduced price meals or operated by a provider whose income is below 185 percent of poverty) would receive current reimbursements. Tier II (all other homes) would receive reimbursement of $.90 for lunch, $.25 for breakfast and $.10 for supplements. However, in order to insure that higher reimbursements are available for low income children who may be cared for in homes in higher income areas, the committee permits such providers to file individual applications for such children in order to receive higher reimbursements.

Nutrition education and training program

The committee recognizes the importance of the activities carried out under the Nutrition Education and Training Program. The committee believes, however, that this program should be discretionary spending rather than mandatory, so that the option exists to reduce spending for activities carried out under this program rather than making additional changes to programs providing actual nutrition assistance to children. The committee does believe it is important for children to receive information as to the types of foods they need to eat in order to stay healthy and active. This modification in no way indicates a lack of support for funding this program should the funds be available to continue to carry out such activities.

Start-up and expansion grants

Subtitle D eliminates funding for school breakfast and summer food service start-up grants. The breakfast start-up program was instituted on a discretionary basis in 1989 to provide an incentive for schools to participate in the school breakfast program. Since that time, most States have enacted laws requiring schools with significant percentages of low-income students to participate in the school breakfast program. Approximately two-thirds of the schools participating in the school lunch program now also participate in the breakfast program. This program has served its purpose.

Modifying reimbursement rates in the summer food service program

Reimbursement rates for meals served under the Summer Food Service Program are substantially higher than the reimbursement rates for free meals served in schools and child care centers. In addition, service institutions participating in the Summer Food Service Program receive a per-meal administrative reimbursement while schools and centers do not. This change will reduce the disparity in meal reimbursements among these programs.

WIC-related provisions

The amendments in the committee's bill related to the Special Supplemental Nutritional Program for Women, Infants and Children (the WIC program) reduce current prescriptive administrative requirements on State and local agencies, freeing them to devote resources to accomplishing their primary goal—providing assistance to participating women, infants and children at nutritional risk. They also eliminate a number of unneeded or out-of-date provisions of the law and include an important change that will improve the integrity of the WIC program—WIC vendors that have been disqualified for participation in the Food Stamp Program will be disqualified for WIC participation.

Reducing prescriptive requirements on State and local WIC agencies

The bill eases State plan requirements by limiting the Secretary's authority to add plan requirements beyond those in law (requiring that he justify any additions as "reasonable") and by allowing States to submit only substantive changes in their plans for approval.

The bill lessens Federal administrative requirements on States: ending a mandate for annual evaluations of nutrition education and breastfeeding promotion/support activities; eliminating Federal rules for staffing; providing that States (and local agencies) only be required to make WIC records available at "reasonable" times; and removing a requirement that States applying to convert WIC food funds to administration estimate the increased participation that will result and how they did the estimate.

The bill removes requirements for, or makes optional, a number of activities that can divert State and local resources from direct provision of WIC benefits: Specific requirements, other than Medicaid, on how to provide information about, refer people to, or coordinate with other programs; directives for drug abuse education; and requirements for services and materials in languages other than English. The bill allows State and local health agencies to judge what resources they have (and how much need there is) for these activities.

Finally, the bill eliminates several sets of overly specific mandates that micromanage how States are to carry out Federal requirements: those for enrolling those who are working, living in rural areas, or eligible, but not, participating; those for processing local agency applications for participation; those calling for public dissemination information about the WIC program; and those governing the content of WIC notices of suspension or termination.

Eliminating unneeded and out-of-date provisions

The Child Nutrition Act contains numerous, unnecessary and out-of-date provisions related to the WIC program. The bill removes requirements that the Secretary promote the WIC program (since the program is already serving almost all the total estimated eligible population) and promotes cost containment procedures and promotes joint purchases of State infant formula, a well established procedure; it eliminates specific Secretarial requirements proscribing bidding procedures on infant formula; and it repeals eight unused or out-of-date provisions of current law.

SUBTITLE E—RELATED PROVISIONS

The committee adopted two amendments which are included on Subtitle E. The first deals with the collection of data on poverty for use in various programs of the committee. The second expresses the sense of Congress that welfare reform should not increase child poverty.

Background on poverty data provision

Poverty data are used to allocate more than $20 billion in Federal funds to State and local governments each year. Currently, the only reliable source of this data below the national level is the decennial census.

The Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce does produce annual estimates of the number of people in poverty for the Nation as a whole. The Census bureau also reports State level poverty estimates each year, but does not consider those estimates to be sufficiently reliable for programmatic purposes.

Because intercensal small area poverty estimates are not currently available, Congress and the administration are forced to rely on small area poverty data which may be up to 13 years old. This presents enormous problems for the formulation of sound and coherent policy at the Federal level, and often results in large shifts of funding to State and local governments every 10 to 13 years. These shifts often have a destabilizing effect on program operations. Clearly, there is a need for more up to date estimates on poverty at the State and local level. Subtitle E will provide a much needed tool.

Explanation

Poverty data are used to allocate more than $20 billion in Federal funds to State and local governments every year. Currently, the only reliable source of this data below the national level is the decennial census.

The Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce does produce annual estimates of the number of people in poverty for the Nation as a whole. The Census Bureau also reports State level poverty estimates each year, but does not consider those estimates to be sufficiently reliable for programmatic purposes.

Because current intercensal small area poverty data is not available, Congress and the administration must rely on data which may be up to 13 years old. This presents enormous problems for the formulation of sound and coherent policy at the Federal level, and often results in large shifts of funding to State and local governments every 10 to 13 years. These shifts often have a destabilizing effect on program operations.

Clearly, there is a need for more up to date estimates on poverty at the State and local level. Subtitle E will give us this much needed tool.

The committee believes that accurate statistical information measuring the social, economic, and demographic characteristics of program recipients over time will be important to its ability to assess the effects of changes in the law. Of particular value would be aggregate measures of the depth, duration, and disparity of poverty, including statistics on: the level and duration of participation in assistance programs, as well as the causes and consequences of any changes in these indicators; the economic circumstances and the family structure of recipient households, the timing of poverty in the cycle of family development, and changes in these characteristics; and demographic data such as race, ethnicity, age, and educational attainment of beneficiaries.

The committee notes that Title I of HR 3507, as considered by the House Committee on Ways and Means, requires the collection of data describing the demographic characteristics of program recipients. To maximize the usefulness of such data, it must be compiled in a useful form. The committee therefore urges that data collected under this legislation include the aggregation of data for the purposes of program evaluation and future policy development.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Section 3001 includes the Short Title of this title.

Section 3002 includes the Table of Contents of this title.

SUBTITLE A—WORK REQUIREMENTS

Section 3101(a) strikes Part F of Title IV the Social Security Act (the JOBS program) and inserts a new part F—Mandatory Work requirements.

“Section 481(a)(1) declares that the work requirements are applicable to all families receiving cash assistance under Part A of the Social Security Act and sets forth the requirement that States meet minimum participation rates in work programs with respect to all families receiving assistance under the State program funded under Part A of the Social Security Act. These rates are as follows: 1996—20 percent; 1997—25 percent; 1998—30 percent; 1999—35 percent; 2000—40 percent; 2001—45 percent; 2002 or thereafter—50 percent.

“Section 481(a)(2) sets additional mandatory work requirements for at least one parent in a two-parent family. These rates are as follows: 1996—50 percent; 1997—75 percent; 1998—75 percent; 1999 or thereafter—90 percent.

“Section 481(b)(1) defines how States shall calculate their monthly work participation rate for all families receiving cash assistance.

“Section 481(b)(2) defines how States shall calculate their monthly work participation rate for two-parent families.

“Section 481(b)(3) requires the Secretary of HHS to prescribe regulations to allow States to receive credit for welfare caseload reduction for the purposes of meeting the participation requirements. States are allowed to count net reductions in the caseload below the 1995 baseline as participation, but are not allowed to the extent the Secretary determines that the reduction in the number of families receiving such assistance is required by Federal law.

“Section 481(b)(4) provides States the option of not requiring a recipient who is a single custodial parent caring for a child under age 1 from engaging in work and allows States to disregard such individuals for purposes of calculating State participation rates.

“Section 481(c)(1) defines what constitutes ‘engaged’ in work” for the purposes of counting towards a States participation rate. Specifically, a recipient must be participating, and making progress in work activities (as defined), for a minimum average number of hours for any given year. For 1996 through 1998, the minimum is 20 hours; the years after that it rises accordingly: 1999—25; 2000—30; 2001—30; 2002—35 hours per week. In those years where the minimum number of hours exceeds 20, the additional required hours for single-parents may be attributable to an education or work-related training activity.

“Section 481(c)(2) An adult in a 2-parent family must make progress in work activities for at least 35 hours per week, not fewer than 30 hours must be attributable to work activities, the remaining hours may be attributable to education or job training activities.

“Section 481(c)(3) limits the number of weeks for which job search counts towards an individual’s work requirement to 4 weeks, except for those States where the unemployment rate is higher than the national average, in which case the State may allow up to 12 weeks of job search.

“Section 481(c)(4) limits the extent to which States may count participants engaged in vocational education towards their work participation rate. Not more than 20 percent of adults in all families and in 2-parent families (combined) determined to be engaged in work in the State for a month may meet the work activity requirement through participation in vocational education training.

“Section 481(c)(5) allows recipients in single parent families with a child under 6 to be considered meeting the work participation requirements if such recipient works an average of 20 hours per week.

“Section 481(c)(6) deems a teen head of household to be meeting the work participation requirement if such individual maintains satisfactory school attendance or participates in education directly related to employment for the minimum required number of hours.

“Section 481(d) defines ‘work activities’ for purposes of constituting participation. Specifically, work activities are defined as: unsubsidized employment; subsidized private sector employment; subsidized public sector employment or work experience (if sufficient private sector employment is not available); on-the-job training; community service programs and with limitations as previously noted: job search and job readiness assistance; and vocational education training (not to exceed 12 months with respect to any individual). In addition, the following activities are permissible (to the extent previously noted)—job skills training directly related to employment; education directly related to employment, in the case of a recipient who has not received a high school diploma or its equivalent; and satisfactory attendance at secondary school, in the case of a recipient who has not completed secondary school.

“Section 481(e)(1) includes application requirements for States to be eligible for a supplemental grant.

“Section 481(e)(3) allows for the Secretary to issue regulations providing for the equitable distribution of grant funds.

“Section 481(f) sets forth penalties for States and individuals not meeting the requirements of this part.

“Section 481(g) includes language related to nondisplacement of current workers by recipients engaged in work under this section.

“Section 481(h) is a sense of the Congress, that in complying with the mandatory work requirements, States should assign the highest priority to requiring families that include older preschool or school age children to be engaged in work activities.

“Section 481(i) is a sense of the Congress that States should require noncustodial, nonsupporting minor parents under the age of 18, to fulfill community work obligations and attend appropriate parenting or money management classes after school.

“Section 482(a) requires States to make an initial skill and employability assessment of each recipient.

“Section 482(c) requires the State to inform all applicants and recipients of assistance to all available services for which such individual is eligible.

“Section 482(d) sets forth penalties for individuals who fail, with good cause, to comply with a signed individual plan.

“Section 482(e) states that the exercise of authority of this section shall be within the sole discretion of the State.”

Section 3101(b) includes conforming amendments.

THE COMMITTEE

In compliance with clause 2(1)(3)(A) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives and clause 2(b)(1) of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the committee's oversight findings and recommendations are reflected in the body of this report.

INFLATIONARY IMPACT STATEMENT

In compliance with clause 2(1)(4) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the committee estimates that the enactment into law of the committee recommendations will have no significant inflationary impact on prices and costs in the operation of the national economy. It is the judgment of the committee that the inflationary impact of this legislation as a component of the Federal budget is negligible.

GOVERNMENT REFORM AND OVERSIGHT

With respect to the requirement of clause 2(1)(3)(D) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the committee has received no report of oversight findings and recommendations from the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight on the subject of the committee recommendations.

The committee received a letter regarding unfunded mandates from the Director of the Congressional Budget Office. PART A—AID TO FAMILIES WITH DEPENDENT CHILDREN

* * * * *

STATE PLANS FOR AID AND SERVICES TO NEEDY FAMILIES WITH CHILDREN

SEC. 402. (a) A State plan for aid and services to needy families with children must—

(1) * * *

* * * * *

(9) provide safeguards which restrict the use or disclosure of information concerning applicants or recipients to purposes directly connected with (A) the administration of the plan of the State approved under this part [(including activities under part F)], the plan or program of the State under part B, D, or E of this title or under title I, X, XIV, XVI, XIX, or XX, or the supplemental security income program established by title XVI, (B) any investigation, prosecution, or criminal or civil proceeding, conducted in connection with the administration of any such plan or program, (C) the administration of any other Federal or federally assisted program which provides assistance, in cash or in kind, or services, directly to individuals on the basis of need, (D) any audit or similar activity conducted in connection with the administration of any such plan or program by any governmental entity which is authorized by law to conduct such audit or activity, and (E) reporting and providing information pursuant to paragraph (16) to appropriate authorities with respect to known or suspected child abuse or neglect; and the safeguards so provided shall prohibit disclosure, to any committee or legislative body (other than an entity referred to in clause (D) with respect to an activity referred to in such clause), of any information which identifies by name or address any such applicant or recipient; but such safeguards shall not prevent the State agency or the local agency responsible for the administration of the State plan in the locality (whether or not the State has enacted legislation allowing public access to Federal welfare records) from furnishing a State or local law enforcement officer, upon his request, with the current address of any recipient if the officer furnishes the agency with such recipient's name and social security account number and satisfactorily demonstrates that such recipient is a fugitive felon, that the location or apprehension of such felon is within the officer's official duties, and that the request is made in the proper exercise of those duties;

* * * * *

[(19) provide—

[(A) that the State has in effect and operation a job opportunities and basic skills training program which meets the requirements of part F;

[(B) that—

[(i) the State will (except as otherwise provided in this paragraph or part F), to the extent that the program is available in the political subdivision involved and State resources otherwise permit—

[(I) require all recipients of aid to families with dependent children in such subdivision with respect to whom the State guarantees child care in accordance with section 402(g) to participate in the program; and

[(II) allow applicants for and recipients of aid to families with dependent children (and individuals who would be recipients of such aid if the State had not exercised the option under section 407(b)(2)(B)(i)) who are not required under subclause (I) to participate in the program to do so on a voluntary basis;

[(ii) in determining the priority of participation by individuals from among those groups described in clauses (i), (ii), (iii), and (iv) of section 403(1)(2)(B), the State will give first consideration to applicants for or recipients of aid to families with dependent children within any such group who volunteer to participate in the program;

[(iii) if an exempt participant drops out of the program without good cause after having commenced participation in the program, he or she shall thereafter not be given priority so long as other individuals are actively seeking to participate; and

[(iv) the State need not require or allow participation of an individual in the program if as a result of such participation the amount payable to the State for quarters in a fiscal year with respect to the program would be reduced pursuant to section 403(1)(2);

[(C) that an individual may not be required to participate in the program if such individual—

[(i) is ill, incapacitated, or of advanced age;

[(ii) is needed in the home because of the illness or incapacity of another member of the household;

[(iii) subject to subparagraph (D)—

[(I) is the parent or other relative of a child under 3 years of age (or, if so provided in the State plan, under any age that is less than 3 years but not less than one year) who is personally providing care for the child, or

[(II) is the parent or other relative personally providing care for a child under 6 years of age, unless the State assures that child care in accordance with section 402(g) will be guaranteed and that participation in the program by the parent or relative will not be required for more than 20 hours a week;

[(iv) works 30 or more hours a week;

[(v) is a child who is under age 16 or attends, full-time, an elementary, secondary, or vocational (or technical) school;

[(vi) is pregnant if it has been medically verified that the child is expected to be born in the month in which such participation would otherwise be required or within the 6-month period immediately following such month; or

[(vii) resides in an area of the State where the program is not available;

[(D) that, in the case of a family eligible for aid to families with dependent children by reason of the unemployment of the parent who is the principal earner, subparagraph (C)(iii) shall apply only to one parent, except that, in the case of such a family, the State may at its option make such subparagraph inapplicable to both of the parents (and require their participation in the program) if child care in accordance with section 402(g) is guaranteed with respect to the family;

[(E) that—

[(i) to the extent that the program is available in the political subdivision involved and State resources otherwise permit, in the case of a custodial parent who has not attained 20 years of age, has not successfully completed a high-school education (or its equivalent), and is required to participate in the program (including an individual who would otherwise be exempt from participation in the program solely by reason of subparagraph (C)(iii)), the State agency (subject to clause (ii)) will require such parent to participate in an educational activity; and

[(ii) the State agency may—

[(I) require a parent described in clause (i) (notwithstanding the part-time requirement in subparagraph (C)(iii)(II)) to participate in educational activities directed toward the attainment of a high school diploma or its equivalent on a full-time (as defined by the educational provider) basis,

[(II) establish criteria in accordance with regulations of the Secretary under which custodial parents described in clause (i) who have not attained 18 years of age may be exempted from the school attendance requirement under such clause, or

[(III) require a parent described in clause (i) who is age 18 or 19 to participate in training or work activities (in lieu of the educational activities under such clause) if such parent fails to make good progress in successfully completing such educational activities or if it is determined (prior to any assignment of the individual to such educational activities) pursuant to an educational assessment that participation in such educational activities is inappropriate for such parent;

[(F) that—

[(i) if the parent or other caretaker relative or any dependent child in the family is attending (in good standing) an institution of higher education (as defined in section 481(a) of the Higher Education Act of 1965), or a school or course of vocational or technical training (not less than half time) consistent with the individual's employment goals, and is making satisfactory progress in such institution, school, or course, at the time he or she would otherwise commence participation in the program under this section, such attendance may constitute satisfactory participation in the program (by that caretaker or child) so long as it continues and is consistent with such goals;

[(ii) any other activities in which an individual described in clause (i) participates may not be permitted to interfere with the school or training described in that clause;

[(iii) the costs of such school or training shall not constitute federally reimbursable expenses for purposes of section 403; and

[(iv) the costs of day care, transportation, and other services which are necessary (as determined by the State agency) for such attendance in accordance with section 402(g) are eligible for Federal reimbursement;

[(G) that—

[(i) if an individual who is required by the provisions of this paragraph to participate in the program or who is so required by reason of the State's having exercised the option under subparagraph (D) fails without good cause to participate in the program or refuses without good cause to accept employment in which such individual is able to engage which is offered through the public employment offices of the State, or is otherwise offered by an employer if the offer of such employer is determined to be a bona fide offer of employment—

[(I) the needs of such individual (whether or not section 407 applies) shall not be taken into account in making the determination with respect to his or her family under paragraph (7) of this subsection, and if such individual is a parent or other caretaker relative, payments of aid for any dependent child in the family in the form of payments of the type described in section 406(b)(2) (which in such a case shall be without regard to clauses (A) through (D) thereof) will be made unless the State agency, after making reasonable efforts, is unable to locate an appropriate individual to whom such payments can be made; and

[(II) if such individual is a member of a family which is eligible for aid to families with dependent children by reason of section 407, and his or her spouse is not participating in the program, the needs of such spouse shall also not be taken into account in making such determination;

[(ii) any sanction described in clause (i) shall continue—

[(I) in the case of the individual's first failure to comply, until the failure to comply ceases;

[(II) in the case of the individual's second failure to comply, until the failure to comply ceases or 3 months (whichever is longer); and

[(III) in the case of any subsequent failure to comply, until the failure to comply ceases or 6 months (whichever is longer);

[(iii) the State will promptly remind any individual whose failure to comply has continued for 3 months, in writing, of the individual's option to end the sanction by terminating such failure; and

[(iv) no sanction shall be imposed under this subparagraph—

[(I) on the basis of the refusal of an individual described in subparagraph (C)(iii)(II) to accept employment, if the employment would require such individual to work more than 20 hours a week, or

[(II) on the basis of the refusal of an individual to participate in the program or accept employment, if child care (or day care for any incapacitated individual living in the same home as a dependent child) is necessary for an individual to participate in the program or accept employment, such care is not available, and the State agency fails to provide such care; and

[(H) the State agency may require a participant in the program to accept a job only if such agency assures that the family of such participant will experience no net loss of cash income resulting from acceptance of the job; and any costs incurred by the State agency as a result of this subparagraph shall be treated as expenditures with respect to which section 403(a)(1) or 403(a)(2) applies;]

* * * * *

(44) provide that the State agency shall—

(A) be responsible for assuring that the benefits and services under the programs under this part[, part D, and part F] and part D are furnished in an integrated manner, and

* * * * *

[(g)(1)(A)(i) Each State agency must guarantee child care in accordance with subparagraph (B)—

[(I) for each family with a dependent child requiring such care, to the extent that such care is determined by the State agency to be necessary for an individual in the family to accept employment or remain employed; and

[(II) for each individual participating in an education and training activity (including participation in a program that meets the requirements of subsection (a)(19) and part F) if the State agency approves the activity and determines that the individual is satisfactorily participating in the activity.

[(ii) Each State agency must guarantee child care, subject to the limitations described in this section, to the extent that such care is determined by the State agency to be necessary for an individual's employment in any case where a family has ceased to receive aid to families with dependent children as a result of increased hours of, or increased income from, such employment or by reason of subsection (a)(8)(B)(ii)(II).

[(iii) A family shall only be eligible for child care provided under clause (ii) for a period of 12 months after the last month for which the family received aid to families with dependent children under this part.

[(iv) A family shall not be eligible for child care provided under clause (ii) unless the family received aid to families with dependent children in at least 3 of the 6 months immediately preceding the month in which the family became ineligible for such aid.

[(v) A family shall not be eligible for child care provided under clause (ii) unless the family includes a child who is (or, if needy, would be) a dependent child.

[(vi) A family shall not be eligible for child care provided under clause (ii) for any month beginning after the caretaker relative who is a member of the family has—

[(I) without good cause, terminated his or her employment; or

[(II) refused to cooperate with the State in establishing and enforcing his or her child support obligations, without good cause as determined by the State agency in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary which shall take into consideration the best interests of the child for whom child care is to be provided.

[(vii) A family shall contribute to child care provided under clause (ii) in accordance with a sliding scale formula which shall be established by the State agency based on the family's ability to pay.

[(B) The State agency may guarantee child care by—

[(i) providing such care directly;

[(ii) arranging the care through providers by use of purchase of service contracts, or vouchers;

[(iii) providing cash or vouchers in advance to the caretaker relative in the family;

[(iv) reimbursing the caretaker relative in the family; or(v) adopting such other arrangements as the agency deems appropriate.

When the State agency arranges for child care, the agency shall take into account the individual needs of the child.

[(C)(i) Subject to clause (ii), the State agency shall make payment for the cost of child care provided with respect to a family in an amount that is the lesser of—

[(I) the actual cost of such care; and

[(II) the dollar amount of the child care disregarded for which the family is otherwise eligible under subsection (a)(8)(A)(iii), or (if higher) an amount established by the State.

[(ii) The State agency may not reimburse the cost of child care provided with respect to a family in an amount that is greater than the applicable local market rate (as determined by the State in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary).

[(D) The State may not make any change in its method of reimbursing child care costs which has the effect of disadvantaging families receiving aid under the State plan on the date of the enactment of this section by reducing their income or otherwise.

[(E) The value of any child care provided or arranged (or any amount received as payment for such care or reimbursement for costs incurred for the care) under this paragraph—

[(i) shall not be treated as income for purposes of any other Federal or federally-assisted program that bases eligibility for or the amount of benefits upon need, and

[(ii) may not be claimed as an employment-related expense for purposes of the credit under section 21 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

[(2) In the case of any individual participating in the program under part F, each State agency (in addition to guaranteeing child care under paragraph (1)) shall provide payment or reimbursement for such transportation and other work-related expenses (including other work-related supportive services), as the State determines are necessary to enable such individual to participate in such program.

[(3)(A)(i) In the case of amounts expended for child care pursuant to paragraph (1)(A) by any State to which section 1108 does not apply, the applicable rate for purposes of section 403(a) shall be the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1905(b)).

[(ii) In the case of amounts expended for child care pursuant to paragraph (1)(A)(ii) (relating to the provision of child care for certain families which cease to receive aid under this part) by any State to which section 1108 applies, the applicable rate for purposes of section 403(a) shall be the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1118).

[(B) In the case of any amounts expended by the State agency for child care under this subsection, only such amounts as are within such limits as the State may prescribe (subject to the limitations of paragraph (1)(C)) shall be treated as amounts for which payment may be made to a State under this part and they may be so treated only to the extent that—

[(i) such amounts do not exceed the applicable local market rate (as determined by the State in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary);

[(ii) the child care involved meets applicable standards of State and local law; and(iii) in the case of child care, the entity providing such care allows parental access.

[(4) The State must establish procedures to ensure that center-based child care will be subject to State and local requirements designed to ensure basic health and safety, including fire safety, protections. The State must also endeavor to develop guidelines for family day care. The State must provide the Secretary with a description of such State and local requirements and guidelines.

[(5) By October 1, 1992, the Secretary shall report to the Congress on the nature and content of State and local standards for health and safety.

[(6)(A) The Secretary shall make grants to States to improve their child care licensing and registration requirements and procedures, to enforce standards with respect to child care provided to children under this part, and to provide for the training of child care providers.

[(B) Subject to subparagraph (C), the Secretary shall make grants to each State under subparagraph (A) in proportion to the number of children in the State receiving aid under the State plan approved under subsection (a).

[(C) The Secretary may not make grants to a State under subparagraph (A) unless the State provides matching funds in an amount that is not less than 10 percent of the amount of the grant.

[(D) For grants under this paragraph, there is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary $13,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1990 and 1991, and $50,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1992, 1993, and 1994.

[(E) Each State to which the Secretary makes a grant under this paragraph shall expend not less than 50 percent of the amount of the grant to provide for the training of child care providers.

[(7) Activities under this subsection and subsection (i) shall be coordinated in each State with existing early childhood education programs in that State, including Head Start programs, preschool programs funded under chapter 1 of the Education Consolidation and Improvement Act of 1981, and school and nonprofit child care programs (including community-based organizations receiving funds designated for preschool programs for handicapped children).]

[(i)(1) Each State agency may, to the extent that it determines that resources are available, provide child care in accordance with paragraph (2) to any low income family that the State determines—

[(A) is not receiving aid under the State plan approved under this part;

[(B) needs such care in order to work; and

[(C) would be at risk of becoming eligible for aid under the State plan approved under this part if such care were not provided.

[(2) The State agency may provide child care pursuant to paragraph (1) by—

- [(A) providing such care directly;
- [(B) arranging such care through providers by use of purchase of service contracts or vouchers;
- [(C) providing cash or vouchers in advance to the family;
- [(D) reimbursing the family; or(E) adopting such other arrangements as the agency deems appropriate.

[(3)(A) A family provided with child care under paragraph (1) shall contribute to such care in accordance with a sliding scale formula established by the State agency based on the family's ability to pay.

[(B) The State agency shall make payment for the cost of child care provided under paragraph (1) with respect to a family in an amount that is the lesser of—

- [(i) the actual cost of such care; and
- [(ii) the applicable local market rate (as determined by the State in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary).

[(4) The value of any child care provided or arranged (or any amount received as payment for such care or reimbursement for costs incurred for the care) under this subsection—

[(A) shall not be treated as income or as a deductible expense for purposes of any other Federal or federally assisted program that bases eligibility for or amount of benefits upon need; and

[(B) may not be claimed as an employment-related expense for purposes of the credit under section 21 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

[(5) Amounts expended by the State agency for child care under paragraph (1) shall be treated as amounts for which payment may be made to a State under section 403(n) only to the extent that—

[(A) such amounts are paid in accordance with paragraph (3)(B);

[(B) the care involved meets applicable standards of State and local law;

[(C) the provider of the care—

[(i) in the case of a provider who is not an individual that provides such care solely to members of the family of the individual, is licensed, regulated, or registered by the State or locality in which the care is provided; and

[(ii) allows parental access; and(D) such amounts are not used to supplant any other Federal or State funds used for child care services.

[(6)(A)(i) Each State shall prepare reports annually, beginning with fiscal year 1993, on the activities of the State carried out with funds made available under section 403(n).

[(ii) The State shall make available for public inspection within the State copies of each report required by this paragraph, shall transmit a copy of each such report to the Secretary, and shall provide a copy of each such report, on request, to any interested public agency.

[(iii) The Secretary shall annually compile, and submit to the Congress, the State reports transmitted to the Secretary pursuant to clause (ii).

[(B) Each report prepared and transmitted by a State under subparagraph (A) shall set forth with respect to child care services provided under this subsection—

[(i) showing separately for center-based child care services, group home child care services, family child care services, and relative care services, the number of children who received such services and the average cost of such services;

[(ii) the criteria applied in determining eligibility or priority for receiving services, and sliding fee schedules;

[(iii) the child care licensing and regulatory (including registration) requirements in effect in the State with respect to each type of service specified in clause (i); and

[(iv) the enforcement policies and practices in effect in the State which apply to licensed and regulated child care providers (including providers required to register).

[(C) Within 12 months after the date of the enactment of this subsection, the Secretary shall establish uniform reporting requirements for use by the States in preparing the information required by this paragraph, and make such other provision as may be necessary or appropriate to ensure that compliance with this subsection will not be unduly burdensome on the States.

[(D) Not later than July 1, 1992, the Secretary shall issue a report on the implementation of this subsection, based on such information as has been made available to the Secretary by the States.]

PAYMENT TO STATES

SEC. 403. (a) * * *

* * * * *

[(k)(1) Each State with a plan approved under part F shall be entitled to payments under subsection (1) for any fiscal year in an amount equal to the sum of the applicable percentages (specified in such subsection) of its expenditures to carry out the program under part F (subject to limitations prescribed by or pursuant to such part or this section on expenditures that may be included for purposes of determining payment under subsection (1)), but such payments for any fiscal year in the case of any State may not exceed the limitation determined under paragraph (2) with respect to the State.

[(2) The limitation determined under this paragraph with respect to a State for any fiscal year is—

[(A) the amount allotted to the State for fiscal year 1987 under part C of this title as then in effect, plus

[(B) the amount that bears the same ratio to the amount specified in paragraph (3) for such fiscal year as the average monthly number of adult recipients (as defined in paragraph (4)) in the State in the preceding fiscal year bears to the average monthly number of such recipients in all the States for such preceding year.

[(3) The amount specified in this paragraph is—

[(A) $600,000,000 in the case of the fiscal year 1989,
 [(B) $800,000,000 in the case of the fiscal year 1990,
 [(C) $1,000,000,000 in the case of each of the fiscal years
 1991, 1992, and 1993,

[(D) $1,100,000,000 in the case of the fiscal year 1994, [(E) $1,300,000,000 in the case of the fiscal year 1995, reduced by an amount equal to the total of those funds that are within each State's limitation for fiscal year 1995 that are not necessary to pay such State's allowable claims for such fiscal year (except that such amount for such year shall be deemed to be $1,300,000,000 for the purpose of determining the amount of the payment under subsection (l) to which each State is entitled), and [(F) $1,000,000,000 in the case of the fiscal year 1996 and each succeeding fiscal year, reduced by an amount equal to the total of those funds that are within each State's limitation for fiscal year 1996 that are not necessary to pay such State's allowable claims for such fiscal year (except that such amount for such year shall be deemed to be $1,000,000,000 for the purpose of determining the amount of the payment under subsection (1) to which each State is entitled), reduced by the aggregate amount allotted to all the States for fiscal year 1987 pursuant to part C of this title as then in effect.

[(4) For purposes of this subsection, the term "adult recipient" in the case of any State means an individual other than a dependent child (unless such child is the custodial parent of another dependent child) whose needs are met (in whole or in part) with payments of aid to families with dependent children.

[(5) None of the funds available to a State for purposes of the programs or activities conducted under part F shall be used for construction.

[(1)(1)(A) In lieu of any payment under subsection (a), the Secretary shall pay to each State with a plan approved under section 482(a) (subject to the limitation determined under section 482(i)(2)) with respect to expenditures by the State to carry out a program under part F (including expenditures for child care under section 402(g)(1)(A)(i), but only in the case of a State with respect to which section 1108 applies), an amount equal to—

[(i) with respect to so much of such expenditures in a fiscal year as do not exceed the State's expenditures in the fiscal year 1987 with respect to which payments were made to such State from its allotment for such fiscal year pursuant to part
 C of this title as then in effect, 90 percent; and [(ii) with respect to so much of such expenditures in a fiscal year as exceed the amount described in clause (i)—

[(I) 50 percent, in the case of expenditures for administrative costs made by a State in operating such a program for such fiscal year (other than the personnel costs for staff employed full-time in the operation of such program) and the costs of transportation and other work-related supportive services under section 402(g)(2), and [(II) the greater of 60 percent or the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1118 in the case of any State to which section 1108 applies, or as defined in section 1905(b) in the case of any other State), in the case of expenditures made by a State in operating such a program for such fiscal year (other than for costs described in subclause (I)).

[(B) With respect to the amount for which payment is made to a State under subparagraph (A)(i), the State's expenditures for the costs of operating a program established under part F may be in cash or in kind, fairly evaluated.

[(2)(A) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the Secretary shall pay to a State an amount equal to 50 percent of the expenditures made by such State in operating its program established under part F (in lieu of any different percentage specified in paragraph (1)(A)) if less than 55 percent of such expenditures are made with respect to individuals who are described in subparagraph (B).

[(B) An individual is described in this paragraph if the individual—

[(i)(I) is receiving aid to families with dependent children, and

[(II) has received such aid for any 36 of the preceding 60 months;

[(ii)(I) makes application for aid to families with dependent children, and

[(II) has received such aid for any 36 of the 60 months immediately preceding the most recent month for which application has been made;

[(iii) is a custodial parent under the age of 24 who (I) has not completed a high school education and, at the time of application for aid to families with dependent children, is not enrolled in high school (or a high school equivalency course of instruction), or (II) had little or no work experience in the preceding year; or

[(iv) is a member of a family in which the youngest child is within 2 years of being ineligible for aid to families with dependent children because of age.

[(C) This paragraph may be waived by the Secretary with respect to any State which demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the characteristics of the caseload in that State make it infeasible to meet the requirements of this paragraph, and that the State is targeting other long-term or potential long-term recipients.

[(D) The Secretary shall biennially submit to the Congress any recommendations for modifications or additions to the groups of individuals described in subparagraph (B) that the Secretary determines would further the goal of assisting long-term or potential long-term recipients of aid to families with dependent children to achieve self-sufficiency, which recommendations shall take into account the particular characteristics of the populations of individual States.

[(3)(A) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the Secretary shall pay to a State an amount equal to 50 percent of the expenditures made by such State in a fiscal year in operating its program established under part F (in lieu of any different percentage specified in paragraph (1)(A)) if the State's participation rate (determined under subparagraph (B)) for the preceding fiscal year does not exceed or equal—

[(i) 7 percent if the preceding fiscal year is 1990;

[(ii) 7 percent if such year is 1991;

[(iii) 11 percent if such year is 1992;

[(iv) 11 percent if such year is 1993;

[(v) 15 percent if such year is 1994; and

[(vi) 20 percent if such year is 1995.

[(B)(i) The State's participation rate for a fiscal year shall be the average of its participation rates for computation periods (as defined in clause (ii)) in such fiscal year.

[(ii) The computation periods shall be—

[(I) the fiscal year, in the case of fiscal year 1990,

[(II) the first six months, and the seventh through twelfth months, in the case of fiscal year 1991,

[(III) the first three months, the fourth through sixth months, the seventh through ninth months, and the tenth through twelfth months, in the case of fiscal years 1992 and 1993, and

[(IV) each month, in the case of fiscal years 1994 and 1995.

[(iii) The State's participation rate for a computation period shall be the number, expressed as a percentage, equal to—

[(I) the average monthly number of individuals required or allowed by the State to participate in the program under part F who have participated in such program in months in the computation period, plus the number of individuals required or allowed by the State to participate in such program who have so participated in that month in such period for which the number of such participants is the greatest, divided by

[(II) twice the average monthly number of individuals required to participate in such period (other than individuals described in subparagraph (C)(iii)(I) or (D) of section 402(a)(19) with respect to whom the State has exercised its option to require their participation).

For purposes of this subparagraph, an individual shall not be considered to have satisfactorily participated in the program under part F solely by reason of such individual being registered to participate in such program.

[(C) Notwithstanding any other provision of this paragraph, no State shall be subject to payment under this paragraph (in lieu of paragraph (1)(A)) for failing to meet any participation rate required under this paragraph with respect to any fiscal year before 1991.

[(D) For purposes of this paragraph, an individual shall be determined to have participated in the program under part F, if such individual has participated in accordance with such requirements, consistent with regulations of the Secretary, as the State shall establish.

[(E) If the Secretary determines that the State has failed to achieve the participation rate for any fiscal year specified in the numbered clauses of subparagraph (A), he may waive, in whole or in part, the reduction in the payment rate otherwise required by such subparagraph if he finds that—

[(i) the State is in conformity with section 402(a)(19) and part F;

[(ii) the State has made a good faith effort to achieve the applicable participation rate for such fiscal year; and

[(iii) the State has submitted a proposal which is likely to achieve the applicable participation rate for the current fiscal year and the subsequent fiscal years (if any) specified therein.

[(4)(A)(i) Subject to subparagraph (B), in the case of any family eligible for aid to families with dependent children by reason of the unemployment of the parent who is the principal earner, the State agency shall require that at least one parent in any such family participate, for a total of at least 16 hours a week during any period in which either parent is required to participate in the program, in a work supplementation program, a community work experience or other work experience program, on-the-job training, or a State designed work program approved by the Secretary, as such programs are described in section 482(d)(1). In the case of a parent under age 25 who has not completed high school or an equivalent course of education, the State may require such parent to participate in educational activities directed at the attainment of a high school diploma (or equivalent) or another basic education program in lieu of one or more of the programs specified in the preceding sentence.

[(ii) For purposes of clause (i), an individual participating in a community work experience program under section 482 shall be considered to have met the requirement of such clause if he participates for the number of hours in any month equal to the monthly payment of aid to families with dependent children to the family of which he is a member, divided by the greater of the Federal or the applicable State minimum wage (and the portion of such monthly payment for which the State is reimbursed by a child support collection shall not be taken into account in determining the number of hours that such individual may be required to work).

[(B) The requirement under subparagraph (A) shall not be considered to have been met by any State if the requirement is not met with respect to the following percentages of all families in the State eligible for aid to families with dependent children by reason of the unemployment of the parent who is the principal earner:

[(i) 40 percent, in the case of the average of each month in fiscal year 1994,

[(ii) 50 percent, in the case of the average of each month in fiscal year 1995,

[(iii) 60 percent, in the case of the average of each month in fiscal year 1996, and

[(iv) 75 percent in the case of the average of each month in each of the fiscal years 1997 and 1998.

[(C) The percentage of participants for any month in a fiscal year for purposes of the preceding sentence shall equal the average of—

[(i) the number of individuals described in subparagraph (A)(i) who have met the requirement prescribed therein, divided by

[(ii) the total number of principal earners described in such subparagraph (but excluding those in families who have been recipients of aid for 2 months or less if, during the period that the family received aid, at least one parent engaged in intensive job search).

[(D) If the Secretary determines that the State has failed to meet the requirement under subparagraph (A) (determined with respect to the percentages prescribed in subparagraph (B)), he may waive, in whole or in part, any penalty if he finds that—

[(i) the State is operating a program in conformity with section 402(a)(19) and part F,

[(ii) the State has made a good faith effort to meet the requirement of subparagraph (A) but has been unable to do so because of economic conditions in the State (including significant numbers of recipients living in remote locations or isolated rural areas where the availability of work sites is severely limited), or because of rapid and substantial increases in the caseload that cannot reasonably be planned for, and

[(iii) the State has submitted a proposal which is likely to achieve the required percentage of participants for the subsequent fiscal years.]

* * * * *

[(n)(1) In addition to any payment under subsection (a) or (l), each State shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary of an amount equal to the lesser of—

[(A) the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1905(b)) of the expenditures by the State in providing child care services pursuant to section 402(i), and in administering the provision of such child care services, for any fiscal year; and

[(2)(A) The limitation determined under this paragraph with respect to a State for any fiscal year is the amount that bears the same ratio to the amount specified in subparagraph (B) for such fiscal year as the number of children residing in the State in the second preceding fiscal year bears to the number of children residing in the United States in the second preceding fiscal year.

[(B) The amount specified in this subparagraph is—

[(i) $300,000,000 for fiscal year 1991;

[(ii) $300,000,000 for fiscal year 1992;

[(iii) $300,000,000 for fiscal year 1993;

[(iv) $300,000,000 for fiscal year 1994; and

[(C) If the limitation determined under subparagraph (A) with respect to a State for a fiscal year exceeds the amount paid to the State under this subsection for the fiscal year, the limitation determined under this paragraph with respect to the State for the immediately succeeding fiscal year shall be increased by the amount of such excess.

[(3) Amounts appropriated for a fiscal year to carry out this part shall be made available for payments under this subsection for such fiscal year.]

(A) * * *

(B) shall provide—

【(i) for such assurances as will satisfy the Secretary that unemployed parents of dependent children as defined in subsection (a) will participate or apply for participation in a program under part F (unless the program is not available in the area where the parent is living) within 30 days after receipt of aid with respect to such children;】

【(ii) (i) for entering into cooperative arrangements with the State agency responsible for administering or supervising the administration of vocational education in the State, designed to assure maximum utilization of available public vocational education services and facilities in the State in order to encourage the retraining of individuals capable of being retrained;

【(iv) (iii) for the reduction of the aid to families with dependent children otherwise payable to any child or relative specified in subsection (a) by the amount of any unemployment compensation that such child's parent described in subparagraph (A)(i) receives under an unemployment compensation law of a State or of the United States【; and】.

【(v) that, if and for so long as the child's parent described in subparagraph (A)(i), unless meeting a condition of section 402(a)(19)(C), is, without good cause, not participating (or available for participation) in a program under part F, or if exempt under such section by reason of clause (vii) thereof or because there has not been established or provided under part F a program in which such parent can effectively participate, is not registered with the public employment offices in the State, the needs of such parent shall not be taken into account in determining the need of such parent's family under section 402(a)(7), and the needs of such parent's spouse shall not be so taken into account unless such spouse is participating in such a program, or if not participating solely by reason of section 402(a)(19)(C)(vii) or because there has not been established or provided under part F a program in which such spouse can effectively participate, is registered with the public

(2)(A) * * *

(B)(i) * * *

(ii)(I) A State may not limit the number of months under clause (i) for which a family may receive aid to families with dependent children unless it provides in its plan assurances to the Secretary that it has a program (that meets such requirements as the Secretary may in regulation prescribe) for providing education, training, and employment services 【(including any activity authorized under section 402(a)(19) or under part F)】 in order to assist parents of children described in subsection (a) in preparing for and obtaining employment.

(c) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this section, expenditures pursuant to this section shall be excluded from aid to families with dependent children 【(A)】 where such expenditures are made under the plan with respect to any dependent child as defined in subsection (a), (i) for any part of the 30-day period referred to in subsection (b)(1)(A)(i), or (ii) for any period prior to the time when the parent satisfies subsection (b)(1)(A)(ii)【, and (B) if, and for as long as, no action is taken (after the 30-day period referred to in subsection (b)(1)(B)(i), under the program therein specified, to undertake appropriate steps directed towards the participation of such parent in a program under part F】.

(d) For purposes of this section—

ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR FAMILY SUPPORT

SEC. 417. The programs under this part[, part D, and part F] and part D shall be administered by an Assistant Secretary for Family Support within the Department of Health and Human Services, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and who shall be in addition to any other Assistant Secretary of Health and Human Services provided for by law.

SEC. 418. FUNDING FOR CHILD CARE.

(a) GENERAL CHILD CARE ENTITLEMENT.—

(1) GENERAL ENTITLEMENT.—Subject to the amount appropriated under paragraph (3), each State shall, for the purpose of providing child care assistance, be entitled to payments under a grant under this subsection for a fiscal year in an amount equal to—

(A) the sum of the total amount required to be paid to the State under section 403 for fiscal year 1994 or 1995 (whichever is greater) with respect to amounts expended for child care under section—

(i) 402(g) of this Act (as such section was in effect before October 1, 1995); and

(ii) 402(i) of this Act (as so in effect); or

(B) the average of the total amounts required to be paid to the State for fiscal years 1992 through 1994 under the sections referred to in subparagraph (A); whichever is greater.

(2) REMAINDER.—

(A) GRANTS.—The Secretary shall use any amounts appropriated for a fiscal year under paragraph (3), and remaining after the reservation described in paragraph (4) and after grants are awarded under paragraph (1), to make grants to States under this paragraph.

(B) AMOUNT.—Subject to subparagraph (C), the amount of a grant awarded to a State for a fiscal year under this paragraph shall be based on the formula used for determining the amount of Federal payments to the State under section 403(n) (as such section was in effect before October 1, 1995).

(C) MATCHING REQUIREMENT.—The Secretary shall pay to each eligible State in a fiscal year an amount, under a grant under subparagraph (A), equal to the Federal medical assistance percentage for such State for fiscal year 1995 (as defined in section 1905(b)) of so much of the expenditures by the State for child care in such year as exceed the State set-aside for such State under paragraph (1)(A) for such year and the amount of State expenditures in fiscal year 1994 or 1995 (whichever is greater) that equal the non-Federal share for the programs described in subparagraph (A) of paragraph (1).

(D) REDISTRIBUTION.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—With respect to any fiscal year, if the Secretary determines (in accordance with clause (ii)) that amounts under any grant awarded to a State under this paragraph for such fiscal year will not be used by such State during such fiscal year for carrying out the purpose for which the grant is made, the Secretary shall make such amounts available in the subsequent fiscal year for carrying out such purpose to 1 or more States which apply for such funds to the extent the Secretary determines that such States will be able to use such additional amounts for carrying out such purpose. Such available amounts shall be redistributed to a State pursuant to section 402(i) (as such section was in effect before October 1, 1995) by substituting “the number of children residing in all States applying for such funds” for “the number of children residing in the United States in the second preceding fiscal year”.

(ii) TIME OF DETERMINATION AND DISTRIBUTION.—The determination of the Secretary under clause (i) for a fiscal year shall be made not later than the end of the first quarter of the subsequent fiscal year. The redistribution of amounts under clause (i) shall be made as close as practicable to the date on which such determination is made. Any amount made available to a State from an appropriation for a fiscal year in accordance with this subparagraph shall, for purposes of this part, be regarded as part of such State’s payment (as determined under this subsection) for the fiscal year in which the redistribution is made.

(3) APPROPRIATION.—For grants under this section, there are appropriated—

- (A) $1,967,000,000 for fiscal year 1997;

(F) $2,717,000,000 for fiscal year 2002.

(4) INDIAN TRIBES.—The Secretary shall reserve not more than 1 percent of the aggregate amount appropriated to carry out this section in each fiscal year for payments to Indian tribes and tribal organizations.

(b) USE OF FUNDS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Amounts received by a State under this section shall only be used to provide child care assistance. Amounts received by a State under a grant under subsection (a)(1) shall be available for use by the State without fiscal year limitation.

(2) USE FOR CERTAIN POPULATIONS.—A State shall ensure that not less than 70 percent of the total amount of funds received by the State in a fiscal year under this section are used to provide child care assistance to families who are receiving assistance under a State program under this part, families who are attempting through work activities to transition off of such assistance program, and families who are at risk of becoming dependent on such assistance program.

(c) APPLICATION OF CHILD CARE AND DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT ACT OF 1990.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, amounts provided to a State under this section shall be transferred to the lead agency under the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990, integrated by the State into the programs established by the State under such Act, and be subject to requirements and limitations of such Act.

【PART F—JOB OPPORTUNITIES AND BASIC SKILLS TRAINING PROGRAM

【PURPOSE AND DEFINITIONS

【SEC. 481. (a) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this part to assure that needy families with children obtain the education, training, and employment that will help them avoid long-term welfare dependence.

【(b) MEANING OF TERMS.—Except to the extent otherwise specifically indicated, terms used in this part shall have the meanings given them in or under part A.

【ESTABLISHMENT AND OPERATION OF STATE PROGRAMS

【SEC. 482. (a) State Plans for Job Opportunities and Basic Skills Training Programs.—(1)(A) As a condition of its participation in the program of aid to families with dependent children under part A, each State shall establish and operate a job opportunities and basic skills training program (in this part referred to as the “program”) under a plan approved by the Secretary as meeting all of the requirements of this part and section 402(a)(19), and shall, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary, periodically (but not less frequently than every 2 years) review and update its plan and submit the updated plan for approval by the Secretary.

【(B) A State plan for establishing and operating the program must describe how the State intends to implement the program during the period covered by the plan, and must indicate, through cross-references to the appropriate provisions of this part and part A, that the program will be operated in accordance with such provision of law. In addition, such plan must contain (i) an estimate of the number of persons to be served by the program, (ii) a description of the services to be provided within the State and the political subdivisions thereof, the needs to be addressed through the provision of such services, the extent to which such services are expected to be made available by other agencies on a nonreimburs-able basis, and the extent to which such services are to be provided or funded by the program, and (iii) such additional information as the Secretary may require by regulation to enable the Secretary to determine that the State program will meet all of the requirements of this part and part A.

[(C) The Secretary shall consult with the Secretary of Labor on general plan requirements and on criteria to be used in approving State plans under this section.

[(D)(i) Not later than October 1, 1992, each State shall make the program available in each political subdivision of such State where it is feasible to do so, after taking into account the number of prospective participants, the local economy, and other relevant factors.

[(ii) If a State determines that it is not feasible to make the program available in each such subdivision, the State plan must provide appropriate justification to the Secretary.

[(2) The State agency that administers or supervises the administration of the State's plan approved under section 402 shall be responsible for the administration or supervision of the administration of the State's program.

[(3) Federal funds made available to a State for purposes of the program shall not be used to supplant non-Federal funds for existing services and activities which promote the purpose of this part. State or local funds expended for such purpose shall be maintained at least at the level of such expenditures for the fiscal year 1986.

[(b) ASSESSMENT AND REVIEW OF NEEDS AND SKILLS OF PARTICIPANTS; EMPLOYABILITY PLAN.—(1)(A) The State agency must make an initial assessment of the educational, child care, and other supportive services needs as well as the skills, prior work experience, and employability of each participant in the program under this part, including a review of the family circumstances. The agency may also review the needs of any child of the participant.

[(B) On the basis of such assessment, the State agency, in consultation with the participant, shall develop an employability plan for the participant. The employability plan shall explain the services that will be provided by the State agency and the activities in which the participant will take part under the program, including child care and other supportive services, shall set forth an employment goal for the participant, and shall, to the maximum extent possible and consistent with this section, reflect the respective preferences of such participant. The plan must take into account the participant's supportive services needs, available program resources, and local employment opportunities. The employability plan shall not be considered a contract.

[(2) Following the initial assessment and review and the development of the employability plan with respect to any participant in the program, the State agency may require the participant (or the adult caretaker in the family of which the participant is a member) to negotiate and enter into an agreement with the State agency that specifies such matters as the participant's obligations under the program, the duration of participation in the program, and the activities to be conducted and the services to be provided in the course of such participation. If the State agency exercises the option under the preceding sentence, the State agency must give the participant such assistance as he or she may require in reviewing and understanding the agreement.

[(3) The State agency may assign a case manager to each participant and the participant's family. The case manager so assigned must be responsible for assisting the family to obtain any services which may be needed to assure effective participation in the program.

[(c) PROVISION OF PROGRAM AND EMPLOYMENT INFORMATION.—

(1) The State agency must ensure that all applicants for and recipients of aid to families with dependent children are encouraged, assisted, and required to fulfill their responsibilities to support their children by preparing for, accepting, and retaining such employment as they are capable of performing.

[(2) The State agency must inform all applicants for and recipients of aid to families with dependent children of the education, employment, and training opportunities, and the support services (including child care and health coverage transition options), for which they are eligible, the obligations of the State agency, and the rights, responsibilities, and obligations of participants in the program.

[(3) The State agency must—

[(A) provide (directly or through arrangements with others) information on the types and locations of child care services reasonably accessible to participants in the program,

[(B) inform participants that assistance is available to help them select appropriate child care services, and

[(C) on request, provide assistance to participants in obtaining child care services.

[(4) The State agency must inform applicants for and recipients of aid to families with dependent children of the grounds for exemption from participation in the program and the consequences of refusal to participate if not exempt, and provide other appropriate information with respect to such participation.

[(5) Within one month after the State agency gives a recipient of aid to families with dependent children the information described in the preceding provisions of this paragraph, the State agency must notify such recipient of the opportunity to indicate his or her desire to participate in the program, including a clear description of how to enter the program.

[(d) SERVICES AND ACTIVITIES UNDER THE PROGRAM.—(1)(A) In carrying out the program, each State shall make available a broad range of services and activities to aid in carrying out the purpose of this part. Such services and activities—

[(i) shall include—

[(I) educational activities (as appropriate), including high school or equivalent education (combined with training as needed), basic and remedial education to achieve a basic literacy level, and education for individuals with limited English proficiency;

[(II) job skills training;

[(III) job readiness activities to help prepare participants for work; and

[(IV) job development and job placement; and

[(ii) must also include at least 2 of the following:

[(I) group and individual job search as described in subsection (g);

[(II) on-the-job training;

[(III) work supplementation programs as described in subsection (e); and

[(IV) community work experience programs as described in subsection (f) or any other work experience program approved by the Secretary.

[(B) The State may also offer to participants under the program (i) postsecondary education in appropriate cases, and (ii) such other education, training, and employment activities as may be determined by the State and allowed by regulations of the Secretary.

[(2) If the State requires an individual who has attained the age of 20 years and has not earned a high school diploma (or equivalent) to participate in the program, the State agency shall include educational activities consistent with his or her employment goals as a component of the individual's participation in the program, unless the individual demonstrates a basic literacy level, or the employability plan for the individual identifies a long-term employment goal that does not require a high school diploma (or equivalent). Any other services or activities to which such a participant is assigned may not be permitted to interfere with his or her participation in an appropriate educational activity under this subparagraph.

[(3) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the Secretary shall permit up to 5 States to provide services under the program, on a voluntary or mandatory basis, to non-custodial parents who are unemployed and unable to meet their child support obligations. Any State providing services to non-custodial parents pursuant to this paragraph shall evaluate the provision of such services, giving particular attention to the extent to which the provision of such services to those parents is contributing to the achievement of the purpose of this part, and shall report the results of such evaluation to the Secretary.

[(e) WORK SUPPLEMENTATION PROGRAM.—(1) Any State may institute a work supplementation program under which such State, to the extent it considers appropriate, may reserve the sums that would otherwise be payable to participants in the program as aid to families with dependent children and use such sums instead for the purpose of providing and subsidizing jobs for such participants (as described in paragraph (3)(C)(i) and (ii)), as an alternative to the aid to families with dependent children that would otherwise be so payable to them.

[(2)(A) Notwithstanding section 406 or any other provision of law, Federal funds may be paid to a State under part A, subject to this subsection, with respect to expenditures incurred in operating a work supplementation program under this subsection.

[(B) Nothing in this part, or in any State plan approved under part A, shall be construed to prevent a State from operating (on such terms and conditions and in such cases as the State may find to be necessary or appropriate) a work supplementation program in accordance with this subsection and section 484.

[(C) Notwithstanding section 402(a)(23) or any other provision of law, a State may adjust the levels of the standards of need under the State plan as the State determines to be necessary and appropriate for carrying out a work supplementation program under this subsection.

[(D) Notwithstanding section 402(a)(1) or any other provision of law, a State operating a work supplementation program under this subsection may provide that the need standards in effect in those areas of the State in which such program is in operation may be different from the need standards in effect in the areas in which such program is not in operation, and such State may provide that the need standards for categories of recipients may vary among such categories to the extent the State determines to be appropriate on the basis of ability to participate in the work supplementation program.

[(E) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a State may make such further adjustments in the amounts of the aid to families with dependent children paid under the plan to different categories of recipients (as determined under subparagraph (D)) in order to offset increases in benefits from needs-related programs (other than the State plan approved under part A) as the State determines to be necessary and appropriate to further the purposes of the work supplementation program.

[(F) In determining the amounts to be reserved and used for providing and subsidizing jobs under this subsection as described in paragraph (1), the State may use a sampling methodology.

[(G) Notwithstanding section 402(a)(8) or any other provision of law, a State operating a work supplementation program under this subsection (i) may reduce or eliminate the amount of earned income to be disregarded under the State plan as the State determines to be necessary and appropriate to further the purposes of the work supplementation program, and (ii) during one or more of the first 9 months of an individual's employment pursuant to a program under this section, may apply to the wages of the individual the provisions of subparagraph (A)(iv) of section 402(a)(8) without regard to the provisions of subparagraph (B)(ii)(II) of such section.

[(3)(A) A work supplementation program operated by a State under this subsection may provide that any individual who is an eligible individual (as determined under subparagraph (B)) shall take a supplemented job (as defined in subparagraph (C)) to the extent that supplemented jobs are available under the program. Payments by the State to individuals or to employers under the work supplementation program shall be treated as expenditures incurred by the State for aid to families with dependent children except as limited by paragraph (4).

[(B) For purposes of this subsection, an eligible individual is an individual who is in a category which the State determines should be eligible to participate in the work supplementation program, and who would, at the time of placement in the job involved, be eligible for aid to families with dependent children under an approved State plan if such State did not have a work supplementation program in effect.

[(C) For purposes of this section, a supplemented job is—

[(i) a job provided to an eligible individual by the State or local agency administering the State plan under part A; or

[(ii) a job provided to an eligible individual by any other employer for which all or part of the wages are paid by such State or local agency.

A State may provide or subsidize under the program any job which such State determines to be appropriate.

[(D) At the option of the State, individuals who hold supplemented jobs under a State's work supplementation program shall be exempt from the retrospective budgeting requirements imposed pursuant to section 402(a)(13)(A)(ii) (and the amount of the aid which is payable to the family of any such individual for any month, or which would be so payable but for the individual's participation in the work supplementation program, shall be determined on the basis of the income and other relevant circumstances in that month).

[(4) The amount of the Federal payment to a State under section 403 for expenditures incurred in making payments to individuals and employers under a work supplementation program under this subsection shall not exceed an amount equal to the amount which would otherwise be payable under such section if the family of each individual employed in the program established in such State under this subsection had received the maximum amount of aid to families with dependent children payable under the State plan to such a family with no income (without regard to adjustments under paragraph (2)) for the lesser of (A) 9 months, or (B) the number of months in which such individual was employed in such program.

[(5)(A) Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as requiring the State or local agency administering the State plan to provide employee status to an eligible individual to whom it provides a job under the work supplementation program (or with respect to whom it provides all or part of the wages paid to the individual by another entity under such program), or as requiring any State or local agency to provide that an eligible individual filling a job position provided by another entity under such program be provided employee status by such entity during the first 13 weeks such individual fills that position.

[(B) Wages paid under a work supplementation program shall be considered to be earned income for purposes of any provision of law.

[(6) Any State that chooses to operate a work supplementation program under this subsection shall provide that any individual who participates in such program, and any child or relative of such individual (or other individual living in the same household as such individual) who would be eligible for aid to families with dependent children under the State plan approved under part A if such State did not have a work supplementation program, shall be considered individuals receiving aid to families with dependent children under the State plan approved under part A for purposes of eligibility for medical assistance under the State plan approved under title XIX.

[(7) No individual receiving aid to families with dependent children under a State plan shall be excused by reason of the fact that such State has a work supplementation program from any requirement of this part relating to work requirements, except during periods in which such individual is employed under such work supplementation program.

【(f) COMMUNITY WORK EXPERIENCE PROGRAM.—(1)(A) Any State may establish a community work experience program in accordance with this subsection. The purpose of the community work experience program is to provide experience and training for individuals not otherwise able to obtain employment, in order to assist them to move into regular employment. Community work experience programs shall be designed to improve the employability of participants through actual work experience and training and to enable individuals employed under community work experience programs to move promptly into regular public or private employment. The facilities of the State public employment offices may be utilized to find employment opportunities for recipients under this program. Community work experience programs shall be limited to projects which serve a useful public purpose in fields such as health, social service, environmental protection, education, urban and rural development and redevelopment, welfare, recreation, public facilities, public safety, and day care. To the extent possible, the prior training, experience, and skills of a recipient shall be used in making appropriate work experience assignments.

【(B)(i) A State that elects to establish a community work experience program under this subsection shall operate such program so that each participant (as determined by the State) either works or undergoes training (or both) with the maximum number of hours that any such individual may be required to work in any month being a number equal to the amount of the aid to families with dependent children payable with respect to the family of which such individual is a member under the State plan approved under this part, divided by the greater of the Federal minimum wage or the applicable State minimum wage (and the portion of a recipient's aid for which the State is reimbursed by a child support collection shall not be taken into account in determining the number of hours that such individual may be required to work).

【(ii) After an individual has been assigned to a position in a community work experience program under this subsection for 9 months, such individual may not be required to continue in that assignment unless the maximum number of hours of participation is no greater than (I) the amount of the aid to families with dependent children payable with respect to the family of which such individual is a member under the State plan approved under this part (excluding any portion of such aid for which the State is reimbursed by a child support payment), divided by (II) the higher of (a) the Federal minimum wage or the applicable State minimum wage, whichever is greater, or (b) the rate of pay for individuals employed in the same or similar occupations by the same employer at the same site.

【(C) Nothing contained in this subsection shall be construed as authorizing the payment of aid to families with dependent children as compensation for work performed, nor shall a participant be entitled to a salary or to any other work or training expense provided under any other provision of law by reason of his participation in a program under this subsection.

[(D) Nothing in this part or in any State plan approved under this part shall be construed to prevent a State from operating (on such terms and conditions and in such cases as the State may find to be necessary or appropriate) a community work experience program in accordance with this subsection and subsection (d).

[(E) Participants in community work experience programs under this subsection may perform work in the public interest (which otherwise meets the requirements of this subsection) for a Federal office or agency with its consent, and, notwithstanding section 1342 of title 31, United States Code, or any other provision of law, such agency may accept such services, but such participants shall not be considered to be Federal employees for any purpose.

[(2) After each 6 months of an individual's participation in a community work experience program under this subsection, and at the conclusion of each assignment of the individual under such program, the State agency must provide a reassessment and revision, as appropriate, of the individual's employability plan.

[(3) The State agency shall provide coordination among a community work experience program operated pursuant to this subsection, any program of job search under subsection (g), and the other employment-related activities under the program established by this section so as to insure that job placement will have priority over participation in the community work experience program, and that individuals eligible to participate in more than one such program are not denied aid to families with dependent children on the grounds of failure to participate in one such program if they are actively and satisfactorily participating in another. The State agency may provide that part-time participation in more than one such program may be required where appropriate.

[(4) In the case of any State that makes expenditures in the form described in paragraph (1) under its State plan approved under section 482(a)(1), expenditures for the operation and administration of the program under this section may not include, for purposes of section 403, the cost of making or acquiring materials or equipment in connection with the work performed under a program referred to in paragraph (1) or the cost of supervision of work under such program, and may include only such other costs attributable to such programs as are permitted by the Secretary.

[(g) JOB SEARCH PROGRAM.—(1) The State agency may establish and carry out a program of job search for individuals participating in the program under this part.

[(2) Notwithstanding section 402(a)(19)(B)(i), the State agency may require job search by an individual applying for or receiving aid to families with dependent children (other than an individual described in section 402(a)(19)(C) who is not an individual with respect to whom section 402(a)(19)(D) applies)—

[(A) subject to the next to last sentence of this paragraph, beginning at the time such individual applies for aid to families with dependent children and continuing for a period (prescribed by the State) of not more than 8 weeks (but this requirement may not be used as a reason for any delay in making a determination of an individual's eligibility for such aid or in issuing a payment to or on behalf of any individual who is otherwise eligible for such aid); and

[(B) at such time or times after the close of the period prescribed under subparagraph (A) as the State agency may determine but not to exceed a total of 8 weeks in any period of 12 consecutive months.

In no event may an individual be required to participate in job search for more than 3 weeks before the State agency conducts the assessment and review with respect to such individual under subsection (b)(1)(A). Job search activities in addition to those required under the preceding provisions of this paragraph may be required only in combination with some other education, training, or employment activity which is designed to improve the individual's prospects for employment.

[(3) Job search by an individual under this subsection shall in no event be treated, for any purpose, as an activity under the program if the individual has participated in such job search for 4 months out of the preceding 12 months.

[(h) DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROCEDURES.—Each State shall establish a conciliation procedure for the resolution of disputes involving an individual's participation in the program and (if the dispute involved is not resolved through conciliation) shall provide an opportunity for a hearing with respect to the dispute, which hearing may be provided through a hearing process established for purposes of resolving disputes with respect to the program or through the provision of a hearing pursuant to section 402(a)(4); but in no event shall aid to families with dependent children be suspended, reduced, discontinued, or terminated as a result of a dispute involving an individual's participation in the program until such individual has an opportunity for a hearing that meets the standards set forth by the United States Supreme Court in Goldberg v. Kelly, 397 U.S. 254 (1970).

[(i) SPECIAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO INDIAN TRIBES.—(1) Within 6 months after the date of the enactment of the Family Support Act of 1988, an Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization may apply to the Secretary to conduct a job opportunities and basic skills training program to carry out the purpose of this subsection. If the Secretary approves such tribe's or organization's application, the maximum amount that may be paid to the State under section 403(1) in which such tribe or organization is located shall be reduced by the Secretary in accordance with paragraph (2) and an amount equal to the amount of such reduction shall be paid directly to such tribe or organization (without the requirement of any nonfederal share) for the operation of such program. In determining whether to approve an application from an Alaska Native organization, the Secretary shall consider whether approval of the application would promote the efficient and nonduplicative administration of job opportunities and basic skills training programs in the State.

[(2) The amount of the reduction under paragraph (1) with respect to any State in which is located an Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization with an application approved under such paragraph shall be an amount equal to the amount that bears the same ratio to the maximum amount that could be paid under section 403(1) to the State as—

[(A) the number of adult Indians receiving aid to families with dependent children who reside on the reservation or within the designated service area bears to the number of all such adult recipients in the State, or

[(B) the number of adult Alaska Natives receiving aid to families with dependent children who reside within the boundaries of such Alaska Native organization bears to the number of all such adult recipients in the State of Alaska.

[(3) The job opportunities and basic skills training program set forth in the application of an Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization under paragraph (1) need not meet any requirement of the program under this part or under section 402(a)(19) that the Secretary determines is inappropriate with respect to such job opportunities and basic skills training program.

[Congress finds that—

[(1) each year, hundreds of thousands of American children are victims of abuse and neglect with such numbers having increased dramatically over the past decade;

[(2) many of these children and their families fail to receive adequate protection or treatment;

[(3) the problem of child abuse and neglect requires a comprehensive approach that—

[(A) integrates the work of social service, legal, health, mental health, education, and substance abuse agencies and organizations;

[(B) strengthens coordination among all levels of government, and with private agencies, civic, religious, and professional organizations, and individual volunteers;

[(C) emphasizes the need for abuse and neglect prevention, investigation, and treatment at the neighborhood level;

[(D) ensures properly trained and support staff with specialized knowledge, to carry out their child protection duties; and

[(E) is sensitive to ethnic and cultural diversity;

[(4) the failure to coordinate and comprehensively prevent and treat child abuse and neglect threatens the futures of tens of thousands of children and results in a cost to the Nation of billions of dollars in direct expenditures for health, social, and special educational services and ultimately in the loss of work productivity;

[(5) all elements of American society have a shared responsibility in responding to this national child and family emergency;

[(6) substantial reductions in the prevalence and incidence of child abuse and neglect and the alleviation of its consequences are matters of the highest national priority;

[(7) national policy should strengthen families to remedy the causes of child abuse and neglect, provide support for intensive services to prevent the unnecessary removal of children from families, and promote the reunification of families if removal has taken place;

[(8) the child protection system should be comprehensive, child-centered, family-focused, and community-based, should incorporate all appropriate measures to prevent the occurrence or recurrence of child abuse and neglect, and should promote physical and psychological recovery and social re-integration in an environment that fosters the health, self-respect, and dignity of the child;

[(9) because of the limited resources available in low-income communities, Federal aid for the child protection system should be distributed with due regard to the relative financial need of the communities;

[(10) the Federal government should ensure that every community in the United States has the fiscal, human, and technical resources necessary to develop and implement a successful and comprehensive child protection strategy;

[(11) the Federal government should provide leadership and assist communities in their child protection efforts by—

[(A) promoting coordinated planning among all levels of government;

[(B) generating and sharing knowledge relevant to child protection, including the development of models for service delivery;

[(C) strengthening the capacity of States to assist communities;

[(D) allocating sufficient financial resources to assist States in implementing community plans;

[(E) helping communities to carry out their child protection plans by promoting the competence of professional, paraprofessional, and volunteer resources; and

[TITLE II—ADOPTION OPPORTUNITIES

[(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

[(1) the number of children in substitute care increased by nearly 50 percent between 1985 and 1990, as our Nation's foster care population included more than 400,000 children at the end of June, 1990;

[(2) increasingly children entering foster care have complex problems which require intensive services;

[(3) an increasing number of infants are born to mothers who did not receive prenatal care, are born addicted to alcohol and other drugs, and exposed to infection with the etiologic agent for the human immunodeficiency virus, are medically fragile, and technology dependent;

[(4) the welfare of thousands of children in institutions and foster homes and disabled infants with life-threatening conditions may be in serious jeopardy and some such children are in need of placement in permanent, adoptive homes;

[(5) many thousands of children remain in institutions or foster homes solely because of local and other barriers to their placement in permanent, adoptive homes;

[(6) the majority of such children are of school age, members of sibling groups or disabled;

[(7) currently one-half of children free for adoption and awaiting placement are minorities;

[(8) adoption may be the best alternative for assuring the healthy development of such children;

[(9) there are qualified persons seeking to adopt such children who are unable to do so because of barriers to their placement; and

[(10) in order both to enhance the stability and love of the child's home environment and to avoid wasteful expenditures of public funds, such children should not have medically indicated treatment withheld from them nor be maintained in foster care or institutions when adoption is appropriate and families can be found for such children.

[(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this title to facilitate the elimination of barriers to adoption and to provide permanent and loving home environments for children who would benefit from adoption, particularly children with special needs, including disabled infants with life-threatening conditions, by—

[(1) promoting model adoption legislation and procedures in the States and territories of the United States in order to eliminate jurisdictional and legal obstacles to adoption; and

[(2) providing a mechanism for the Department of Health and Human Services to—

[(A) promote quality standards for adoption services, pre-placement, post-placement, and post-legal adoption counseling, and standards to protect the rights of children in need of adoption;

[(B) maintain a national adoption information exchange system to bring together children who would benefit from adoption and qualified prospective adoptive parents who are seeking such children, and conduct national recruitment efforts in order to reach prospective parents for children awaiting adoption; and

[(C) demonstrate expeditious ways to free children for adoption for whom it has been determined that adoption is the appropriate plan.

[(4) provide (directly or by grant to or contract with public or private nonprofit agencies or organizations, including adoptive family groups and minority groups) for the provision of technical assistance in the planning, improving, developing, and carrying out of programs and activities relating to adoption, and to promote professional leadership training of minorities in the adoption field;

[(5) encourage involvement of corporations and small businesses in supporting adoption as a positive family-strengthening option, including the establishment of adoption benefit programs for employees who adopt children;

[(6) continue to study the nature, scope, and effects of the placement of children in adoptive homes (not including the homes of stepparents or relatives of the child in question) by persons or agencies which are not licensed by or subject to regulation by any governmental entity;

[(7) consult with other appropriate Federal departments and agencies in order to promote maximum coordination of the services and benefits provided under programs carried out by such departments and agencies with those carried out by the Secretary, and provide for the coordination of such aspects of all programs within the Department of Health and Human Services relating to adoption;

[(A) which may include such activities as—

[(i) outreach, public education, or media campaigns to inform the public of the needs and numbers of such children;

[(ii) recruitment of prospective adoptive families for such children;

The evaluations will be submitted to the Secretary who will compile the results of projects funded by this section and submit a report to the appropriate committees of Congress. The emphasis of this program must focus on the improvement of the placement rate—not the aggregate number of special needs children placed in permanent homes. The Secretary, when reviewing grant applications shall give priority to grantees who propose improvements designed to continue in the absence of Federal funds.

[(2) Each State entering into an agreement under this subsection shall submit an application to the Secretary for each fiscal year in a form and manner determined to be appropriate by the Secretary. Each application shall include verification of the placements described in paragraph (1).

ABANDONED INFANTS ASSISTANCE ACT OF 1988

AN ACT To authorize the Secretary of Health and Human Services to make grants for demonstration projects for foster care and residential care of infants and young children abandoned in hospitals, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

【The Congress finds that—

【(1) throughout the Nation, the number of infants and young children who have been exposed to drugs taken by their mothers during pregnancy has increased dramatically;

【(2) the inability of parents who abuse drugs to provide adequate care for such infants and young children and a lack of suitable shelter homes for such infants and young children have led to the abandonment of such infants and young children in hospitals for extended periods;

【(3) an unacceptable number of these infants and young children will be medically cleared for discharge, yet remain in hospitals as boarder babies;

【(4) hospital-based child care for these infants and young children is extremely costly and deprives them of an adequate nurturing environment;

【(5) training is inadequate for foster care personnel working with medically fragile infants and young children and infants and young children exposed to drugs;

【(6) a particularly devastating development is the increase in the number of infants and young children who are infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (which is believed to cause acquired immune deficiency syndrome and which is commonly known as HIV) or who have been perinatally exposed to the virus or to a dangerous drug;

【(7) many such infants and young children have at least one parent who is an intravenous drug abuser;

【(8) such infants and young children are particularly difficult to place in foster homes, and are being abandoned in hospitals in increasing numbers by mothers dying of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or by parents incapable of providing adequate care;

【(9) there is a need for comprehensive services for such infants and young children, including foster family care services, case management services, family support services, respite and crisis intervention services, counseling services, and group residential home services;

【(10) there is a need to support the families of such infants and young children through the provision of services that will prevent the abandonment of the infants and children; and

【(11) there is a need for the development of funding strategies that coordinate and make the optimal use of all private resources, and Federal, State, and local resources, to establish and maintain such services.

STATE DISBURSEMENT TO SCHOOLS

SEC. 8. (a) Funds paid to any State during any fiscal year pursuant to section 4 shall be disbursed by the State educational agency, in accordance with such agreements approved by the Secretary as may be entered into by such State agency and the schools in the State, to those schools in the State which the State educational agency, taking into account need and attendance, determines are eligible to participate in the school lunch program.

(b) The agreements described in [the preceding sentence] subsection (a) shall be permanent agreements that may be amended as necessary. [Nothing in the preceding sentence shall be construed to limit the ability of the State educational agency to]

(c) The State educational agency may suspend or terminate any such agreement in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary. [Such disbursement to any school shall be made only for the purpose of assisting it to obtain agricultural commodities and other foods for consumption by children in the school lunch program. The terms “child” and “children” as used in this Act shall be deemed to include individuals regardless of age who are determined by the State educational agency, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary, to have 1 or more mental or physical handicaps and who are attending any child care institution as defined in section 17 of this Act or any nonresidential public or nonprofit private school of high school grade or under for the purpose of participating in a school program established for individuals with mental or physical handicaps: Provided, That no institution that is not otherwise eligible to participate in the program under section 17 of this Act shall be deemed so eligible because of this sentence.】

(d) 【Such food costs】 Use of funds paid to States may include, in addition to the purchase price of agricultural commodities and other foods, the cost of processing, distributing, transporting, storing, or handling thereof.

(f) In any fiscal year in which the national average payment per lunch determined under section 4 is increased above the amount prescribed in the previous fiscal year, the maximum per meal reimbursement rate for the type of lunch served, shall be increased by a like amount.

Lunch assistance disbursements to schools under this section and under section 11 of this Act may be made in advance or by way of reimbursement in accordance with procedures prescribed by the Secretary.

NUTRITIONAL AND OTHER PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

SEC. 9. (a)(1) * * *

(2)【(A)】 Lunches served by schools participating in the school lunch program under this Act—

【(i)】 (A) shall offer students fluid milk; and

【(ii)】 (B) shall offer students a variety of fluid milk consistent with prior year preferences unless the prior year preference for any such variety of fluid milk is less than 1 percent of the total milk consumed at the school.

【(B)(i)】 The Secretary shall purchase in each calendar year to carry out the school lunch program under this Act, and the school breakfast program under section 4 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1773), lowfat cheese on a bid basis in a quantity that is the milkfat equivalent of the quantity of milkfat the Secretary estimates the Commodity Credit Corporation will purchase each calendar year as a result of the elimination of the requirement that schools offer students fluid whole milk and fluid unflavored lowfat milk, based on data provided by the Director of Office of Management and Budget.

【(ii)】 Not later than 30 days after the Secretary provides an estimate required under clause (i), the Director of the Congressional Budget Office shall provide to the appropriate committees of Congress a report on whether the Director concurs with the estimate of the Secretary.

【(iii)】 The quantity of lowfat cheese that is purchased under this subparagraph shall be in addition to the quantity of cheese that is historically purchased by the Secretary to carry out school feeding programs. The Secretary shall take such actions as are necessary to ensure that purchases under this subparagraph shall not displace commercial purchases of cheese by schools.

[(3)] The Secretary shall establish, in cooperation with State educational agencies, administrative procedures, which shall include local educational agency and student participation, designed to diminish waste of foods which are served by schools participating in the school lunch program under this Act without endangering the nutritional integrity of the lunches served by such schools.

(b)(1) * * *

(2)[(A)] Following the determination by the Secretary under paragraph (1) of this subsection of the income eligibility guidelines for each school year, each State educational agency shall announce the income eligibility guidelines, by family size, to be used by schools in the State in making determinations of eligibility for free and reduced price lunches. Local school authorities shall, each year, publicly announce the income eligibility guidelines for free and reduced price lunches on or before the opening of school.

[(B)] (A) Applications for free and reduced price lunches, in such form as the Secretary may prescribe or approve, and any descriptive material, shall be distributed to the parents or guardians of children in attendance at the school, and shall contain only the family size income levels for reduced price meal eligibility with the explanation that households with incomes less than or equal to these values would be eligible for free or reduced price lunches. Such forms and descriptive material may not contain the income eligibility guidelines for free lunches.

[(C)] (B)(i) Except as provided in clause (ii), each eligibility determination shall be made on the basis of a complete application executed by an adult member of the household. The Secretary, State, or local food authority may verify any data contained in such application. A local school food authority shall undertake such verification of information contained in any such application as the Secretary may by regulation prescribe and, in accordance with such regulations, shall make appropriate changes in the eligibility determination with respect to such application on the basis of such verification.

(C) FREE AND REDUCED PRICE POLICY STATEMENT.—
After the initial submission, a school shall not be required to submit a free and reduced price policy statement to a State educational agency under this Act unless there is a substantive change in the free and reduced price policy of the school. A routine change in the policy of a school, such as an annual adjustment of the income eligibility guidelines for free and reduced price meals, shall not be sufficient cause for requiring the school to submit a policy statement.

* * * * *

(5) Any child who has a parent or guardian who (A) is responsible for the principal support of such child and (B) is unemployed shall be served a free or reduced price lunch, respectively, during any period (i) in which such child's parent or guardian continues to be unemployed and (ii) the income of the child's parents or guardians during such period of unemployment falls within the income eligibility criteria for free lunches or reduced price lunches, respectively, based on the current rate of income of such parents or guardians. Local school authorities shall publicly announce that such children are eligible for free or reduced price lunch, and shall make determinations with respect to the status of any parent or guardian of any child under clauses (A) and (B) of the preceding sentence on the basis of a statement executed in such form as the Secretary may prescribe by such parent or guardian. [No physical segregation of, or other discrimination against, any child eligible for a free or reduced price lunch under this paragraph shall be made by the school nor shall there be any overt identification of any such child by special tokens or tickets, announced or published lists of names, or by any other means.]

(6)(A) * * *

(B) Proof of receipt of food stamps or aid to families with dependent children, or of enrollment or participation in a Head Start program on the basis described in subparagraph (A)(iii), shall be sufficient to satisfy any verification requirement imposed under [paragraph (2)(C)] paragraph (2)(B).

(c) School lunch programs under this Act shall be operated on a nonprofit basis. [Each school shall, insofar as practicable, utilize in its lunch program commodities designated from time to time by the Secretary as being in abundance, either nationally or in the school area, or commodities donated by the Secretary.] Commodities purchased under the authority of section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935, may be donated by the Secretary to schools, in accordance with the needs as determined by local school authorities, for utilization in the school lunch program under this Act as well as to other schools carrying out nonprofit school lunch programs and institutions authorized to receive such commodities. [The Secretary is authorized to prescribe terms and conditions respecting the use of commodities donated under such section 32, under section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 and under section 709 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 as will maximize the nutritional and financial contributions of such donated commodities in such schools and institutions.] The requirements of this section relating to the service of meals without cost or at a reduced cost shall apply to the lunch program of any school utilizing commodities donated under any of the provisions of law referred to in the preceding sentence. [None of the requirements of this section in respect to the amount, for "reduced cost" meals and to eligibility for meals without cost shall apply to schools (as defined in section 12(d)(6) of this Act which are private and nonprofit as defined in the last sentence of section 12(d)(6) of this Act) which participate in the school lunch program under this Act until such time as the State

(d) In providing assistance under this Act and the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 for school lunch and breakfast programs, the Secretary shall establish procedures which will—

(1) ensure that the views of local school districts and private nonprofit schools with respect to the type of commodity assistance needed in schools are fully and accurately reflected in reports to the Secretary by the State with respect to State commodity preferences and that such views are considered by the Secretary in the purchase and distribution of commodities and by the States in the allocation of such commodities among schools within the States;

The council shall advise such State agency with respect to the needs of such schools relating to the manner of selection and distribution of commodity assistance for such program.]

[(f)] (e) Commodity only schools shall be eligible to receive donated commodities equal in value to the sum of the national average value of donated foods established under section 6(e) of this Act and the national average payment established under section 4 of this Act. (5) A child shall be considered automatically eligible for benefits under this section without further application or eligibility determination, if the child is enrolled as a participant in a Head Start program authorized under the Head Start Act (42 U.S.C. 9831 et seq.), on the basis of a determination that the child is a member of a family that meets the low-income criteria prescribed under section 645(a)(1)(A) of the Head Start Act (42 U.S.C. 9840(a)(1)(A)).

(6)(A) A child who has not yet entered kindergarten shall be considered automatically eligible for benefits under this section without further application or eligibility determination if the child is enrolled as a participant in the Even Start program under part B of chapter 1 of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 2741 et seq.).

The reimbursement factor under this subparagraph shall be adjusted on July 1 of each year to reflect changes in the Consumer Price Index for food away from home for the most recent 12-month period for which such data are available. (C)[(i)] Reimbursement for administrative expenses shall also include start-up funds to finance the administrative expenses for such institutions to initiate successful operation under the program and expansion funds to finance the administrative expenses for such institutions to expand into low-income or rural areas. Institutions that have received start-up funds may also apply at a later date for expansion funds. (i) IN GENERAL.—

(I) RESERVATION.—From amounts made available to carry out this section, the Secretary shall reserve $5,000,000 of the amount made available for fiscal year 1997.

(ii) ALLOCATION.—The Secretary shall allocate from the funds reserved under clause (i)(I)—

(I) $30,000 in base funding to each State; and

(II) any remaining amount among the States, based on the number of family day care homes participating in the program in a State during fiscal year 1995 as a percentage of the number of all family day care homes participating in the program during fiscal year 1995.

(iii) RETENTION OF FUNDS.—Of the amount of funds made available to a State for fiscal year 1997 under clause (i), the State may retain not to exceed 30 percent of the amount to carry out this subparagraph.

(iv) ADDITIONAL PAYMENTS.—Any payments received under this subparagraph shall be in addition to payments that a State receives under subparagraph (A).

(E) PROVISION OF DATA TO FAMILY OR GROUP DAY CARE HOME SPONSORING ORGANIZATIONS.—

(i) CENSUS DATA.—*The Secretary shall provide to each State agency administering a child care food program under this section data from the most recent decennial census survey or other appropriate census survey for which the data are available showing which areas in the State meet the requirements of subparagraph (A)(ii)(I)(aa). (ii) SCHOOL DATA.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—A State agency administering the school lunch program under this Act or the school breakfast program under the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1771 et seq.) shall provide to approved family or group day care home sponsoring organizations a list of schools serving elementary school children in the State in which not less than 1/2 of the children enrolled are certified to receive free or reduced price meals. The State agency shall collect the data necessary to create the list annually and provide the list on a timely basis to any approved family or group day care home sponsoring organization that requests the list.

(II) USE OF DATA FROM PRECEDING SCHOOL YEAR.—In determining for a fiscal year or other annual period whether a home qualifies as a tier I family or group day care home under subparagraph (A)(ii)(I), the State agency administering the program under this section, and a family or group day care home sponsoring organization, shall use the most current available data at the time of the determination.

(4) By the first day of each month of operation, the State [shall] may provide advance payments for the month to each approved institution in an amount that reflects the full level of valid claims customarily received from such institution for one month's operation. In the case of a newly participating institution, the amount of the advance shall reflect the State's best estimate of the level of valid claims such institutions will submit. If the State has reason to believe that an institution will not be able to submit a valid claim covering the period for which such an advance has been made, the subsequent month's advance payment shall be withheld until the State receives a valid claim. Payments advanced to institutions that are not subsequently deducted from a valid claim for reimbursement shall be repaid upon demand by the State. Any prior payment that is under dispute may be subtracted from an advance payment.

(g)(1)(A) Meals served by institutions participating in the program under this section shall consist of a combination of foods that meet minimum nutritional requirements prescribed by the Secretary on the basis of tested nutritional research. [Such meals shall be served free to needy children.]

(B) The Secretary shall provide technical assistance to those institutions participating in the program under this section to assist the institutions and family or group day care home sponsoring organizations in complying with the nutritional requirements prescribed by the Secretary pursuant to subparagraph (A). (2) No physical segregation or other discrimination against any child shall be made because of his or her inability to pay, nor shall there be any overt identification of any such child by special tokens or tickets, different meals or meal service, announced or published lists of names, or other means.

Reimbursement provided to such institutions for such purposes shall improve the quality of meals or level of services provided or increase participation in the program. Lunches served by each such institution for which reimbursement is claimed under this section shall provide, on the average, approximately $\frac{1}{3}$ of the daily recommended dietary allowance established by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences. Such institutions shall make reasonable efforts to serve meals that meet the special dietary requirements of participants, including efforts to serve foods in forms palatable to participants.

The State agency shall describe any plans for issuance of vouchers by mail in its plan submitted under paragraph (1). The Secretary may disapprove a State plan with respect to the issuance of vouchers by mail in any specified jurisdiction or part of a jurisdiction within a State only if the Secretary finds that such issuance would pose a significant threat to the integrity of the program under this section in such jurisdiction or part of a jurisdiction.

[(16)] (13) To be eligible to participate in the program authorized by this section, a manufacturer of infant formula that supplies formula for the program shall—

(A) register with the Secretary of Health and Human Services under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321 et seq.); and

[(19)] (16) Each local agency participating in the program under this section [shall] may provide information about other potential sources of food assistance in the local area to individuals who apply in person to participate in the program under this section, but who cannot be served because the program is operating at capacity in the local area.

[(20)] (17) The State agency shall adopt policies that—

(A) require each local agency to attempt to contact each pregnant woman who misses an appointment to apply for participation in the program under this section, in order to reschedule the appointment, unless the phone number and the address of the woman are unavailable to such local agency; and

(B) in the case of local agencies that do not routinely schedule appointments for individuals seeking to apply or be recertified for participation in the program under this section, require each such local agency to schedule appointments for each employed individual seeking to apply or be recertified for participation in such program so as to minimize the time each such individual is absent from the workplace due to such application or request for recertification.

[(21)] (18) Each State agency shall conduct monitoring reviews of each local agency at least biennially.

[(22)] In the State plan submitted to the Secretary for fiscal year 1994, each State agency shall advise the Secretary regarding the procedures to be used by the State agency to reduce the purchase of low-iron infant formula for infants on the program for whom such formula has not been prescribed by a physician or other appropriate health professional, as determined by regulations issued by the Secretary.]

[(23)] (19) A State agency may use funds recovered as a result of violations in the food delivery system of the program in the year in which the funds are collected for the purpose of carrying out the program.

[(24)] (20) The Secretary and the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall carry out an initiative to assure that, in a case in which a State medicaid program uses coordinated care providers under a contract entered into under section 1903(m), or a waiver granted under section 1915(b), of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396b(m) or 1396n(b)), coordination between the program authorized by this section and the medicaid program is continued, including—

(A) the referral of potentially eligible women, infants, and children between the 2 programs; and

(B) the timely provision of medical information related to the program authorized by this section to agencies carrying out the program.

(g)(1) * * *

* * * * *

(5) Of the sums appropriated for any fiscal year for the program under this section, one-half of 1 percent, not to exceed $5,000,000, shall be available to the Secretary for the purpose of evaluating program performance, evaluating health benefits, preparing [(the report required under subsection (d)(4)] reports on pro- gram participant characteristics, providing technical assistance to improve State agency administrative systems, administration of pilot projects, including projects designed to meet the special needs of migrants, Indians, and rural populations, and carrying out technical assistance and research evaluation projects of the programs under this section.

[(6) Upon the completion of the 1990 decennial census, the Secretary, in coordination with the Secretary of Commerce, shall make available an estimate, by State and county (or equivalent political subdivision) of the number of women, infants, and children who are members of families that have incomes below the maximum income limit for participation in the program under this section.]

(4) The Secretary shall—

(A) * * *

* * * * *

(E) not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this subparagraph, develop uniform requirements for the collection of data regarding the incidence and duration of breastfeeding among participants in the program [and, on development of the uniform requirements, require each State agency to report the data for inclusion in the report to Congress described in subsection (d)(4)].

* * * * *

(8)[(A) No State may receive its allocation under this subsection unless on or before August 30, 1989 (or a subsequent date established by the Secretary for any State) such State has—

[(i) examined the feasibility of implementing cost containment measures with respect to procurement of infant formula, and, where practicable, other foods necessary to carry out the program under this section; and

[(ii) initiated action to implement such measures unless the State demonstrates, to the satisfaction of the Secretary, that such measures would not lower costs or would interfere with the delivery of formula or foods to participants in the program.]

[(B) (A)(i) Except as provided in [subparagraphs (C), (D), and (E)(iii), in carrying out subparagraph (A),] subparagraphs (B) and (C)(iii), any State that provides for the purchase of foods under the program at retail grocery stores shall, with respect to the procurement of infant formula, use—

(I) a competitive bidding system; or

(II) any other cost containment measure that yields savings equal to or greater than savings generated by a competitive bidding system when such savings are determined by comparing the amounts of savings that would be provided over the full term of contracts offered in response to a single invitation to submit both competitive bids and bids for other cost containment systems for the sale of infant formula.

(ii) In determining whether a cost containment measure other than competitive bidding yields equal or greater savings, the State, in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary, may take into account other cost factors (in addition to rebate levels and procedures for adjusting rebate levels when wholesale price levels rise), such as—

(I) the number of infants who would not be expected to receive the contract brand of infant formula under a competitive bidding system;

(II) the number of cans of infant formula for which no rebate would be provided under another rebate system; and

(III) differences in administrative costs relating to the implementation of the various cost containment systems (such as costs of converting a computer system for the purpose of operating a cost containment system and costs of preparing participants for conversion to a new or alternate cost containment system).

[(C)] In the case of any State that has a contract in effect on the date of the enactment of the Child Nutrition and WIC Reauthorization Act of 1989, subparagraph (B) shall not apply to the program operated by such State under this section until the term of such contract, as such term is specified by the contract as in effect on such date, expires. In the case of any State that has more than 1 such contract in effect on the date of the enactment of such Act, subparagraph (B) shall not apply until the term of the contract with the latest expiration date, as such term is specified by such contract as in effect on the date of the enactment of such Act, expires.]

[(D)] (B)(i) The Secretary shall waive the requirement of subparagraph [(B)] (A) in the case of any State that demonstrates to the Secretary that—

(I) compliance with subparagraph [(B)] (A) would be inconsistent with efficient or effective operation of the program operated by such State under this section; or

(II) the amount by which the savings yielded by an alternative cost containment system would be less than the savings yielded by a competitive bidding system is sufficiently minimal that the difference is not significant.

(ii) The Secretary shall prescribe criteria under which a waiver may be granted pursuant to clause (i).

(iii) The Secretary shall provide information on a timely basis to the Committee on Education and Labor of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate on waivers that have been granted under clause (i).

[(E)] (C)(i) The Secretary shall provide technical assistance to small Indian State agencies carrying out this paragraph in order to assist such agencies to achieve the maximum cost containment savings feasible.

(ii) The Secretary shall also provide technical assistance, on request, to State agencies that desire to consider a cost containment system that covers more than 1 State agency.

(iii) The Secretary may waive the requirement of subparagraph [(B)] (A) in the case of any Indian State agency that has not more than 1,000 participants.

[(F)] (D) No State may enter into a cost containment contract (in this subparagraph referred to as the original contract") that prescribes conditions that would void, reduce the savings under, or otherwise limit the original contract if the State solicited or secured bids for, or entered into, a subsequent cost containment contract to take effect after the expiration of the original contract.

[(G)(i)] (E) The Secretary shall offer to solicit bids on behalf of State agencies regarding cost-containment contracts to be entered into by infant formula manufacturers and State agencies. The Secretary shall make the offer to State agencies once every 12 months. Each such bid solicitation shall only take place if two or more State agencies request the Secretary to perform the solicitation. For such State agencies, the Secretary shall solicit bids and select the winning bidder for a cost containment contract to be entered into by State agencies and infant formula manufacturers or suppliers.

[(ii)] If the Secretary determines that the number of State agencies making the election in clause (i) so warrants, the Secretary may, in consultation with such State agencies, divide such State agencies into more than one group of such agencies and solicit bids for a contract for each such group. In determining the size of the groups of agencies, the Secretary shall, to the extent practicable, take into account the need to maximize the number of potential bidders so as to increase competition among infant formula manufacturers.

[(iii)] State agencies that elect to authorize the Secretary to perform the bid solicitation and selection process on their behalf and enter into the resulting containment contract shall obtain the rebates or discounts from the manufacturers or suppliers participating in the contract.

[(iv)] In soliciting bids and determining the winning bidder under clause (i), the Secretary shall comply with the requirements of subparagraphs (B) and (F).

[(v)(I)] Except as provided in subclause (II), the term of the contract for which bids are to be solicited under this paragraph shall be announced by the Secretary in consultation with the affected State agencies and shall be not less than 2 years.

[(II)] If the law of a State regarding the duration of contracts is inconsistent with subclause (I), the Secretary shall permit a 1-year contract, with the option provided to the State to extend the contract for additional years.

[(vi)] In prescribing specifications for the bids, the Secretary shall ensure that the contracts to be entered into by the State agencies and the infant formula manufacturers or suppliers provide for a constant net price for infant formula products for the full term of the contracts and provide for rebates or discounts for all units of infant formula sold through the program that are produced by the manufacturer awarded the contract and that are for a type of formula product covered under the contract. The contracts shall cover all types of infant formula products normally covered under cost containment contracts entered into by State agencies.

[(vii) The Secretary shall also develop procedures for—

[(I) rejecting all bids for any joint contract and announcing a resolicitation of infant formula bids where necessary;

[(II) permitting a State agency that has authorized the Secretary to undertake bid solicitation on its behalf under this subparagraph to decline to enter into the joint contract to be negotiated and awarded pursuant to the solicitation if the agency promptly determines after the bids are opened that participation would not be in the best interest of its program; and

[(III) assuring infant formula manufacturers submitting a bid under this subparagraph that a contract awarded pursuant to the bid will cover State agencies serving no fewer than a number of infants to be specified in the bid solicitation.

[(viii) The bid solicitation and selection process on behalf of the State agencies shall be conducted in accordance with any procedures the Secretary deems necessary for the effective and efficient administration of the bid solicitation and selection process and consistent with the requirements of this subparagraph. The procedures established by the Secretary shall ensure that—

[(I) the bid solicitation and selection process is conducted in a manner providing full and open competition; and

[(II) the bid solicitation and selection process is free of any real or apparent conflict of interest.”

[(ix) Not later than September 30, 1996, the Secretary shall offer to solicit bids on behalf of State agencies regarding cost containment contracts to be entered into by infant cereal manufacturers and State agencies. The Secretary may carry out this clause without issuing regulations.]

[(H) (F) In soliciting bids for contracts for infant formula for the program authorized by this section, the Secretary shall solicit bids from infant formula manufacturers under procedures in which bids for rebates or discounts are solicited for milk-based and soy-based infant formula, separately, except where the Secretary determines that such solicitation procedures are not in the best interest of the program.

[(I) (G) To reduce the costs of any supplemental foods, the Secretary—

[(i) shall promote, but not require, the joint purchase of infant formula among State agencies electing not to participate under the procedures set forth in subparagraph (G);

[(ii) shall encourage and promote (but not require) the purchase of supplemental foods other than infant formula under cost containment procedures;

[(iii) shall inform State agencies of the benefits of cost containment and provide assistance and technical advice at State agency request regarding the State agency's use of cost containment procedures;

[(iv) shall encourage (but not require) the joint purchase of supplemental foods other than infant formula under procedures specified in subparagraph (B), if the Secretary determines that—【(I) the anticipated savings are expected to be significant;

【(II) the administrative expenses involved in purchasing the food item through competitive bidding procedures, whether under a rebate or discount system, will not exceed the savings anticipated to be generated by the procedures; and

【(III) the procedures would be consistent with the purposes of the program; and

【(v) may】 Secretary may make available additional funds to State agencies out of the funds otherwise available under paragraph (1)(A) for nutrition services and administration in an amount not exceeding one half of 1 percent of the amounts to help defray reasonable anticipated expenses associated with innovations in cost containment or associated with procedures that tend to enhance competition.

【(J)】 (H)(i) Any person, company, corporation, or other legal entity that submits a bid to supply infant formula to carry out the program authorized by this section and announces or otherwise discloses the amount of the bid, or the rebate or discount practices of such entities, in advance of the time the bids are opened by the Secretary or the State agency, or any person, company, corporation, or other legal entity that makes a statement (prior to the opening of bids) relating to levels of rebates or discounts, for the purpose of influencing a bid submitted by any other person, shall be ineligible to submit bids to supply infant formula to the program for the bidding in progress for up to 2 years from the date the bids are opened and shall be subject to a civil penalty of up to $100,000,000, as determined by the Secretary to provide restitution to the program for harm done to the program. The Secretary shall issue regulations providing such person, company, corporation, or other legal entity appropriate notice, and an opportunity to be heard and to respond to charges.

(ii) The Secretary shall determine the length of the disqualification, and the amount of the civil penalty referred to in clause (i) based on such factors as the Secretary by regulation determines appropriate.

(iii) Any person, company, corporation, or other legal entity disqualified under clause (i) shall remain obligated to perform any requirements under any contract to supply infant formula existing at the time of the disqualification and until each such contract expires by its terms.

【(K)】 (I) Not later than the expiration of the 180-day period beginning on the date of enactment of this subparagraph, the Secretary shall prescribe regulations to carry out this paragraph.

【(L)】 (J) A State shall not incur any interest liability to the Federal Government on rebate funds for infant formula and other foods if all interest earned by the State on the funds is used for program purposes.

【(M)】(i) The Secretary shall establish pilot projects in at least 1 State, with the consent of the State, to determine the feasibility and cost of requiring States to carry out a system for using universal product codes to assist retail food stores that are vendors under the program in providing the type of infant formula that the participants in the program are authorized to obtain. In carrying out the projects, the Secretary shall determine whether the system reduces the incidence of incorrect redemptions of low-iron formula or brands of infant formula not authorized to be redeemed through the program, or both.

[(ii) The Secretary shall provide a notification to the Committee on Education and Labor of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate regarding whether the system is feasible, is cost-effective, reduces the incidence of incorrect redemptions described in clause (i), and results in any additional costs to States.

[(iii) The system shall not require a vendor under the program to obtain special equipment and shall not be applicable to a vendor that does not have equipment that can use universal product codes.]

Subtitle A—Block Grants for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families

SEC. 4101. FINDINGS.

The Congress makes the following findings:

- (1) Marriage is the foundation of a successful society.
- (2) Marriage is an essential institution of a successful society which promotes the interests of children.
- (3) Promotion of responsible fatherhood and motherhood is integral to successful child rearing and the well-being of children.
- (4) In 1992, only 54 percent of single-parent families with children had a child support order established and, of that 54 percent, only about one-half received the full amount due. Of the cases enforced through the public child support enforcement system, only 18 percent of the caseload has a collection.
- (5) The number of individuals receiving aid to families with dependent children (in this section referred to as "AFDC") has more than tripled since 1965. More than two-thirds of these recipients are children. Eighty-nine percent of children receiving AFDC benefits now live in homes in which no father is present.
 - (A)(i) The average monthly number of children receiving AFDC benefits—
 - (I) was 3,300,000 in 1965;
 - (II) was 6,200,000 in 1970;
 - (III) was 7,400,000 in 1980; and
 - (IV) was 9,300,000 in 1992.
 - (ii) While the number of children receiving AFDC benefits increased nearly threefold between 1965 and 1992, the total number of children in the United States aged 0 to 18 has declined by 5.5 percent.
- (B) The Department of Health and Human Services has estimated that 12,000,000 children will receive AFDC benefits within 10 years.
- (C) The increase in the number of children receiving public assistance is closely related to the increase in births to unmarried women. Between 1970 and 1991, the percentage of live births to unmarried women increased nearly threefold, from 10.7 percent to 29.5 percent.
- (6) The increase of out-of-wedlock pregnancies and births is well documented as follows:
 - (A) It is estimated that the rate of nonmarital teen pregnancy rose 23 percent from 54 pregnancies per 1,000 unmarried teenagers in 1976 to 66.7 pregnancies in 1991. The overall rate of nonmarital pregnancy rose 14 percent from 90.8 pregnancies per 1,000 unmarried women in 1980 to 103 in both 1991 and 1992. In contrast, the overall pregnancy rate for married couples decreased 7.3 percent between 1980 and 1991, from 126.9 pregnancies per 1,000 married women in 1980 to 117.6 pregnancies in 1991.
 - (B) The total of all out-of-wedlock births between 1970 and 1991 has risen from 10.7 percent to 29.5 percent and if the current trend continues, 50 percent of all births by the year 2015 will be out-of-wedlock.

(7) The negative consequences of an out-of-wedlock birth on the mother, the child, the family, and society are well documented as follows:

(A) Young women 17 and under who give birth outside of marriage are more likely to go on public assistance and to spend more years on welfare once enrolled. These combined effects of “younger and longer” increase total AFDC costs per household by 25 percent to 30 percent for 17-year-olds.

(B) Children born out-of-wedlock have a substantially higher risk of being born at a very low or moderately low birth weight.

(C) Children born out-of-wedlock are more likely to experience low verbal cognitive attainment, as well as more child abuse, and neglect.

(D) Children born out-of-wedlock were more likely to have lower cognitive scores, lower educational aspirations, and a greater likelihood of becoming teenage parents themselves.

(E) Being born out-of-wedlock significantly reduces the chances of the child growing up to have an intact marriage.

(F) Children born out-of-wedlock are 3 times more likely to be on welfare when they grow up.

(8) Currently 35 percent of children in single-parent homes were born out-of-wedlock, nearly the same percentage as that of children in single-parent homes whose parents are divorced (37 percent). While many parents find themselves, through divorce or tragic circumstances beyond their control, facing the difficult task of raising children alone, nevertheless, the negative consequences of raising children in single-parent homes are well documented as follows:

(A) Only 9 percent of married-couple families with children under 18 years of age have income below the national poverty level. In contrast, 46 percent of female-headed households with children under 18 years of age are below the national poverty level.

(B) Among single-parent families, nearly $\frac{1}{2}$ of the mothers who never married received AFDC while only $\frac{1}{5}$ of divorced mothers received AFDC.

(C) Children born into families receiving welfare assistance are 3 times more likely to be on welfare when they reach adulthood than children not born into families receiving welfare.

(E) The younger the single parent mother, the less likely she is to finish high school.

(F) Young women who have children before finishing high school are more likely to receive welfare assistance for a longer period of time.

(G) Between 1985 and 1990, the public cost of births to teenage mothers under the aid to families with dependent children program, the food stamp program, and the medicaid program has been estimated at $120,000,000,000.

(H) The absence of a father in the life of a child has a negative effect on school performance and peer adjustment.

(I) Children of teenage single parents have lower cognitive scores, lower educational aspirations, and a greater likelihood of becoming teenage parents themselves.

(J) Children of single-parent homes are 3 times more likely to fail and repeat a year in grade school than are children from intact 2-parent families.

(K) Children from single-parent homes are almost 4 times more likely to be expelled or suspended from school.

(L) Neighborhoods with larger percentages of youth aged 12 through 20 and areas with higher percentages of single-parent households have higher rates of violent crime.

(M) Of those youth held for criminal offenses within the State juvenile justice system, only 29.8 percent lived primarily in a home with both parents. In contrast to these incarcerated youth, 73.9 percent of the 62,800,000 children in the Nation's resident population were living with both parents.

(9) Therefore, in light of this demonstration of the crisis in our Nation, it is the sense of the Congress that prevention of out-of-wedlock pregnancy and reduction in out-of-wedlock birth are very important Government interests and the policy contained in part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (as amended by section 4103(a) of this Act) is intended to address the crisis.

SEC. 4102. REFERENCE TO SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.

Except as otherwise specifically provided, wherever in this subtitle an amendment is expressed in terms of an amendment to or repeal of a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to that section or other provision of the Social Security Act.

SEC. 4103. BLOCK GRANTS TO STATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part A of title IV (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) is amended—

(1) by striking all that precedes section 418 (as added by section 4803(b)(2) of this Act) and inserting the following:

“PART A—BLOCK GRANTS TO STATES FOR TEMPORARY ASSISTANCE FOR NEEDY FAMILIES

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The purpose of this part is to increase the flexibility of States in operating a program designed to—

“(1) provide assistance to needy families so that children may be cared for in their own homes or in the homes of relatives;

“(2) end the dependence of needy parents on government benefits by promoting job preparation, work, and marriage;

“(3) prevent and reduce the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies and establish annual numerical goals for preventing and reducing the incidence of these pregnancies; and

“(b) NO INDIVIDUAL ENTITLEMENT.—This part shall not be interpreted to entitle any individual or family to assistance under any State program funded under this part.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—As used in this part, the term ‘eligible State’ means, with respect to a fiscal year, a State that, during the 2-year period immediately preceding the fiscal year, has submitted to the Secretary a plan that the Secretary has found includes the following:

“(1) OUTLINE OF FAMILY ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.—

“(A) GENERAL PROVISIONS.—A written document that outlines how the State intends to do the following:

“(i) Conduct a program, designed to serve all political subdivisions in the State (not necessarily in a uniform manner), that provides assistance to needy families with (or expecting) children and provides parents with job preparation, work, and support services to enable them to leave the program and become self-sufficient.

“(ii) Require a parent or caretaker receiving assistance under the program to engage in work (as defined by the State) once the State determines the parent or caretaker is ready to engage in work, or once the parent or caretaker has received assistance under the program for 24 months (whether or not consecutive), whichever is earlier.

“(iii) Ensure that parents and caretakers receiving assistance under the program engage in work activities in accordance with section 407.

“(iv) Take such reasonable steps as the State deems necessary to restrict the use and disclosure of information about individuals and families receiving assistance under the program attributable to funds provided by the Federal Government.

“(v) Establish goals and take action (including provision of education and counseling (including abstinence-based programs) and pre-pregnancy health services) to prevent and reduce the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies, with special emphasis on teenage pregnancies, and establish numerical goals for reducing the illegitimacy ratio of the State (as defined in section 403(a)(2)(B)) for calendar years 1996 through 2005.

“(B) SPECIAL PROVISIONS.—

“(i) The document shall indicate whether the State intends to treat families moving into the State from another State differently than other families under the program, and if so, how the State intends to treat such families under the program.

“(ii) The document shall indicate whether the State intends to provide assistance under the program to individuals who are not citizens of the United States, and if so, shall include an overview of such assistance.

“(ii)(I) The look-back date specified in this subclause is a date that is 36 months before the date specified in subclause (II).

“(II) The date specified in this subclause is the date on which the individual applies for benefits under this title or, if later, the date on which the disposal of the individual’s resources for less than fair market value occurs.

“(iii) The date specified in this clause is the first day of the first month that follows the month in which the individual’s resources were disposed of for less than fair market value and that does not occur in any other period of ineligibility under this paragraph.

“(I) there is made a payment other than to or for the benefit of the individual, or

“(II) no payment could under any circumstance be made to the individual, then the payment described in subclause (I) or the foreclosure of payment described in subclause (II) shall be considered a disposal of resources by the individual subject to this subsection, as of the date of such payment or foreclosure, respectively.

Subtitle D—Restricting Welfare and Public Benefits for Aliens

SEC. 4400. STATEMENTS OF NATIONAL POLICY CONCERNING WELFARE AND IMMIGRATION.

The Congress makes the following statements concerning national policy with respect to welfare and immigration:

- (1) Self-sufficiency has been a basic principle of United States immigration law since this country’s earliest immigration statutes.
- (2) It continues to be the immigration policy of the United States that—
 - (A) aliens within the Nation’s borders not depend on public resources to meet their needs, but rather rely on their own capabilities and the resources of their families, their sponsors, and private organizations, and
 - (B) the availability of public benefits not constitute an incentive for immigration to the United States.
- (3) Despite the principle of self-sufficiency, aliens have been applying for and receiving public benefits from Federal, State, and local governments at increasing rates.
- (4) Current eligibility rules for public assistance and unenforceable financial support agreements have proved wholly incapable of assuring that individual aliens not burden the public benefits system.

(5) It is a compelling government interest to enact new rules for eligibility and sponsorship agreements in order to assure that aliens be self-reliant in accordance with national immigration policy.

(6) It is a compelling government interest to remove the incentive for illegal immigration provided by the availability of public benefits.

(7) With respect to the State authority to make determinations concerning the eligibility of qualified aliens for public benefits in this subtitle, a State that chooses to follow the Federal classification in determining the eligibility of such aliens for public assistance shall be considered to have chosen the least restrictive means available for achieving the compelling governmental interest of assuring that aliens be self-reliant in accordance with national immigration policy.

For purposes of the preceding sentence, a child whose costs in a foster family home or child-care institution are covered by the foster care maintenance payments being made with respect to his or her minor parent, as provided in section 426(6)(B), shall be considered a child with respect to whom foster care maintenance payments are being made under section 472.

“(d) CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL NEEDS.—For purposes of subsection (b)(1)(B), a child meets the requirements of this subsection if such child—

“(1)(A) at the time adoption proceedings were initiated, met the requirements of section 406(a) (as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act of 1996) or section 407 (as so in effect) or would have met such requirements except for such child’s removal from the home of a relative (specified in section 406(a) (as so in effect)), either pursuant to a voluntary placement agreement with respect to which Federal payments are provided under section 474 (or 403 (as so in effect)) or as a result of a judicial determination to the effect that continuation therein would be contrary to the welfare of such child;

“(B) meets all of the requirements of title XVI with respect to eligibility for supplemental security income benefits; or

“(C) is a child whose costs in a foster family home or child-care institution are covered by the foster care maintenance payments being made with respect to his or her minor parent;

“(2)(A) would have received aid under the eligibility standards under the State plan approved under section 402 (as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this part, adjusted for inflation, in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary) in or for the month in which such agreement was entered into or court proceedings leading to the removal of such child from the home were initiated;

“(B) would have received such aid in or for such month if application had been made therefor, or had been living with a relative specified in section 406(a) (as so in effect) within 6 months prior to the month in which such agreement was entered into or such proceedings were initiated, and would have received such aid in or for such month if in such month such child had been living with such a relative and application therefor had been made; or

“(C) is a child described in subparagraph (A) or (B); and

“(3) has been determined by the State, pursuant to subsection (h) of this section, to be a child with special needs.

“(e) DETERMINATION OF PAYMENTS.—The amount of the payments to be made in any case under subsection (b) shall be determined through agreement between the adoptive parents and the State or a public or nonprofit private agency administering the program under this part, which shall take into consideration the circumstances of the adopting parents and the needs of the child being adopted, and may be readjusted periodically, with the concurrence of the adopting parents (which may be specified in the adoption assistance agreement), depending upon changes in such circumstances. However, in no case may the amount of the adoption assistance payment exceed the foster care maintenance payment which would have been paid during the period if the child with respect to whom the adoption assistance payment is made had been in a foster family home.

“(f) PAYMENT EXCEPTION.—Notwithstanding subsection (e), no payment may be made to parents with respect to any child who has attained the age of 18 (or, where the State determines that the child has a mental or physical disability which warrants the continuation of assistance, the age of 21), and no payment may be made to parents with respect to any child if the State determines that the parents are no longer legally responsible for the support of the child or if the State determines that the child is no longer receiving any support from such parents. Parents who have been receiving adoption assistance payments under this part shall keep the State or public or nonprofit private agency administering the program under this part informed of circumstances which would, pursuant to this section, make them ineligible for such assistance payments, or eligible for assistance payments in a different amount.

“(g) PREADoption PAYMENTS.—For purposes of this part, individuals with whom a child who has been determined by the State, pursuant to subsection (h), to be a child with special needs is placed for adoption in accordance with applicable State and local law shall be eligible for adoption assistance payments during the period of the placement, on the same terms and subject to the same conditions as if such individuals had adopted such child.

“(h) DETERMINATION OF CHILD WITH SPECIAL NEEDS.—For purposes of this section, a child shall not be considered a child with special needs unless—

“(1) the State has determined that the child cannot or should not be returned to the home of the child’s parents; and

“(2) the State had first determined—

“(A) that there exists with respect to the child a specific factor or condition such as the child’s ethnic background, age, or membership in a minority or sibling group, or the presence of factors such as medical conditions or physical, mental, or emotional handicaps because of which it is reasonable to conclude that such child cannot be placed with adoptive parents without providing adoption assistance under this part or medical assistance under title XV or XIX; and

“(B) that, except where it would be against the best interests of the child because of such factors as the existence of significant emotional ties with prospective adoptive parents while in the care of such parents as a foster child, a reasonable, but unsuccessful, effort has been made to place the child with appropriate adoptive parents without providing adoption assistance under this section or medical assistance under title XV or XIX.”

(e) PAYMENTS TO STATES; ALLOTMENTS TO STATES.—Section 474 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 674) is amended to read as follows:

“(C) 50 percent (or, if the quarter is in fiscal year 1997, 75 percent) of so much of such expenditures as are for the planning, design, development, or installation of statewide mechanized data collection and information retrieval systems (including 50 percent (or, if the quarter is in fiscal year 1997, 75 percent) of the full amount of expenditures for hardware components for such systems) but only to the extent that such systems—

“(i) meet the requirements imposed by regulations;

“(ii) to the extent practicable, are capable of interfacing with the State data collection system that collects information relating to child abuse and neglect;

“(i) one-half of any additional amounts expended by such State for such programs; or

“(b) AUTOMATED DATA COLLECTION EXPENDITURES.—The Secretary shall treat as necessary for the proper and efficient administration of the State plan all expenditures of a State necessary in order for the State to plan, design, develop, install, and operate data collection and information retrieval systems, without regard to whether the systems may be used with respect to foster or adoptive children other than those on behalf of whom foster care maintenance payments or adoption assistance payments may be made under this part.

“(c) ESTIMATES BY THE SECRETARY.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall, prior to the beginning of each quarter, estimate the amount which a State will be entitled to receive under subsection (a) for such quarter, such estimates to be based on—

“(A) a report filed by the State containing its estimate of the total sum to be expended in such quarter in accordance with subsection (a), and stating the amount appropriated or made available by the State and its political subdivisions for such expenditures in such quarter, and if such amount is less than the State’s proportionate share of the total sum of such estimated expenditures, the source or sources from which the difference is expected to be derived;

“(3) PRO RATA SHARE.— The pro rata share to which the United States is equitably entitled, as determined by the Secretary, of the net amount recovered during any quarter by the State or any political subdivision thereof with respect to foster care and adoption assistance furnished under this part shall be considered an overpayment to be adjusted under this subsection.

“(d) ALLOWANCE OR DISALLOWANCE OF CLAIM.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Within 60 days after receipt of a State claim for expenditures pursuant to subsection (b)(1), the Secretary shall allow, disallow, or defer such claim.

“(2) NOTICE.—Within 15 days after a decision to defer a State claim, the Secretary shall notify the State of the reasons for the deferral and of the additional information necessary to determine the allowability of the claim.

“(3) DECISION.—Within 90 days after receiving such necessary information (in readily reviewable form), the Secretary shall—

“(A) disallow the claim, if able to complete the review and determine that the claim is not allowable; or

“(B) in any other case, allow the claim, subject to disallowance (as necessary)—

“(i) upon completion of the review, if it is determined that the claim is not allowable; or

“(1) BASIC AMOUNT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The basic amount to which a State shall be entitled under section 474(a)(4) for a fiscal year shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the basic ceiling for such fiscal year as such State’s average number of children receiving foster care maintenance payments under part E in fiscal year 1984 bore to the total of the average number of children receiving such payments under such part for all States for fiscal year 1984.

“(B) MAXIMUM ADDITIONAL AMOUNT.—The maximum additional amount to which a State shall be entitled under section 474(a)(4) for a fiscal year shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the additional ceiling for such fiscal year as the basic amount of such State bears to $45,000,000.

“(2) REALLOCATION OF FUNDS.—If any State does not apply for funds under this section for any fiscal year within the time provided in subsection (c), the funds to which such State would have been entitled for such fiscal year shall be reallocated to one or more other States on the basis of their relative need for additional payments under this section (as determined by the Secretary).

“(3) SUPPLEMENT TO OTHER FUNDS.—Any amounts payable to States under this section shall be in addition to amounts payable to States under paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of section 474(a), and shall supplement and not replace any other funds which may be available for the same general purposes in the localities involved.

Subchapter C—Miscellaneous

SEC. 4721. SECRETARIAL SUBMISSION OF LEGISLATIVE PROPOSAL FOR TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this chapter, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, in consultation, as appropriate, with the heads of other Federal agencies, shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a legislative proposal providing for such technical and conforming amendments in the law as are required by the provisions of this chapter.

SEC. 4722. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS REGARDING TIMELY ADOPTION OF CHILDREN.

It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) too many children who wish to be adopted are spending inordinate amounts of time in foster care;

(2) there is an urgent need for States to increase the number of waiting children being adopted in a timely and lawful manner;

(3) studies have shown that States spend an excess of $15,000 each year on each special needs child in foster care, and would save significant amounts of money if they offered incentives to families to adopt special needs children;

(4) States should allocate sufficient funds under this subtitle for adoption assistance and medical assistance to encourage more families to adopt children who otherwise would languish in the foster care system for a period that many experts consider detrimental to their development;

(5) States should offer incentives for families that adopt special needs children to make adoption more affordable for middle-class families;

(6) when it is necessary for a State to remove a child from the home of the child’s biological parents, the State should strive—

(A) to provide the child with a single foster care placement and a single coordinated case team; and

(B) to conclude an adoption of the child, when adoption is the goal of the child and the State, within one year of the child’s placement in foster care; and

(7) States should participate in local, regional, or national programs to enable maximum visibility of waiting children to potential parents. Such programs should include a nationwide, interactive computer network to disseminate information on children eligible for adoption to help match them with families around the country.

SEC. 4723. EFFECTIVE DATE; TRANSITION RULES.

(a) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), this chapter and the amendments made by this chapter shall be effective on and after October 1, 1996.

(2) EXCEPTION.—Section 425 of the Social Security Act, as added by section 4701 of this Act, shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this chapter.

(3) TEMPORARY REDESIGNATION OF SECTION 425.—During the period beginning on the date of the enactment of this chapter and ending on October 1, 1996, section 425 of the Social Security Act, as added by section 4701 of this Act, is redesignated as section 425A.

(b) TRANSITION RULES.—

(1) CLAIMS, ACTIONS, AND PROCEEDINGS.—The amendments made by this chapter shall not apply with respect to—

(A) powers, duties, functions, rights, claims, penalties, or obligations applicable to aid, assistance, or services provided before the effective date of this chapter under the provisions amended; and

(B) administrative actions and proceedings commenced before such date, or authorized before such date to be commenced, under such provisions.

(2) CLOSING OUT ACCOUNT FOR THOSE PROGRAMS TERMINATED OR SUBSTANTIALLY MODIFIED BY THIS CHAPTER.—In closing out accounts, Federal and State officials may use scientifically acceptable statistical sampling techniques. Claims made under programs which are repealed or substantially amended in this chapter and which involve State expenditures in cases where assistance or services were provided during a prior fiscal year, shall be treated as expenditures during fiscal year 1995 for purposes of reimbursement even if payment was made by a State on or after October 1, 1995. States shall complete the filing of all claims no later than September 30, 1997. Federal department heads shall—

(A) use the single audit procedure to review and resolve any claims in connection with the closeout of programs; and

(B) reimburse States for any payments made for assistance or services provided during a prior fiscal year from funds for fiscal year 1995, rather than the funds authorized by this chapter.

“(2) To support State efforts to develop, operate, expand and enhance a network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs that are culturally competent and that coordinate resources among existing education, vocational rehabilitation, disability, respite, health, mental health, job readiness, self-sufficiency, child and family development, community action, Head Start, child care, child abuse and neglect prevention, juvenile justice, domestic violence prevention and intervention, housing, and other human service organizations within the State.

INTRODUCTION

DESCRIPTION OF BUDGET RECONCILIATION WELFARE RECOMMENDATIONS AS APPROVED

A. BLOCK GRANT FOR TEMPORARY ASSISTANCE FOR NEEDY FAMILIES

The welfare reform proposal approved by the committee would create a single cash welfare block grant for the purposes of: providing assistance to needy families with children; ending dependence on government benefits by promoting job preparation; work and marriage; preventing and reducing the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies; and encouraging the formation and maintenance of two-parent families. The block grant would replace four current cash welfare and related programs: Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), AFDC Administration, the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills (JOBS) Program, and the Emergency Assistance Program.

Spending through the block grant would be capped and level-funded at prior levels for these programs. A total of $16.35 billion each year for fiscal years 1996 through 2001 would be provided to States through the block grant. Each State would receive the highest of Federal payments to the State for AFDC benefits, AFDC Administration, Emergency Assistance, and JOBS for: (1) fiscal years 1992 through 1994, on average; (2) fiscal year 1994; or (3) fiscal year 1995; plus, under certain circumstances, 85 percent of increased fiscal year 1995 spending for emergency assistance.

In addition to the basic block grant, States would be provided with additional funding through a $1 billion fund that rewards effective performance in preserving 2-parent families and getting parents into the work force in the following ways: through an incentive grant that provides cash rewards of up to 10 percent of the basic State grant amount to States that reduce their nonmarital birthrate while decreasing their abortion rate; through a fund of $0.8 billion for poor States with high population growth rates; and through a $2 billion contingency fund that helps States with high levels of economic distress (see below).

States would be required to conduct welfare-to-work programs, and individuals receiving cash benefits through the block grant would be required to work after 2 years or their cash payments would end. According to the Congressional Budget Office, States would be required to have 1.3 million cash welfare recipients in work programs by 2002.

States would be required to ensure that cash welfare recipients are eligible for Medicaid coverage. In addition, States would be required to provide transitional Medicaid benefits for 1 year for families that leave welfare due to increased earnings or child support as long as their income remains below the poverty level; however, earned income credit (EIC) benefits would be disregarded from a family's income in determining eligibility for transitional Medicaid benefits.

The individual entitlement to cash welfare payments (currently provided under the AFDC program) would be ended. Block grant funds would guarantee payments to States for 6 years, but States would be penalized by losing Federal funds if they fail to meet requirements set forth in the legislation, such as providing data to the Federal Government and ensuring that funds are spent on children and families. States that misuse block grant funds would have to repay the amount misspent, plus pay a penalty using State funds.

States would be prohibited from using block grant funds to provide cash welfare to:

- (1) Families with no minor children;
- (2) Families that have an additional child while on welfare (States can "opt-out" of this prohibition);

- (3) Parents that do not cooperate on child support;
- (4) Families that have not assigned support rights to the State;
- (5) Mothers under 18 who have a child out-of-wedlock and fail to live with an adult and stay in school;
- (6) Provide medical services (except for family planning services)
- (7) Parents not working after 2 years of receiving cash welfare;
- (8) Families receiving cash welfare for more than 5 years with hardship exceptions for up to 20 percent of families on welfare;
- (9) Individuals who fraudulently attempt to obtain benefits in two or more States; and
- (10) Fugitive felons.

Subject to State determinations, individuals in each of the above categories would generally continue to be eligible for certain other means-tested benefit programs.

States would be given flexibility in developing anti-poverty programs, and would be able to transfer up to 30 percent of block grant funds to child care, child welfare, and social service block grants. States could reserve block grant funds to provide for increased need for cash welfare assistance during a recession or other emergencies. New Federal "rainy day" loan and grant funds would provide a total of $3.7 billion in added funding, from which States could draw in times of financial need.

States would be audited and required to report a broad range of data so the Federal Government can assess the success of block grant programs, determine that needy children and families are being protected, and ensure that taxpayers' interests are being served.

B. SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME (SSI)

Prisoners would be made ineligible for Federal disability benefits by reforms that provide new financial incentives for local institutions to report inmate lists for matching with SSI and Old-Aged, Survivors, and Disability Insurance beneficiary rolls.

In order to better target benefits for children who are disabled and also to combat increased abuse of the SSI program, the eligibility of children for SSI benefits would change. Children currently found to be disabled due to a functional assessment and who do not meet a criterion of physical or mental impairment which results in marked and severe functional limitations would no longer be eligible for cash SSI payments. Children who exhibit so-called "age-inappropriate" behavior, which the committee and other expert groups have found to be particularly prone to abuse, would no longer qualify for benefits. In applying the new test of childhood disability, the Commissioner of Social Security would have to take into account the combined effects of all physical or mental impairments to be taken into account when determining whether a child is disabled. Regulations would have to be provided for the evaluation of children who cannot be tested because of their young age.

At least once every 3 years, States would have to conduct continuing disability reviews for children eligible for SSI benefits, except those whose condition is permanent and cannot improve. Reviews would also be conducted for children who turn 18 to determine continuing eligibility under the adult criteria.

C. CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT

The proposal is designed to ensure that children receive the support they are due on time and in full by achieving three major goals: establishing uniform State tracking procedures; taking strong measures to establish paternity and funding; and ensuring tough child support enforcement.

To establish uniform State tracking of delinquent parents, and especially those fleeing across States lines, a common State registry for recording child support orders would be created. States would be given flexibility in distributing collections, and centralized collection and disbursement of payments would be encouraged. The proposal would express the sense of Congress that States may choose the method of compliance which best meets the needs of parents, employers, and children in establishing centralized collection and disbursement units. States would be required to create State Directories of New Hires, with information used to establish paternity, modify and enforce support orders, and reduce fraud involving Federal benefit programs. State hire information also would be transmitted to the Federal Parent Locator Service for data matches with other States.

States would be required to adopt the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act to achieve uniformity in interstate cases, and also to recognize other States' uncontested child support orders and to create procedures to quickly establish paternity and enforce orders.

In the absence of paternity establishment, taxpayers are left to pay literally billions of dollars in welfare expenses that are the obligation of delinquent parents. To improve paternity establishment and funding. States would be required to have laws or procedures that provide for medical verification in cases of contested paternity, would strengthen cooperation requirements for paternity establishment for public assistance applicants and recipients, and would simplify voluntary paternity establishment. Signed acknowledgements of paternity would be made final judgments after 60 days, voluntary establishment of paternity would be encouraged through outreach programs, and the Federal matching payments would be funded at a rate of 66 percent. States would be provided with additional funding to improve their automated data management systems.

The proposal would provide needed enforcement tools in key areas and work to reduce future delinquency on the part of parents by: requiring Federal, State and local governments, and Federal and military employees and retirees to comply with the same child support laws that apply to the private sector. The proposal would make grants to States for access and visitation programs to encourage participation in the life of the child by the noncustodial parent.

D. NONCITIZENS

After the date of enactment, most noncitizens would no longer be eligible for SSI and food stamp benefits and, at State option, cash welfare, social services, and Medicaid. Most noncitizens arriving after the date of enactment would be ineligible for most Federal welfare benefits during their first 5 years in the United States.

Noncitizens would remain eligible for the earned income tax credit (if they are authorized to work), emergency medical services and immunizations, foster care and adoption benefits, and education benefits, among other benefits.

Exceptions would be made for refugees during their first 5 years in the United States, veterans, and persons who have worked in the United States for 10 or more years, among others. Noncitizens currently receiving SSI and food stamp benefits would remain eligible either until a review determines that they do not qualify under the new standards or 1 year after enactment, whichever occurs first.

Sponsorship agreements, by which family members and others agree to help noncitizens who would otherwise qualify for welfare, would be made legally binding and would apply until the immigrant becomes a citizen. The agreements are not now legally binding and last for only 3 or 5 years. A sponsor's income would be "deemed" or added to the noncitizen's income in determining the noncitizen's eligibility for most Federal welfare benefits (with certain individuals and programs excepted as above). Noncitizens illegally in the United States would be barred from almost all Federal welfare benefits; illegals would be similarly barred from State and local welfare benefits, but States could "optout" of this prohibition with regard to specific programs. States would be given the option to follow the Federal classification of U.S. citizens and legal noncitizens in determining eligibility for any State, local or municipal means-tested public assistance program.

E. PUBLIC HOUSING

If a person's means-tested benefits from a Federal, State, or local welfare program are reduced because of an act of fraud, their benefits from public or assisted housing may not be increased in response to the income loss caused by the penalty.

F. CHILD PROTECTION

The proposal would retain the open-ended entitlement funding for foster care and adoption assistance maintenance payments, training, and administration. The proposal would clarify that Medicaid coverage is guaranteed for children in foster care or children covered by adoption assistance agreements. The provision also would preserve the existing capped entitlement for Independent Living services. States would be provided with 1 year of enhanced funding to complete implementation of their Statewide Automated Child Welfare Information Systems.

While retaining both the unlimited entitlement money for foster care and adoption as well as the child protection standards in current law, the provision would cap other programs and consolidate most of them into a Child Protection Block Grant that States can use to protect abused and neglected children. The purpose of this block grant would be to help States identify and assist families at risk of abusing or neglecting their children, to support children who must be removed from or who cannot live with their families, to support children in foster care or placed for adoption, and to provide for continuing evaluation and improvement of child protection laws, and to provide for continuing evaluation and improvement of child protection laws, regulations and services. By consolidating 11 existing child welfare programs into block grants, the provision would streamline 4 different State plans and applications into a single requirement.

The Child Protection Block Grant would contain two streams of funding. The first would be a stream of guaranteed (entitlement) funding that rises from $240 million in 1997 to $286 million in 2002. The second would be a discretionary stream with an annual authorization level of $325 million.

G. CHILD CARE

This provision would consolidate seven child care programs into a single program to assist low-income working parents in paying for child care. Consolidation of programs would eliminate conflicting income requirements, time limits, and work requirements between and among programs, and facilitate efficient use of Federal money by both States and parents.

While the entitlement to child care would end, this block grant would provide Federal funds that are allowed to follow the parent whether the parent is receiving public cash assistance while participating in a work-related activity or education program, has recently left public assistance, or is otherwise employed but meets the State's criteria for "very low income." This approach would be intended to eliminate the gaps, disruptions, and excessive paperwork caused by the fact that current law establishes separate programs for each of these groups of parents.

The block grant contains provisions which would promote parental choice and would give parents authority to decide where to send their child for day care services, and would include the option of receiving assistance through vouchers or cash.

In addition to establishing a single child care block grant, the provision would add mandatory funds to the existing Child Care and Development Block Grant. Total child care funds under this provision would equal $22 billion over 7 years, $15 billion in mandatory funds and $7 billion in discretionary funds. States would be able to transfer up to 30 percent of their cash welfare block grant funds into the Child Care Block Grant, but would not be able to transfer child care funds to other purposes.

H. MISCELLANEOUS

The proposal would stipulate that funds from certain Federal block grants to the States are to be expended in accordance with the laws and procedures applicable to the expenditure of the State's own resources. This provision would apply to the following block grants: temporary assistance to needy families block grant; the optional State food assistance block grant; and the child care block grant. Thus, in the States in which the Governor previously had control over Federal block grant funds, the State legislatures now would share control through the State appropriations process; however, States would have to continue to spend Federal funds in accordance with Federal law.

States would not be prohibited by the Federal Government from sanctioning welfare recipients who test positive for the use of controlled substances.

For fiscal years 1997 through 2002, the Social Services Block Grant would be reduced by 10 percent each year.

In addition to two EIC changes made under Title IV, the proposal would require taxpayers to include interest, dividends and net rent and royalty income in determining whether they are disqualified from EIC benefits; expand the definition of income used in phasing out the credit; and provide for swifter phaseout of the EIC for families with 1 child with earnings above $17,340 and for families with 2 or more children with earnings above $21,360. Each change is designed to target EIC benefits to lower-income workers, especially those leaving welfare for work.

SUBTITLE A—BLOCK GRANT FOR TEMPORARY ASSISTANCE FOR NEEDY FAMILIES

1. FINDINGS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Congress finds that marriage is the foundation of a successful society and an essential institution that promotes the interests of children. Promotion of responsible fatherhood and motherhood is integral to successful child-rearing and the well-being of children. It is the sense of Congress that prevention of out-of-wedlock pregnancy and reduction in out-of-wedlock birth are very important government interests and that the policy outlined in the provisions of this title is intended to address the crisis.

Reason for change

These findings underscore the need for policy changes, referred to below, that reinforce marriage and family for a successful society.

Effective date

Does not apply.

2. REFERENCE TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Unless otherwise specified, any reference in this title to an amendment to or repeal of a section or other provision is to the Social Security Act.

Reason for change

This is a technical provision for clarification purposes only.

Effective date

Upon enactment (October 1, 1996).

3. BLOCK GRANT TO STATES; PURPOSE

Present law

Title IV–A of the Social Security Act, which provides grants to States for aid and services to needy families with children (AFDC), is designed to encourage care of dependent children in their own homes by enabling States to provide cash aid and services, maintain and strengthen family life, and help parents attain maximum self-support consistent with maintaining parental care and protection.

Explanation of provision

Block grants for temporary assistance for needy families (TANF), which replace Title IV–A of the Social Security Act, are established to increase the flexibility of States in operating a program designed to provide assistance to needy families; end dependence on government benefits by promoting job preparation, work and marriage; prevent and reduce the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies; and encourage the formation and maintenance of two-parent families.

This part shall not be interpreted to entitle any individual or family to assistance under any State program funded under this part.

Reason for change

Converting the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program and associated programs into a block grant provides States with great flexibility in the use of Federal funds to help needy children and their families. In addition, a major problem with current welfare programs is that millions of families remain on welfare for many years. About 65 percent of the families now on welfare will be on the rolls for 8 years or more. Removing the individual entitlement to cash benefits, which is a critical aspect of the block grant approach to social policy, sends a clear message to recipients that benefits are temporary and are not intended to keep families dependent on public benefits year after year.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

4. ELIGIBLE STATES—STATE PLAN REQUIREMENTS

Present law

A State must have an approved State plan for aid and services to needy families containing 43 provisions, ranging from single-agency administration to overpayment recovery rules. State plans explain the aid and services that are offered by the State. Aid is defined as money payments. For most parents without a child under age 3, States must provide education, work, or training under the JOBS program to help needy families with children avoid long-term welfare dependence. Note: work and education requirements of JOBS are subject to two conditions—State resources must permit them and the program must be available in the recipient’s political subdivision. To receive Federal funds, States must share in program costs. The Federal share of costs (matching rate) varies among States and is inversely related to the square of State per capita income. For AFDC benefits and child care, the Medicaid matching rate is used. This rate now ranges from 50 percent to 78 percent among States and averages about 55 percent. For JOBS activities, the rate averages 60 percent; for administrative costs, 50 percent. The general JOBS participation rate, which expired September 30, 1995, required 20 percent of employable (nonexempt) adult recipients to participate in education, work, or training under JOBS, in fiscal year 1995. In fiscal year 1996, at least one parent in 60 percent of unemployed-parent families must participate at least 16 hours weekly in an unpaid work experience or other work program. States must restrict disclosure of information to purposes directly connected to administration of the program and to any connected investigation, prosecution, legal proceeding or audit. Each State must offer family planning services to all “appropriate” cases, including minors considered sexually active. States may not require acceptance of these services.

Explanation of provision

An “eligible State” is a State that, during the 2-year period immediately preceding the fiscal year, has submitted a plan to the Secretary of HHS that the Secretary has found includes a written document describing how the State will:

1. conduct a program, designed to serve all political subdivisions in the State, that provides cash assistance to needy families with (or expecting) children, and that provides parents with work and support services to enable them to become self-sufficient;
2. require a parent or a caretaker receiving assistance to engage in work as defined by the State once the parent or caretaker has received assistance for 24 months (whether or not consecutive) or earlier;
3. ensure that parents and caretakers engage in work activities as described below;
4. take such reasonable steps as the State deems necessary to restrict the use and disclosure of information about recipients of assistance attributable to funds provided by the Federal Government;
5. establish goals and take action (including providing education and counseling (including abstinence-based programs) and pre-pregnancy health services) to prevent and reduce the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies, with special emphasis on teenage pregnancies;
6. treat families moving into the State from another State;
7. treat noncitizens of the United States; and
8. provide opportunities for adversely affected recipients to be heard in a State administrative or appeal process.

Reason for change

Under current law, State plans suffer from two major flaws. First, they are too detailed and cumbersome. States wind up wasting time reporting minute details of their programs to the Secretary. Second, and more important, the elaborate State plan is based on the philosophy that the Federal Government knows best what States should do. The leaner requirements for State plans in the committee proposal reflect a balance between the need of Federal policymakers to ensure that funds are being appropriately spent and States' need to invest their resources in delivering services and in responding to needs in a flexible manner.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

5. ELIGIBLE STATES—FAIR AND EQUITABLE TREATMENT

Present law

Regulations require that States determine need and amount of eligibility on an objective and equitable basis.

Explanation of provision

The State plan must set forth objective criteria for the delivery of benefits, for the determination of eligibility, and for fair and equitable treatment.

Reason for change

The committee, while granting new flexibility to States to operate block grant programs, is determined that the delivery of benefits for needy families is provided for in a fair and equitable manner. Consequently, States must establish as part of their State plan that determinations of eligibility, and the provision of benefits, will be conducted according to these standards.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

6. ELIGIBLE STATES—CERTIFICATIONS

Present law

States must have in effect an approved child support program. States must also have an approved plan for foster care and adoption assistance. States must have an income and verification system covering AFDC, Medicaid, unemployment compensation, food stamps, and—in outlying areas—adult cash aid.

Explanation of provision

State plans must include the following certifications:

1. that the State will operate a child support enforcement program;
2. that the State will operate a child protection program;
3. specifying which State agency or agencies will administer and supervise the State plan, and assurances that local governments and private sector organizations have been consulted and have had an opportunity to submit comments on the plan;

and

4. that the State will provide Indians with equitable access to assistance.

Reason for change

As described above, a major objective of the block grant approach followed by the committee is to reduce Federal rules and regulations. However, the committee felt that several provisions of Title IV–A should be retained. Thus, the committee proposal continues the current law requirements ensuring that States operate a child support enforcement program and a child protection program. In addition, States must specify which agency will administer the State plan, and must certify that the State will provide Indians with equitable access to assistance.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

7. ELIGIBLE STATES—PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF STATE PLAN SUMMARY

Present law

Federal regulations require that State program manuals and other policy issuances, which reflect the State plan, be maintained in the State office and in each local and district office for examination on regular workdays.

Explanation of provision

The State shall make available to the public a summary of the State plan.

Reason for change

In keeping with the committee goal of restoring control over welfare programs to States, communities, and individuals, the committee proposal requires the public availability of information about States' block grant programs.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

8. GRANTS TO STATES—FAMILY ASSISTANCE GRANT

Present law

AFDC entitles States to Federal matching funds. Current law provides permanent authority for appropriations without limit for grants to States for AFDC benefits, administration, and AFDC-related child care. Over the years, because of court rulings, AFDC has evolved into an entitlement for qualified individuals to receive cash benefits. In general, States must give AFDC to all persons whose income and resources are below State-set limits if they are in a class or category eligible under Federal rules.

Explanation of provision

Each eligible State and Territory is entitled to receive a grant from the Secretary for each of 6 fiscal years (1996 through 2001)

in the amount equal to the State family assistance grant for the fiscal year.

A State's family assistance grant is equal to the highest of former Federal payments to the State for AFDC benefits, AFDC Administration, Emergency Assistance, and JOBS during (1) fiscal years 1992 through 1994, on average; (2) fiscal year 1994, or (3) fiscal year 1995 plus, under certain circumstances, 85 percent of increased fiscal year 1995 spending for emergency assistance.

If a State fails to make qualified State expenditures for eligible families under all State programs equal to at least 75 percent of its fiscal year 1994 spending level for AFDC benefits, AFDC Administration, Emergency Assistance, JOBS, AFDC-related child care, and at-risk child care, its family assistance grant is reduced by the shortfall (see the discussion of penalties below).

Reason for change

States are given guaranteed funding for 6 years so they can make long-term plans without concern that Federal funds will be reduced. Fixed State funding also provides States with an incentive to help recipients leave welfare because, unlike current law, States do not get more money for having more recipients on the welfare rolls.

States are guaranteed a high level of Federal support (equal to recent levels), and States that have been successful at moving families off welfare in recent years are not disadvantaged by the continuation of only 1995 funding levels. For example, by allowing States to receive the average funding granted in 1992 through 1994 or in 1994, States that have already reduced welfare caseloads will have sufficient funding to continue and expand reforms.

States are required to maintain at least 75 percent of recent State spending on welfare programs in order to receive full Federal block grant funds. States that are successful in moving families off welfare and into work are eligible to further reduce State spending, to as low as 67 percent of prior levels.

Effective date

States may begin their block grant program as late as July 1, 1997. States may begin prior to that time, and would receive block grant payments in proportion to the number of days remaining in the fiscal year.

9. GRANTS TO STATES—GRANT TO REWARD STATES THAT REDUCE OUT-OF-WEDLOCK BIRTHS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

For each fiscal year beginning with 1998, a State's grant amount is increased by 5 or 10 percent if the State "illegitimacy ratio" is 1 or 2 percentage points, respectively, lower in that year than its 1995 illegitimacy ratio. Only States in which the rate of abortion falls below the 1995 level are eligible for these additional grants.

The term “illegitimacy ratio” means, during a fiscal year, the number of out-of-wedlock births that occurred in the State divided by the number of births. In calculating grants, the Secretary must disregard any difference in illegitimacy ratios or abortion rates attributable to a change in State methods of reporting data.

Reason for change

Given that one of the major goals of the block grant is to reduce out-of-wedlock births that are directly related to long-term welfare dependence, the committee proposal establishes a fund to reward States that are successful in achieving this policy goal. Because of concern about the impact this provision might have on State policy regarding abortion, the committee proposal disqualifies States whose rate of abortion does not fall, even if the State would otherwise qualify under the above criteria.

Effective date

States become eligible for additional funds based on these criteria beginning in fiscal year 1998.

10. GRANTS TO STATES—SUPPLEMENTAL GRANT FOR POPULATION INCREASES IN CERTAIN STATES

Present law

There is no adjustment for population growth. Instead, current law provides unlimited matching funds. When AFDC enrollment climbs, Federal funding automatically rises.

Explanation of provision

Subject to the eligibility criteria below, each qualifying State (for purposes of this section, the term “State” is limited to the 50 States and the District of Columbia) is entitled to receive from the Secretary supplemental grants to assist in making cash welfare payments. For fiscal year 1997 the supplemental grant equals 2.5 percent of Federal payments to the qualifying State during fiscal year 1994 for AFDC benefits, AFDC Administration, Emergency Assistance, JOBS and AFDC-related child care. For fiscal years 1998 through 2000, each qualifying State is entitled to receive an amount equal to the supplemental grant for the immediately preceding year plus, if it continues to meet the eligibility criteria below, an annual increase. States that no longer meet the qualification criteria are entitled to receive the prior year’s grant without increase. A State is a qualifying State for a fiscal year if average Federal welfare spending per poor person is less than the national average and State population growth exceeds the average for all States. States must qualify during fiscal year 1997 in order to qualify during later years. Certain States (i.e. those in which Federal welfare spending per poor person is less than 35 percent of the national average or in which population has increased by 10 percent or more) are deemed to qualify for supplemental grants in each year between fiscal year 1997 and 2000. A total of $800 million is appropriated for this purpose. If this sum is insufficient for full supplemental grants for all qualifying States, pro rata reductions will be made.

Reason for change

In response to concerns that States with growing populations would experience hardship under fixed block grant funding, the committee establishes a special $800 million fund for certain States. Also qualifying would be States with historically low benefit levels, because such States would generally receive less in per capita Federal funds due to the direct connection between the States' block grant amount and prior welfare benefit levels and reciprocity. This fund is another of several specific proposals the committee has adopted to respond to concerns about special State circumstances under the block grant program.

Effective date

These supplemental grants become available beginning in fiscal year 1997.

11. GRANTS TO STATES—BONUS TO REWARD HIGH PERFORMANCE STATES

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Certain "high performing" States (i.e. those most successful in achieving the purposes of the block grant program) are entitled to receive additional payments of up to 5 percent of their State family assistance grant. The formula for measuring State performance shall be developed by the Secretary in consultation with the National Governors' Association and the American Public Welfare Association. A total of $1 billion is appropriated for high performance bonuses to States during 5 fiscal years, 1999 through 2003, and average annual performance bonuses are to equal $200 million.

Note.—In addition, required maintenance-of-effort spending is to be reduced for States that achieve performance scores above a threshold set by the Secretary.

Reason for change

One of the major problems with the current welfare system is its perverse incentive structure: because of the open-ended entitlement nature of the current system, States that operate welfare programs that result in large numbers of families being dependent for long periods of time receive the greatest Federal funding. The committee proposal overturns this misguided policy in several ways, starting with the provision of fixed block grant funding to all States. In addition, the committee proposal offers added cash "bonuses" totaling up to $1 billion for States that are the most successful in achieving national welfare goals, such as moving families into work, encouraging marriage, and ending long-term dependence.

Effective date

The bonuses for high performance become available beginning in fiscal year 1999.

12. GRANTS TO STATES—CONTINGENCY FUND FOR STATE WELFARE PROGRAMS

Present law

No provision. Current law provides unlimited matching funds.

Explanation of provision

To assist States (for purposes of this section, the term “State” is limited to the 50 States and the District of Columbia) with increased welfare needs, the committee proposal establishes a contingency fund and appropriates up to $2 billion over a total of 5 fiscal years (1997 through 2001) for the fund. Eligible States may receive contingency fund payments totaling up to 20 percent of their annual family assistance grant in any single year (in any single month, States cannot receive more than one-twelfth of 20 percent of the annual family assistance grant). States are to submit requests for payment of contingency funds, and the Secretary of the Treasury must make payments to eligible States in the order in which requests are received.

States are eligible to receive payments if State unemployment is high (at or above 6.5 percent in the most recent 3-month period) and rising relative to previous years (at least 10 percent above the comparable level in either or both of 2 preceding years). States also are eligible to receive payments if food stamp participation in the State in the most recent 3-month period has risen at least 10 percent from the average monthly number of recipients who would have participated in the comparable quarter of fiscal year 1994 or fiscal year 1995, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture, if amendments made by this proposal to the Food Stamp Program (including optional food stamp block grant provisions) had been in effect throughout fiscal year 1994 and 1995. States must maintain 100 percent of historic State welfare spending (generally, the amount of State funds spent in fiscal year 1994 for AFDC benefits and administration, AFDC-related child care, at-risk child care, Emergency Assistance, and JOBS) during years in which contingency fund payments are made, or repay an amount reflecting the shortfall. To smooth the transition to recovery for States in need, States that have been receiving contingency fund payments will continue to receive payments for 1 month after they no longer meet the criteria described above.

Reason for change

Some observers have been concerned that, given the bill’s fixed funding level, States may have trouble paying benefits during recessions and other financial emergencies. Thus the committee proposal provides up to $2 billion in new funding for States that experience economic downturns, and includes flexible “triggers” allowing such States to access this fund whenever unemployment or food stamp reciprocity rise significantly.

Effective date

Contingency funds are available to States beginning in fiscal year 1997.

13. USE OF GRANTS—IN GENERAL

Present law

AFDC and JOBS funds are to be used in conformity with State plans. A State may replace a caretaker relative with a protective payee or a guardian or legal representative.

Explanation of provision

Grants may be used in any manner reasonably calculated to accomplish the purposes of this title, including activities now authorized under Titles IV-A and IV-F of the Social Security Act, or to provide low-income households with assistance in meeting home heating and cooling costs. This part shall not be interpreted to prohibit a State from making payments to a third party for goods and services provided by the party to or for an individual or family eligible for assistance under the State program funded under this part, from the assistance that would otherwise be provided to the individual or family under the program.

Reason for change

States are permitted to use Federal dollars only in a manner consistent with the purpose of the Federal legislation and not in ways that are specifically proscribed by the proposal. However, given the fact that Federal and State policymakers sometimes disagree on welfare policy, the policy followed by the committee proposal is to place some restrictions on how States use Federal dollars but clarify that it is generally not Federal policy to dictate how States will spend their own money.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

14. USE OF GRANTS—LIMITATION ON ADMINISTRATIVE SPENDING

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

States may not use more than 15 percent of the family assistance grant for administrative purposes. However, this cap does not apply to spending for information technology and computerization needed to implement the tracking and monitoring required by this title.

Reason for change

In order to ensure that the maximum amount of Federal funding is used to provide assistance to families, the committee proposal limits the amount of block grant funding that may be used for administering the program.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

15. USE OF GRANTS—RECIPIENTS MOVING INTO THE STATE FROM ANOTHER STATE

Present law

The Social Security Act forbids the Secretary to approve a plan that denies AFDC eligibility to a child unless he has resided in the State for 1 year. The U.S. Supreme Court has invalidated some State laws that withheld aid from persons who had not resided there for at least 1 year. It has not ruled on the question of paying lower amounts of aid for incoming residents.

Explanation of provision

States may impose program rules and benefit levels of the State from which a family moved if the family has lived in the State for fewer than 12 months.

Reason for change

States are allowed to pay families who have moved from another State in the previous 12 months the cash benefit they would have received in the State from which they moved because research shows that some families move across State lines to maximize welfare benefits. Furthermore, States that want to pay higher benefits should not be deterred from doing so by the fear that they will attract large numbers of recipients from bordering States.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

16. USE OF GRANTS—TRANSFER OF FUNDS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

States may transfer up to 30 percent of funds paid under this section to carry out activities under the new child protection block grant, the social services block grant, and the child care and development block grant.

Reason for change

Given that a major purpose of the proposal is to allow States maximum flexibility in the use of Federal funds, the proposal includes a provision that would allow States to transfer up to 30 percent of the funds from the cash welfare block grant into the child protection, child care, and social services block grants.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

17. USE OF GRANTS—RESERVATION OF FUNDS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

A State may reserve amounts paid to the State for any fiscal year for the purpose of providing assistance under this part. Reserve funds can be used in any fiscal year.

Reason for change

This provision is another way the committee proposal allows States to redesign welfare as a transitional program for use in times of economic distress, instead of a program offering families a lifetime of guaranteed benefits and dependence on taxpayer support.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

18. USE OF GRANTS—AUTHORITY TO OPERATE AN EMPLOYMENT PLACEMENT PROGRAM

Present law

Required JOBS services include job development and job placement. The State agency may provide services directly or through arrangements or under contracts with public agencies or private organizations.

Explanation of provision

States may use a portion of the family assistance grant to make payments (or provide job placement vouchers) to State-approved agencies that provide employment services to recipients of cash aid.

Reason for change

In keeping with the overall goal of stressing work and providing for State flexibility, States may use block grant funds to operate employment services or provide job placement vouchers.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

19. USE OF GRANTS—IMPLEMENTATION OF ELECTRONIC BENEFIT TRANSFER SYSTEM

Present law

Regulations permit States to receive Federal reimbursement funds (50 percent administrative cost-sharing rate) for operation of electronic benefit systems. To do so, States must receive advance approval from HHS and must comply with automatic data processing rules.

Explanation of provision

States are encouraged to implement an electronic benefit transfer system for providing assistance under the State program funded under this part, and may use the grant for such purpose. In general, the proposal exempts State and local government electronic transfers of need-based benefits from certain rules issued by the Federal Reserve Board regarding electronic fund transfers, including Regulation E, which limits liability of cardholders.

Reason for change

In keeping with the goal of providing major flexibility to States, States may use block grant funds to operate electronic benefit transfer (EBT) systems. An increasing number of States have turned to EBT systems as a means of increasing efficiency, achieving savings, and preventing fraud. The committee encourages States to employ such innovations, and strips away regulatory obstacles that might prevent States from operating effective EBT systems.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

20. ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Present law

The Secretary pays AFDC funds to the State on a quarterly basis.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary shall make each grant payable to a State in quarterly installments. The Secretary must notify States not later than 3 months in advance of any quarterly payment that will be reduced to reflect payments made to Indian tribes in the State. Under certain circumstances, overpayments to individuals no longer receiving temporary family assistance will be collected from Federal income tax refunds and repaid to affected States.

Reason for change

Quarterly payments to States continue, but the committee takes account of the fact that Indian tribes within States may receive separate funding, and that overpayments may be collected from tax refunds and repaid to States directly.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

21. FEDERAL LOANS FOR STATE WELFARE PROGRAMS

Present law

No provision. Instead, current law provides unlimited matching funds.

Explanation of provision

The proposal establishes a $1.7 billion revolving loan fund from which eligible States may borrow funds to meet the purposes of this title. States that have been penalized for mispending block grant funds as determined by an audit are ineligible for loans. Loans are to mature in 3 years, at the latest, and the maximum amount loaned to a State cannot exceed 10 percent of its basic block grant. The interest rate shall equal the current average market yield on outstanding U.S. securities with a comparable remaining maturity length. States face penalties for failing to make timely payments on their loan.

Reason for change

During recessions and other fiscal emergencies, States may have difficulty making payments and conducting programs for needy children and their families. To help States meet these contingencies, in addition to the authority to save State funds, transfer block grant funds, and reserve Federal funds as outlined above, the proposal also includes a Federal loan fund of $1.7 billion from which States can borrow on roughly the same terms as they now borrow from the Federal Unemployment Account that is part of the Unemployment Compensation program.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

22. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—PARTICIPATION RATE REQUIREMENTS

Present law

The following minimum percentage of nonexempt AFDC families must participate in JOBS:

	Minimum percentage
Fiscal year:
1995	20
1996 and thereafter (no requirement)	0

The following minimum percentages of two-parent families receiving cash assistance must participate in specified work activities:

	Minimum percentage
Fiscal year:
1995	50
1996	60
1997	75
1998 (last year)	75
1999 and thereafter (no requirement)	0

Explanation of provision

The following minimum percentages of all families receiving assistance funded by the family assistance grant (except those with a child under 1, if exempted by the State) must participate in work activities:

	Minimum percentage
Fiscal year:
1996	15
1997	20
1998	25
1999	30
2000	35
2001	40
2002 or thereafter	50

The following minimum percentages of two-parent families receiving cash assistance must participate in specified work activities:

Fiscal year:	Minimum Percentage
1996	50
1997	75
1998	75
1999 and thereafter	90

Reason for change

In addition to requirements that individuals work after receiving at most 2 years of welfare benefits, States are required to place a rising number of welfare recipients in work activities, reaching half of the overall State welfare caseload in fiscal year 2002. In contrast to the current system of guaranteed benefits in the absence of work, the revised standards hold States accountable for achieving the national goal of converting welfare into a program emphasizing work and personal responsibility. Higher standards apply to families with both parents present, in keeping with the understanding that in almost every case one parent should work if another parent is available to provide child care.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

23. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—CALCULATION OF PARTICIPATION RATES

Present law

Participation rates for all families are calculated for each month. A State's rate, expressed as a percentage, equals the number of actual JOBS participants divided by the number of AFDC recipients required to participate (nonexempt from JOBS). In calculating a State's overall JOBS participation rate, a standard of 20 hours per week is used. The welfare agency is to count as participants the largest number of persons whose combined and averaged hours in JOBS activities during the month equal 20 per week.

Participation rates for two-parent families for a month equal the number of parents who participate divided by the number of principal earners in AFDC-UP families (but excluding families who received aid for 2 months or less, if one parent engaged in intensive job search).

Explanation of provision

The participation rate (for all families and for two-parent families) for a State for the fiscal year is the average of the participation rates for each month in the fiscal year. The monthly participation rate for a State is a percentage obtained by dividing the number of families receiving assistance that include an adult who is engaged in work by the number of families receiving assistance (not counting those subject to a recent sanction for refusal to work).

The required participation rate for a year is to be adjusted down 1 percentage point for each percentage point that the average monthly caseload is below fiscal year 1995 levels, unless the Secretary finds that the decrease was required by Federal law or results from changes in State eligibility criteria (which must be proved by the Secretary). The Secretary is to prescribe regulations for this adjustment.

States have the option of counting individuals receiving assistance under a tribal family assistance plan towards the State work participation requirement.

States have the option of not requiring parents of children under age 1 to engage in work and may disregard these parents in determining work participation rates.

Reason for change

In contrast to the current system characterized by broad expectations from work requirements, State participation rates, which increase annually as described above, are calculated based on the State's entire welfare caseload (with the single general exception of the small number of families experiencing a State sanction for their refusal to work). The committee proposal rewards States that achieve caseload reductions for reasons including work, marriage, or diversion, allowing required participation rates to be lowered in keeping with caseload reduction. Other current welfare reform proposals credit States with families who have left welfare for work (counting so-called "leavers") as still on welfare and working in meeting required participation rates. The committee specifically rejects this approach, which would allow States to count as working and on welfare the approximately 20 percent of welfare caseloads that currently leave welfare for work (most in the absence of dedicated State programs designed to move families into work).

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

24. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—ENGAGED IN WORK

Present law

Not relevant. (As discussed below, required activities in State JOBS programs are education, jobs skills training, job readiness, job development and job placement and two of these four: job search, on-the-job training, work supplementation, and community work experience, or other approved work experience. In general, to be counted as a JOBS participant, a person must be engaged in a JOBS activity for an average of 20 hours weekly.)

Explanation of provision

To be counted as engaged in work for a month, an adult must be participating for at least the minimum average number of hours per week shown in the table below in one or more of these activities: unsubsidized employment, subsidized (private or public) employment, work experience, on-the-job training, job search and job readiness assistance, community service programs, and vocational educational training (12 months maximum).

Fiscal year:	Minimum average hours weekly
1996	20
1997	20
1999 or thereafter	25

There are five exceptions to the above table: (1) an adult in a two-parent family is considered engaged in work if the adult works at least 35 hours per week, with not fewer than 30 hours attributable to the work activities cited above for single parents; (2) an individual in job search may be counted as engaged in work for up to 12 weeks only; (3) a State may count a single parent with a child under age 6 as engaged in work for a month if the parent works an average of 20 hours weekly in 1999 and later; (4) not more than 20 percent of adults in all families and in two-parent families determined to be engaged in work in the State for a month may meet the work requirement through participation in vocational educational training; and (5) teen parents are considered to be engaged in work if they attend secondary school or participate in work-related education.

Reason for change

In carrying out their program, States must ensure that adults participate in qualified work activities, allowing reasonable exceptions for teens and families with young children and placing certain restrictions on States' their ability to count certain activities (such as job search) for extended periods.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

25. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—WORK ACTIVITIES DEFINED

Present law

JOBS programs must include specified educational activities (high school or equivalent education, basic and remedial education, and education for those with limited English proficiency); job skills training, job readiness activities, and job development and placement. In addition, States must offer at least two of these four items: group and individual job search; on-the-job training; work supplementation or community work experience program (or another work experience program approved by the HHS Secretary). The State also may offer postsecondary education in "appropriate" cases.

Explanation of provision

"Work activities" are defined as unsubsidized employment, subsidized private sector employment, subsidized public sector employment, work experience if sufficient private sector employment is not available, on-the-job training, job search and job readiness assistance, community service programs, vocational educational training (one year maximum), jobs skills training directly related to employment, education directly related to employment in the case of a recipient under age 20 who lacks a high school diploma or equivalency, and satisfactory attendance at secondary school for a dependent child or household head under 20 who has not completed high school.

Reason for change

In operating their work programs, States are given broad flexibility in determining work activities in which parents must engage.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

26. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—PENALTIES AGAINST INDIVIDUALS

Present law

For failure to meet JOBS requirements without good cause, AFDC benefits are denied to the offending parent and payments for the children are made to a third party. In a two-parent family, failure of one parent to meet JOBS requirements without good cause results in denial of benefits for both parents (unless the other parent participates) and third-party payment on behalf of the children. Repeated failures to comply bring potentially longer penalty periods.

Explanation of provision

If an adult recipient refuses to engage in required work, the State shall reduce the amount of assistance to the family pro rata (or more, at State option) with respect to the period of work refusal, or shall discontinue aid, subject to good cause and other exceptions that the State may establish. A State may not penalize a single parent caring for a child under age 6 for refusal to work if the parent proves that there is a demonstrated inability to obtain needed child care for specified reasons.

Reason for change

One of the major goals of the committee proposal is that families on welfare must work for benefits just as other families must work for their paychecks. In keeping with this principle, families that refuse to engage in work are subject to penalties reducing their benefits accordingly, with the exception of single parents with young children, at State option.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

27. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—NONDISPLACEMENT IN WORK ACTIVITIES

Present law

Under JOBS law, no work assignment may displace any currently employed worker or position (including partial displacement such as a reduction in hours of nonovertime work, wages, or employment benefits). Nor may a JOBS participant fill a position vacant because of layoff or because the employer has reduced the workforce with the effect of creating a position to be subsidized.

Explanation of provision

No adult in a Title IV-A work activity shall be employed or assigned when another person is on layoff from the same or a substantially equivalent job, or when the employer has terminated the employment of a regular worker or otherwise caused an involuntary reduction of its workforce in order to fill the vacancy thus created with a subsidized worker. This provision does not preempt or supersede any State or local law providing greater protection from displacement.

Reason for change

This provision is intended to continue Federal protections that bar States or employers from replacing current workers with individuals required to work under the revised welfare program.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

28. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—SENSE OF THE CONGRESS THAT STATE SHOULD PLACE A PRIORITY ON PLACING CERTAIN PARENTS IN WORK

Present law

As a condition of receiving full matching funds, a State must use 55 percent of its JOBS spending for these target groups: persons who have received aid for any 36 of the 60 preceding months, parents under age 24 who failed to complete high school, and parents whose youngest child is within 2 years of becoming ineligible for aid (i.e., whose youngest child is, usually, at least 16).

Explanation of provision

It is the sense of Congress that States should give highest priority to requiring adults in two-parent families and adults in single-parent families with children that are older than preschool age to engage in work activities.

Reason for change

Because families with older children who are in school and families with a second parent present do not require large day care expenses to permit a parent to work, States are encouraged to place a priority on placing such families in work in operating their revised welfare programs.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

29. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—SENSE OF THE CONGRESS THAT STATES SHOULD IMPOSE CERTAIN REQUIREMENTS ON NON-CUSTODIAL, NONSUPPORTING MINOR PARENTS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

It is the sense of the Congress that States should require non-custodial, nonsupporting parents who have not attained 18 years of age to fulfill community work obligations and attend appropriate parenting or money management classes after school.

Reason for change

The committee stresses that young fathers must also be held responsible for their actions. Accordingly, the committee encourages States to require community work and attendance in parenting classes in addition to continued school attendance for such minor parents.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

30. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—FAMILIES WITH NO MINOR CHILDREN

Present law

Only families with dependent children (under age 18, or 19 at State option if the child is still in secondary school or in the equivalent level of vocational or technical training) can participate in the program.

Explanation of provision

Only families with a minor child (who resides with a custodial parent or other adult caretaker relative of the child) or a pregnant individual may receive assistance under this part.

Reason for change

Although the major purpose of the block grant approach taken in this proposal is to maximize State flexibility, there are specific issues over which the Federal Government should maintain a major interest either because the Federal Government is responsible for deciding in a general way how Federal dollars should be spent or because there are overriding policy concerns to which all States should respond. For example, it is the intent of the committee to ensure that only families with or expecting children receive benefits under this block grant; any money spent on other purposes must be repaid to the Federal Government.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

31. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—NO ADDITIONAL CASH ASSISTANCE FOR CHILDREN BORN TO FAMILIES RECEIVING ASSISTANCE

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Block grant funds may not be used to provide cash benefits for a child born to a recipient of cash welfare benefits or an individual who received cash benefits at any time during the 10-month period ending with the birth of the child. This prohibition does not apply to children born as a result of rape or incest. Block grant funds can be used to provide noncash (voucher) assistance for particular goods and services suitable for the care of the child.

States that pass a law specifically exempting their own programs from this national rule may use Federal funds to increase cash benefits for families that have additional children while on welfare.

Reason for change

The committee believes the Nation has an overriding interest in reducing illegitimacy rates and preventing families on welfare from becoming even more dependent on taxpayer support. Thus, the proposal establishes a national policy proscribing the use of Federal funds to pay additional cash benefits to families already on welfare who choose to have additional children. (See below for prohibitions affecting certain minors and families not cooperating on child support.)

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

32. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—NONCOOPERATION IN CHILD SUPPORT

Present law

As a condition of eligibility, applicants or recipients must cooperate in establishing paternity of a child born out-of-wedlock, in obtaining support payments, and in identifying any third party who may be liable to pay for medical care and services for the child.

Explanation of provision

The State must stop paying the parent's share of the family welfare benefit if the parent fails to cooperate in establishing, modifying or enforcing a child support order; the State may deny benefits to the entire family for the parent's failure to cooperate.

Reason for change

The committee believes it is irresponsible for Federal benefits to be available to parents (and, at State option, families) that do not cooperate in attempting to obtain proper child support. In thousands of cases, if child support were collected as ordered, families would not have to depend on taxpayer-funded welfare benefits.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

33. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—FAILURE TO ASSIGN CERTAIN SUPPORT RIGHTS TO THE STATE

Present law

As a condition of AFDC eligibility, applicants must assign child support and spousal support rights to the State.

Explanation of provision

Block grant funds may not be used to provide cash benefits to a family with an adult who has not assigned to the State rights to child support or spousal support.

Reason for change

The committee proposal continues this current law requirement in the context of the new block grant program.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

34. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—TEENAGE PARENT NOT ATTENDING HIGH SCHOOL OR NOT LIVING WITH AN ADULT

Present law

States may require unwed parents under age 18 to live with an adult in order to receive AFDC. They must require a custodial parent who is under 20 years old and who has not completed high school to participate in an educational activity under the JOBS program.

Explanation of provision

States have the option of using Federal funds to provide cash welfare payments to unmarried teens only under specified conditions. States may not use Federal family assistance grant funds to provide assistance to parents under age 18 who have a child at least 12 weeks of age unless they attend high school or an alternative educational or training program. States may not use Federal funds to provide assistance to unmarried parents under age 18 unless they live with a parent or in another adult-supervised setting; States may, under certain circumstances, use Federal funds to assist teen parents in locating and providing payment for a second chance home or other adult-supervised living arrangement.

Reason for change

One of the major goals of the committee proposal is to combat illegitimacy, which is one of the key causes of poverty and long-term welfare dependence. The consequences are especially severe for teens who give birth outside marriage, so the committee provides States the flexibility to end the inducement of guaranteed cash welfare benefits for teens who have children outside marriage they are not equipped to support by themselves. In order to receive benefits in any State, teens must stay in school and live with an adult.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

35. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—MEDICAL SERVICES

Present law

States must assure that family planning services are offered to all AFDC recipients who request them. (The Secretary is to reduce AFDC payments by 1 percent for failure to offer and provide family planning services to those requesting them.)

Explanation of provision

Federal family assistance grants may not be used to provide medical services; Federal funds may, however, be used to provide family planning services.

Reason for change

The committee proposal makes clear that Federal funds are for the cash welfare, not medical, needs of poor families. However, States may use Federal funds to provide family planning services so that families can prevent their falling deeper into government dependence.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

36. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—TIME-LIMITED BENEFITS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Federal family assistance grants may not be used to provide assistance for the family of a person who has received block grant aid for 60 months (or fewer, at State option), whether or not consecutive. States may give hardship exemptions in a fiscal year to up to 20 percent of their average monthly caseload, including individuals who have been battered or subjected to sexual abuse (but States are not required to exempt these persons). When considering an individual's length of stay on welfare, States are to count only time during which the individual received assistance as the head of household. Any State funds spent to aid persons no longer eligible for TANF after 5 years of benefits may be counted toward the maintenance-of-effort requirement.

Reason for change

Because breaking long-term dependency is a central objective of the legislation, the proposal disallows expenditure of Federal dollars on families that have been on welfare for more than 5 years. The committee notes that, of families now on welfare, almost two-thirds will be dependent for a total of 8 years or more, establishing that long-term dependency is a major problem of the current system. States are permitted to make exceptions for hardship, but it is the clear intent of the committee that welfare benefits under the reformed system are to be temporary for families, not guaranteed lifetime benefits in lieu of work.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

37. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—FRAUDULENT MISREPRESENTATION OF RESIDENCE IN TWO STATES

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Any person convicted in Federal court or State court of having fraudulently misrepresented residence in order to obtain benefits or services in two or more States from the family assistance grant, Medicaid, Food Stamps, or Supplemental Security Income programs is ineligible for family assistance grant aid for 10 years.

Reason for change

The committee is intent on eradicating welfare fraud. Accordingly, stern penalties are applied against those who attempt to exploit State programs by collecting benefits in more than one State.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

38. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—FUGITIVE FELONS AND PROBATION AND PAROLE VIOLATORS

Present law

States may provide a recipient's address to a State or local law enforcement officer who furnishes the recipient's name and social security number and demonstrates that the recipient is a fugitive felon and that the officer's official duties include locating or apprehending the felon.

Explanation of provision

No assistance may be provided to an individual who is fleeing to avoid prosecution, custody or confinement after conviction for a crime (or an attempt to commit a crime) that is a felony (or, in New Jersey, a high misdemeanor), or who violates probation or parole imposed under Federal or State law.

Any safeguards established by the State against use or disclosure of information about individual recipients shall not prevent the agency, under certain conditions, from providing the address of a recipient to a law enforcement officer who is pursuing a fugitive felon or parole or probation violator. This provision applies also to a recipient sought by an officer not because he is a fugitive but because he has information that the officer says is necessary for his official duties. In both cases the officer must notify the State that location or apprehension of the recipient is within his official duties.

Reason for change

The committee believes that Federal cash welfare funds should be reserved to families in need only, and that State officials including law enforcement officers should have the appropriate tools to see that this mandate is fulfilled. Thus individuals who should not receive taxpayer-provided benefits, including fugitive felons, are ineligible for block grant funds.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

39. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—MINOR CHILDREN ABSENT FROM HOME FOR A SIGNIFICANT PERIOD

Present law

Regulations allow benefits to continue for children who are “temporarily absent” from home.

Explanation of provision

No assistance may be provided for a minor child who has been absent from the home for 45 consecutive days or, at State option, between 30 and 180 consecutive days. States may establish a good cause exemption as long as it is detailed in the State report to the Secretary. No assistance can be given to a parent or caretaker who fails to report a missing minor child within 5 days of the time when it is clear (to the parent) that the child will be absent for the specified time.

Reason for change

As described above, block grant benefits are designed to assist families with children only. Thus, the committee proposal provides that families from whom minor children are absent for extended periods are not eligible for benefits.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

40. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—MEDICAL ASSISTANCE REQUIRED TO BE PROVIDED FOR 1 YEAR FOR FAMILIES BECOMING INELIGIBLE FOR ASSISTANCE DUE TO INCREASED EARNINGS OR COLLECTION OF CHILD SUPPORT

Present law

States must continue Medicaid (or pay premiums for employer-provided health insurance) for 6 months to a family that loses AFDC eligibility because of hours of, or income from, work of the caretaker relative, or because of loss of the earned income disregard after 4 months of work. States must offer an additional 6 months of medical assistance, for which it may require a premium payment if the family’s income after child care expenses is above the poverty guideline. For extended medical aid, families must submit specified reports. States must continue Medicaid for 4 months to those who lose AFDC because of increased child or spousal support.

Explanation of provision

States must provide medical assistance for families that become ineligible for block grant assistance due to increased earnings or child support collections and whose income falls below the poverty level. In order to qualify for this extended medical coverage, such families must have received block grant assistance in at least 3 of the 6 months prior to the month in which they became ineligible. For purposes of determining family income to compare with the Federal poverty line, States have the authority to reach their own definition of income except that income from the Earned Income Tax Credit must be entirely disregarded.

Reason for change

Both program administrators and researchers have informed the committee that if single parents have health insurance, they are more willing to leave welfare and are more successful in remaining off welfare. In order to help parents have the confidence that they can escape welfare dependency, the committee wants to ensure that for at least 1 year after leaving the welfare rolls the health care for both parents and children will be guaranteed. Thus, the committee provision mandates that States provide at least 1 year of coverage for families that leave welfare because of increased earnings or child support unless family income exceeds the poverty level. To ensure that parents with modest incomes remain eligible for health coverage, States are barred from including income from the Earned Income Tax Credit in the definition of income.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

41. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—MEDICAID

Present law

States must provide Medicaid to all AFDC recipients and to some AFDC-related groups who do not receive cash aid. Examples include persons who do not receive a monthly payment because the amount would be below $10 (Federal law prohibits payments this small) and persons whose payments are reduced to zero in order to recover previous overpayments.

States must continue Medicaid for specified periods for certain families who lose AFDC benefits. If the family loses AFDC benefits because of increased earnings or hours of employment, Medicaid coverage must be extended for 12 months. (During the second 6 months a premium may be imposed, the scope of benefits may be limited, or alternate delivery systems may be used.) If the family loses AFDC because of increased child or spousal support, coverage must be extended for 4 months. States are also required to furnish Medicaid to certain two-parent families whose principal earner is unemployed and who are not receiving cash assistance because the State has set a time limit on their AFDC coverage.

Explanation of provision

States must provide medical assistance to all recipients of the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Block Grant (TANF), to the extent that the health care costs of the recipients are not covered by other health insurance.

Reason for change

The provision continues the current law requirement that States provide Medicaid coverage (or its successor) for all families receiving cash welfare benefits funded under the block grant. However, if families on welfare are eligible for other health insurance coverage, that coverage—not Medicaid—would be the primary insurance.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

42. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—STATE DISREGARD OF INCOME SECURITY PAYMENTS

Present law

AFDC benefits may not be paid to a recipient of old-age assistance (predecessor to Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and now available only in Puerto Rico, Guam, and the U.S. Virgin Islands), SSI, or AFDC foster care payments.

Explanation of provision

This provision allows States to disregard income security payments such as old-age assistance, payments for foster care, and Supplemental Security Income, in determining the amount of assistance to be provided to a family.

Reason for change

The committee proposal allows States flexibility in setting welfare benefits by allowing States to disregard other government income security payments.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

43. PENALTIES—USE OF GRANT IN VIOLATION OF THIS PART

Present law

If the Secretary finds that a State has failed to comply with the State plan, she is to withhold all payments from the State (or limit payments to categories not affected by noncompliance).

Explanation of provision

Note.—Before imposing any of the penalties below, the Secretary shall notify the State of the violation and allow the State to enter into a corrective action plan. Also, except for items 47 and 48, the Secretary may not impose a penalty if she finds that the State has reasonable cause for its failure to comply.

If an audit finds that a State has used Federal funds in violation of the purposes of this title, the Secretary shall reduce the following quarter's payment by the amount misused. If the State cannot prove that the misuse was unintentional, the State's following quarter payment will be reduced by an additional 5 percent.

Reason for change

States are required to spend block grant funds to achieve the purposes of the program. States that do not spend Federal funds for these purposes are penalized by having to repay the amounts misspent, plus may face the added penalty of losing up to 5 percent of the State block grant amount if the misspending is judged to be intentional.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

44. PENALTIES—FAILURE TO SUBMIT REQUIRED REPORT

Present law

There is no specific penalty for failure to submit a report, although the general noncompliance penalty could apply.

Explanation of provision

If a State fails to submit a required quarterly report within 1 month after the end of a fiscal quarter, the Secretary shall reduce by 4 percent the block grant amount otherwise payable to the State for the next fiscal year. However, the penalty shall be rescinded if the State submits the report before the end of the fiscal quarter succeeding the one for which the report was due.

Reason for change

This penalty is designed to ensure State compliance with Federal reporting requirements.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

45. PENALTIES—FAILURE TO SATISFY MINIMUM PARTICIPATION RATES

Present law

If a State fails to achieve the JOBS participation rate specified in law, the Secretary is to reduce to 50 percent the Federal matching rate for JOBS activities and for full-time personnel costs, which now ranges from 60 percent to 78 percent among States. (However, see item 54, "Corrective Compliance," for penalty waiver authority.)

Explanation of provision

If a State fails to achieve its required work participation rate for the fiscal year, the Secretary shall reduce the following year's block grant by up to 5 percent, with the percentage cut based on the "degree of noncompliance."

Reason for change

It is essential to the success of welfare reform that States convert welfare into a program that emphasizes work. Thus States are required to place specified percentages of their welfare caseload in work activities, rising to 50 percent in 2002; States that fail to meet these objective requirements lose a portion of their annual block grant. This penalty works in tandem with other provisions of the block grant program (such as the additional grants and the ability to further reduce State spending for “high performance”) to provide strong incentives for States to achieve the work-related goals of the new program.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

46. FAILURE TO PARTICIPATE IN THE INCOME AND ELIGIBILITY VERIFICATION SYSTEM

Present law

States must have in effect an Income and Eligibility Verification System covering AFDC, Medicaid, unemployment compensation, the Food Stamp program, and adult cash aid in the outlying areas. There is no specific penalty for failure to comply.

Explanation of provision

If the State fails to participate in the Income and Eligibility Verification System (IEVS) designed to reduce welfare fraud, the Secretary shall reduce by up to 2 percent the annual family assistance grant of the State.

Reason for change

States should participate in the IEVS system to ensure that recipients of block grant benefits do not receive duplicate benefits from other programs.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

47. FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT AND CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT REQUIREMENTS

Present law

The penalty against a State for noncompliance with child support enforcement rules—loss of AFDC matching funds—shall be suspended if a State submits and implements a corrective action plan.

Explanation of provision

If the Secretary determines that a State does not enforce penalties requested by the Title IV–D child support enforcement agency against recipients of cash aid who fail to cooperate in establishing paternity or in establishing, modifying, or enforcing a child support order under Title IV–D (and who do not qualify for any good cause or other exception), the Secretary shall reduce the cash assistance block grant by up to 5 percent.

Reason for change

It is important to the integrity of the national child support enforcement system (and for the protection of taxpayers who support Federal cash welfare benefits) for every State to enforce penalties against recipients who fail to cooperate on child support. Thus States that fail to enforce such penalties against individuals are penalized through the loss of Federal block grant funds.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

48. FAILURE TO TIMELY REPAY A FEDERAL LOAN FUND FOR STATE WELFARE PROGRAMS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

If a State fails to pay any amount borrowed from the Federal Loan Fund for State Welfare Programs within the maturity period, plus any interest owed, the Secretary shall reduce the State's family assistance block grant for the immediately succeeding fiscal year quarter by the outstanding loan amount, plus the interest owed on it. The Secretary may not forgive these overdue debts.

Reason for change

States must promptly repay loans from the new $1.7 billion "rainy day" loan fund, or their subsequent block grant funds will be reduced by the outstanding loan amount and any interest owed.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

49. FAILURE OF ANY STATE TO MAINTAIN CERTAIN LEVEL OF HISTORIC EFFORT

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

If in fiscal years 1997 through 2001 a State fails to spend a sum equal to at least 75 percent of its "historic level" (generally fiscal year 1994 expenditures for AFDC, JOBS, Emergency Assistance, AFDC-related child care and "at-risk" child care) of State spending on specified programs, the Secretary shall reduce the following year's family assistance grant (that is, in fiscal years 1998 through 2002) by the difference between the 75 percent requirement and what the State actually spent.

Qualified State expenditures that count toward the 75 percent spending requirement are all expenditures under all State programs that provide any of the following assistance to families eligible for family assistance benefits (and those no longer eligible because of the 5-year time limit): cash and child care assistance; educational activities designed to increase self-sufficiency, job training and work (excluding any expenditure for public education in the State except expenditures which involve the provision of services or assistance to a member of an eligible family which is not generally available to persons who are not members of eligible families); administrative costs not to exceed 15 percent of the total amount of qualified State expenditures; and any other use of funds reasonably calculated to accomplish purposes of the temporary family assistance. Expenditures from any State or local program are excluded from transfers except those expenditures that exceed the amount expended in 1996 or the State is entitled to the expenditure under a former provision.

The Secretary is to reduce the 75 percent maintenance of effort spending requirement by up to 8 percentage points (i.e., to no lower than 67 percent) for States that achieve “high performance” scores, based on a threshold to be set by the Secretary, for achieving the goals of the program of Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF).

Reason for change

The family assistance block grant program provides States with broad new flexibility in the use of Federal funds to operate their statewide welfare programs. In general, there are few restrictions on the use of State funds. However, because the current welfare system requires State matching of Federal funds, some have expressed the concern that States should be forced to maintain a certain level of spending in order to receive full Federal funding. Thus the committee proposal requires States to maintain 75 percent of prior funding levels on related welfare programs over the early years of the block grant program. This level is designed to allow States that are successful in reforming welfare and moving families into work to achieve considerable savings, while also guaranteeing that a basic national safety net remains in place in every State. With the exception of certain “high performing” States, States that fall below the 75 percent maintenance of effort level required would lose the equivalent in Federal block grant funds.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

50. SUBSTANTIAL NONCOMPLIANCE OF STATE CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

Present law

If a State child support program is found not to be in substantial compliance with Federal requirements, the Secretary is to reduce AFDC matching funds: by 1–2 percent for first finding of non-compliance, by 2–3 percent for second consecutive finding, and by 3–5 percent for third or subsequent finding. (See “corrective compliance” item 54.) Note: State child support plans must undertake to establish paternity of children born out-of-wedlock for whom AFDC is sought, and AFDC law requires the parent to cooperate in establishing paternity. Failure to cooperate makes the parent ineligible for AFDC.

Explanation of provision

If a State child support enforcement program is found by review not to have complied with Title IV–D requirements, and the Secretary determines that the program is not in compliance at the time the finding is made, then the Secretary will reduce the State’s quarterly block grant payment for each quarter during which the State is not in compliance. For the first finding of noncompliance, the reduction will be between 1 and 2 percent; for the second consecutive finding, between 2 and 3 percent; for the third or subsequent findings, between 3 and 5 percent. Noncompliance of a technical nature is to be disregarded.

Reason for change

As described above, it is important to the integrity of the national child support enforcement system (and for the protection of taxpayers who support Federal cash welfare benefits) for every State to operate an effective child support enforcement program in compliance with the revised standards in this proposal. Thus States that fail to meet this basic requirement are subject to penalties that can reach 5 percent of the block grant amount.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

51. FAILURE OF STATE RECEIVING AMOUNTS FROM CONTINGENCY
FUND TO MAINTAIN 100 PERCENT OF HISTORIC EFFORT

Present law

Not relevant.

Explanation of provision

If the Secretary determines that a State failed to maintain 100 percent of historic State spending, as required during a year in which contingency funds are paid to the State, the following year's block grant payment to the State is to be reduced by the amount of contingency funds paid.

Reason for change

The committee proposal establishes a new contingency fund to provide for increased welfare needs of certain States during times of economic distress. One of the conditions of State eligibility for these added funds is that States must maintain 100 percent of prior spending levels during periods in which they receive contingency funds. If a later audit finds that a State has failed to meet this requirement, the State must repay the contingency funds.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

52. FAILURE TO EXPEND ADDITIONAL STATE FUNDS TO REPLACE GRANT REDUCTIONS

Present law

Not applicable.

Explanation of provision

If a State's block grant is reduced as a result of one of the above penalties, the State must, during the following fiscal year, replace the penalized funds using State funds.

Reason for change

This change is designed to ensure that States, not welfare recipients in need of assistance, lose funding as a result of State failure to meet the requirements of the committee proposal.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

53. PENALTIES—FAILURE TO PROVIDE MEDICAL ASSISTANCE TO FAMILIES BECOMING INELIGIBLE FOR ASSISTANCE UNDER THIS PART DUE TO INCREASED EARNINGS FROM EMPLOYMENT OR COLLECTION OF CHILD SUPPORT

Present law

If the Secretary finds that a State fails to comply substantially with any required provision of its Medicaid plan (including transitional benefits for former AFDC families), she shall withhold all payments to the State (or limit payments to categories not affected by the noncompliance).

Explanation of provision

If the Secretary determines that a State does not comply with the requirement to provide medical assistance for 1 year for certain families that become ineligible for block grant assistance due to increased earnings or the collection of child support, the Secretary must reduce the State's block grant by up to 5 percent (depending on the severity of the violation).

Reason for change

This provision is designed to ensure compliance with the requirement that States provide transitional Medicaid benefits for certain families.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

54. PENALTIES—REASONABLE CAUSE EXCEPTION

Present law

Not applicable. (States are eligible for unlimited funds, but must match every dollar at a prescribed rate.)

Explanation of provision

The Secretary may (except for failure to timely repay the loan fund or failure to meet the 75 percent maintenance-of-effort requirement) withhold any of the above penalties against a State if she determines that the State had reasonable cause for failing to comply with the requirement.

Reason for change

The Secretary is granted flexibility in setting most penalties against States.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

55. PENALTIES—CORRECTIVE COMPLIANCE PLAN

Present law

The penalty against a State for substantial noncompliance with child support rules is loss of AFDC matching funds. That penalty shall be suspended if a State submits and implements a corrective action plan. Also, if a State fails to achieve the JOBS participation rate specified in law, the Secretary may waive, in whole or part, the reduction in matching funds, provided the State has submitted a proposal likely to achieve the applicable participation rate for the current year.

Explanation of provision

Before assessing a penalty against a State under any program established or modified by this Act, the Secretary must notify the State of the violation and allow the State an opportunity to enter into a corrective compliance plan within 60 days of the notification. The Federal Government will have 60 days within which to accept or reject the plan; if it accepts the plan, and if the State corrects the violation, no penalty will be assessed. A plan submitted by a State is deemed to be accepted if the Secretary does not accept or reject the plan during the 60-day period after the plan is submitted.

Reason for change

States are allowed a mechanism by which to avoid penalties through cooperation with Federal officials in correcting violations of specific provisions in the committee proposal.

EFFECTIVE DATE

July 1, 1997.

56. PENALTIES—LIMITATION ON AMOUNT OF PENALTY

Present law

If the Secretary finds that a State has failed to comply with the State AFDC plan, he is to withhold all AFDC payments from the State (or limit payments to categories not affected by the non-compliance.)

Explanation of provision

In imposing the penalties described above, a State's quarterly family assistance grant cannot be reduced by more than a total of 25 percent; if necessary, penalties in excess of 25 percent will be carried forward to the immediate following fiscal year.

Reason for change

Total penalties in any single quarter are limited to protect the interests of families who depend on State assistance through the block grant program.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

57. APPEAL OF ADVERSE DECISION

Present law

Current law (sec. 1116 of the Social Security Act) entitles a State to a reconsideration, which HHS must grant upon request, of any disallowed reimbursement claim for an item or class of items. The section also provides for administrative and judicial review, upon petition of a State, of HHS decisions about approval of State plans. At the option of a State, any plan amendment may be treated as the submission of a new plan.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary is required to notify the Governor of a State within 5 days of any adverse decision or action under Title IV–A, including any decision about the State’s plan or imposition of a penalty. This section provides for administrative review by a Departmental Appeals Board within HHS, requires a Board decision within 60 days after an appeal is filed, and provides for judicial review (by a United States district court) within 90 days after a final decision by the Board. The proposal also repeals the reference to Title IV–A in section 1116.

Reason for change

This is a technical provision setting the terms of notice given to States about the imposition of penalties for failure to comply with provisions of the committee proposal.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

58. DATA COLLECTION AND REPORTING—GENERAL REPORTING REQUIREMENT*Present law*

States are required to report the average monthly number of families in each JOBS activity, their types, amounts spent per family, length of JOBS participation and the number of families aided with AFDC/JOBS child care services, the kinds of child care services provided, and sliding fee schedules. States that disallow AFDC for minor mothers in their own living quarters are required to report the number living in their parent’s home or in another supervised arrangement. States also must report data (including numbers aided, types of families, how long aided, payments made) for families who receive transitional Medicaid benefits.

The National Integrated Quality Control System draws monthly samples of AFDC cases and reports extensive background information about each case in the sample. JOBS regulations require States to submit a sample of monthly unaggregated case record data.

Explanation of provision

Each eligible State must collect on a monthly basis, and report to the Secretary on a quarterly basis, the following information on individual families receiving assistance:

1. the county of residence of the family;
2. whether a child receiving assistance or an adult in the family is disabled;
3. the ages of family members;
4. the number of individuals in the family, and the relationship of each member to the youngest child;
5. the employment status and earnings of the employed adult;
6. the marital status of adults, including whether they are never married, widowed, or divorced;
7. the race and educational status of each adult;
8. the race and educational status of each child;
9. whether the family received subsidized housing, Medicaid, food stamps, or subsidized child care, and if the latter two, the amount received;
10. the number of months the family has received each type of assistance under the program;
11. if the adults participated in, and the number of hours per week of participation in, the following activities: education; subsidized private sector employment; unsubsidized employment; public sector employment, work experience, or community service; job search; job skills training or on-the-job training; and vocational education;
12. information necessary to calculate the State work participation rates;
13. the type and amount of assistance received under the program, including the amount of and reason for any reduction of assistance (including sanctions);
14. any amount of unearned income received by any family member; and
15. the citizenship of family members.

In addition to data on individual cases, States must report, on a sample of cases closed during the quarter, whether families left welfare because of employment, marriage, the five-year time limit on benefits, sanction, or State policy.

States may use scientifically acceptable sampling methods approved by the Secretary to estimate the data elements required for annual reports. The Secretary shall provide States with case sampling plans and data collection procedures deemed necessary for statistically valid estimates.

Reason for change

The committee proposal is based on the philosophy that the role of the Federal Government is to establish the broad guidelines of social policy, to provide States with money to create quality programs, and then to ensure that information on the effectiveness of State programs is publicly available. Thus, States are required to report both quarterly and annual data that can be used both to describe their program and to measure the outcomes of the program.

In addition, provisions are made in the proposal for nationally representative data to examine program outcomes (see below).

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

59. OTHER STATE REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

Present law

Regulations require each State to submit quarterly estimates of the total amount (and the Federal share) of expenditures for AFDC benefits and administration. Required quarterly reports include estimates of the Federal share of child support collections made by the State.

Explanation of provision

The above report submitted by the State must also include:

1. a statement of the percentage of the funds paid to the State that is used to cover administrative costs or overhead;
2. a statement of the total amount expended by the State during the fiscal year on programs for needy families;
3. the number of noncustodial parents in the State who participated in work activities as defined in the proposal during the fiscal year;
4. the total amount spent by the State for providing transitional services to a family that no longer receives assistance because of employment, along with a description of those services; and
5. information necessary for the Secretary to verify that those who have become ineligible for assistance because of work have not received cash assistance during the fiscal year.

The Secretary shall prescribe regulations necessary to define the data elements.

Reason for change

See above. This provision requires State reporting of additional information that will help Federal officials determine the impact and results of block grant programs nationwide.

Effective Date

July 1, 1997.

60. DATA COLLECTION AND REPORTING—ANNUAL REPORTS TO THE CONGRESS BY THE SECRETARY

Present law

The law requires the HHS Secretary to report promptly to Congress the results of State reevaluations of AFDC need standards and payment standards required at least every 3 years. The Secretary is to annually compile and submit to Congress annual State reports on at-risk child care. The Family Support Act requires the Secretary to submit recommendations regarding JOBS performance standards by a deadline that was extended.

Explanation of provision

Not later than 6 months after the end of fiscal year 1997, and each fiscal year thereafter, the Secretary shall send Congress a report describing:

1. whether States are meeting minimum participation rates and whether they are meeting objectives of increasing employment and earnings of needy families, increasing child support collections, and decreasing out-of-wedlock pregnancies and child poverty;
2. demographic and financial characteristics of applicant families, recipient families, and those no longer eligible for temporary family assistance;
3. characteristics of each State program funded under this part; and
4. trends in employment and earnings of needy families with minor children.

Reason for change

To assist in evaluating whether State programs are achieving their purposes, the Secretary is to report this information directly to Congress.

Effective date

Not later than 6 months after the end of fiscal year 1997, and each fiscal year thereafter.

61. DIRECT FUNDING AND ADMINISTRATION BY INDIAN TRIBES—GRANTS FOR INDIAN TRIBES

Present law

No provision for AFDC administration by Indian tribes. Indian and Alaska families with children receive AFDC benefits on the same terms as other families in their States, from State or local AFDC agencies.

More than 80 tribes and native organizations in 24 States are JOBS grantees, having applied to conduct JOBS within 6 months of enactment of the law establishing it. Their JOBS allocation of funds is deducted from that of their State.

Explanation of provision

For each fiscal year 1997 through 2000, the Secretary shall pay tribal family assistance grants to eligible Indian tribes (and shall reduce the family assistance grant for the State(s) in which the tribe's service area lies accordingly). The tribal family assistance grant is equal to the total amount of Federal payments to the State for fiscal year 1994 in AFDC benefits, AFDC Administration, Emergency Assistance, and JOBS funds for Indian families residing in the tribal service area. The Secretary shall pay tribes that participated in the JOBS program in fiscal year 1995 a grant equal to their fiscal year 1994 JOBS funding ($7.6 million). This sum is appropriated for each of 6 fiscal years, 1996 through 2001.

Reason for change

Like States, Indian tribes are given new authority and flexibility in operating reformed welfare programs. Eligible tribes receive guaranteed funding for this purpose.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

62. DIRECT FUNDING AND ADMINISTRATION BY INDIAN TRIBES—
THREE-YEAR TRIBAL FAMILY ASSISTANCE PLAN

Present law

Not applicable.

Explanation of provision

Indian tribes must submit a tribal family assistance plan to be eligible to receive a tribal family assistance grant. The plan must outline the tribe's approach to providing welfare services during the 3-year period, specify how services will be provided, identify populations and areas served, provide that families will not receive duplicate assistance from a State or other tribal assistance plan, identify employment opportunities in the service area, and apply fiscal accountability provisions of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act relating to the submission of a single-agency audit report required under current law.

The Secretary must approve tribal family assistance plans that meet the above requirements. For each tribe receiving a family assistance grant and with the participation of the tribe, the Secretary shall establish minimum work requirements, time limits, and penalties that are consistent with provisions of this Act and the economic conditions and resources of the tribe. Tribes will be subject to the same penalties as States for misusing funds, failing to pay back Federal loan funds, and failing to meet work participation rates. Tribes will also be required to abide by the same data collection and reporting requirements as States.

Unless excepted through a waiver, tribes in Alaska that receive tribal family assistance grants must operate a program comparable to the temporary family assistance program of the State of Alaska.

Reason for change

Like States, tribes must submit family assistance plans describing the nature and operation of their welfare programs in order to be eligible for block grant funding.

Effective date

July 1, 1997.

63. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—RESEARCH

Present law

Section 1110 of the Social Security Act authorizes $5 million annually for cooperative research or demonstration projects, such as those relating to the prevention and reduction of dependency.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary shall conduct research on the effects, benefits, and costs of operating State programs of Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, including time limits for eligibility. The research shall include studies on the effects of different programs and the impacts of the programs on welfare dependency, illegitimacy, teen pregnancy, employment rates, child well-being, and other appropriate issues.

Reason for change

As with the requirement that States must report program data, the purpose of these studies is to provide Congress and the Nation with reliable information about the effectiveness of State Temporary Family Assistance programs in helping people leave and remain independent of welfare. The studies will be conducted so that Congress can get information that represents both national performance and the performance of most States.

Effective date

Upon enactment (October 1, 1996).

64. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—DEVELOPMENT AND EVALUATION OF INNOVATIVE APPROACHES TO REDUCING WELFARE DEPENDENCY AND INCREASING CHILD WELL-BEING

Present law

Section 1115 of the Social Security Act authorizes waiver of specified provisions of AFDC law for State experimental, pilot or demonstration projects to promote objectives of the law, including self-support of parents and stronger family life.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary may assist States in developing, and shall evaluate, innovative approaches for reducing welfare dependency and increasing the well-being of minor children, using random assignments in these evaluations to the maximum extent feasible.

Reason for change

Consistent with the overall goals of providing enhanced State flexibility and encouraging innovative reforms, the Secretary is authorized to assist States in evaluating new methods of reducing welfare dependency and increasing child well-being.

Effective date

Upon enactment (October 1, 1996).

65. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary shall develop innovative methods of disseminating information on research, evaluations, and studies, including ways to facilitate sharing of information via computers and other technologies.

Reason for change

A major role of the Secretary will be to assist States in evaluating and becoming familiar with promising welfare reform programs operating in other States.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

66. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—ANNUAL RANKINGS OF STATES AND REVIEW OF MOST AND LEAST SUCCESSFUL WORK PROGRAMS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary shall rank annually States receiving family assistance grants in the order of their success in moving families off welfare and into work. The Secretary shall review annually the three most and three least successful programs under these criteria.

Reason for change

See above.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

67. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—ANNUAL RANKINGS OF STATES AND REVIEW OF ISSUES RELATING TO OUT-OF-WEDLOCK BIRTHS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary shall rank States annually on the percentage of births to families on welfare that are out-of-wedlock and on net changes in the percentage of out-of-wedlock births to families on welfare. The Secretary must review the programs of the five highest and five lowest ranking States under these criteria.

Reason for change

See above.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

68. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—STATE-INITIATED EVALUATIONS

Present law

In a 1994 public notice, HHS stated that it is committed to a broad range of evaluation strategies, including true experimental, quasi-experimental, and qualitative designs, for demonstrations operating under waivers. Section 1115(d) of the Social Security Act required the Secretary to enter into agreements with up to 8 applicant States to conduct demonstration projects testing more liberal treatment of unemployed 2-parent families. The law stipulated that the States must evaluate costs and work effort results by use of experimental and control groups.

Explanation of provision

A State is eligible to receive funding to evaluate its family assistance program if it submits an evaluation design determined by the Secretary to be rigorous and likely to yield credible and useful information. The State must pay 10 percent of the study's cost, unless the Secretary waives this rule.

Reason for change

In addition to familiarizing States with other State reform programs, the Secretary is charged with helping States evaluate the effects of their own programs, and is authorized to provide Federal funding.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

69. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—REQUIREMENT THAT THE SECRETARY OF HHS PREPARE AN ANNUAL REPORT

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This provision requires the Secretary of HHS to prepare an annual report, beginning 3 years after enactment, which would examine the impact of welfare reform on various subgroups of families and children.

Reason for change

In order to better understand the effects of welfare reform on families, including those made ineligible or whose benefits would be limited under requirements in the proposal, the Secretary is required to prepare and submit annual reports to Congress.

Effective date

The Secretary must submit the first report 3 years after the date of enactment, and annually thereafter.

70. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—FUNDING OF STUDIES AND DEMONSTRATIONS

Present law

See “Research” above. For Section 1115(a) “waiver” projects (“Innovative Approaches” above) Federal cost neutrality over the life of a demonstration project is required.

Note.—The annual budgets of HHS request funds for policy research. The fiscal year 1997 budget seeks $9 million and lists these priority issues: issues related to welfare reform, health care, family support and independence, poverty, at-risk children and youth, aging and disability, science policy, and improved access to health care and support services.

Explanation of provision

For research, development and evaluation of innovative approaches, State-initiated evaluation studies of the family assistance program, and for costs of operating and evaluating demonstration projects begun under the AFDC waiver process, this section authorizes to be appropriated, and appropriates, a total of $15 million annually for 6 fiscal years, 1996 through 2001. Half of this sum is allocated to the purposes described above in “Research” and “Innovative Approaches” and half to the other purposes.

Reason for change

Federal funds are guaranteed to ensure that adequate resources are available to evaluate family assistance programs and determine that the purposes of this block grant are being achieved. In addition to the broad authority to carry out studies under this section, the Secretary is given specific authorization to implement and evaluate demonstrations of a variety of innovative and promising strategies such as those currently operated in a number of States by Goodwill Industries. Such programs are examples of efforts that have been successful in moving families off welfare and into work; providing for the evaluation of and dissemination of information about innovative, private-sector programs is an important part of nationwide reform.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

71. STUDY BY THE CENSUS BUREAU

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The Census Bureau must expand the Survey of Income and Program Participation (SIPP) to evaluate the impact of welfare reforms made by this title on a random national sample of recipients and, as appropriate, other low-income families. The study should focus on the impact of welfare reform on children and families, and should pay particular attention to the issues of out-of-wedlock birth, welfare dependency, the beginning and end of welfare spells, and the causes of repeat welfare spells. $10 million per year for 7 years (1996–2002) is appropriated for this study.

Reason for change

The committee wishes to ensure that data about the results of welfare reform are known, in particular on major issues addressed by the proposal: illegitimacy, welfare dependency, the causes of poverty, and the reasons families return to welfare.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

72. WAIVERS

Present law

Section 1115 of the Social Security Act authorizes the HHS Secretary to waive specified requirements of State AFDC plans in order to enable a State to carry out any experimental, pilot, or demonstration project that the Secretary judges likely to assist in promoting the program's objectives. Some 38 States have received waivers from the Clinton administration for welfare reforms, as of late May 1996.

Explanation of provision

This section provides that terms of AFDC waivers in effect, or approved, as of September 30, 1995, will continue until their expiration, except that beginning with fiscal year 1996 a State operating under a waiver shall receive the block grant described under Section 403 in lieu of any other payment provided for in the waiver. The section also allows for continuation, under certain conditions of waivers on or approved before July 1, 1997, on the basis of applications made before enactment of the new program.

States have the option to terminate waivers before their expiration, but projects that are ended prematurely must be summarized in written reports. A State that submits a request to end a waiver within 90 days after the adjournment of the first regular session of the State legislature that begins after the date of enactment will be held harmless for accrued cost neutrality liabilities incurred under the waiver.

The Secretary is directed to encourage any State now operating a waiver to continue the project and to evaluate its result or effect. A State may elect to continue one or more individual waivers.

Reason for change

The provision is designed to allow States flexibility to continue or under certain conditions terminate current waiver projects.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

73. ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR FAMILY SUPPORT

Present law

An Assistant Secretary for Family Support, appointed by the President by and with consent of the Senate, is to administer

AFDC, child support enforcement, and the Jobs Opportunities and Basic Skills (JOBS) program.

Explanation of provision

The provision for an Assistant Secretary for Family Support now found in section 417 of Part A of the Social Security Act is retained but modified to remove the reference to the JOBS program, which is repealed.

Reason for change

This is a technical change.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

74. LIMITATION ON FEDERAL AUTHORITY

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

No officer or employee of the Federal Government may regulate the conduct of States under this part or enforce any provision of this part, except to the extent expressly provided in this part.

Reason for change

Many States are highly critical of the current welfare system's lack of flexibility and high degree of Federal regulation. This provision is designed to explicitly restrict the ability of Federal officials to regulate State block grant programs, except as specifically provided under the committee proposal.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

75. DEFINITIONS—ADULT

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

An individual who is not a minor child.

Reason for change

This is a technical change.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

76. DEFINITIONS—MINOR CHILD

Present law

No provision. A dependent child is defined as a needy child who is under age 18 (19, at State option, if a full time student in a secondary school or equivalent level of vocational and technical training and expected to complete school before age 19).

Explanation of provision

An individual who has not attained 18 years of age or has not attained 19 years of age and is a full-time student in a secondary school (or in the equivalent level of vocational or technical training).

Reason for change

This is a technical change.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

77. DEFINITIONS—FISCAL YEAR

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Any 12-month period ending on September 30 of a calendar year.

Reason for change

This is a technical change.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

78. DEFINITIONS—INDIAN, INDIAN TRIBE, AND TRIBAL ORGANIZATION

Present law

For JOBS purposes, an Indian tribe is defined as any tribe, band, nation, or other organized group of Indians that is recognized as eligible for special programs and services of the U.S. because of their status as Indians. An Alaska native organization is any organized group of Alaska natives eligible to operate a Federal program under P.L. 93-638 or that group's designee.

Explanation of provision

With the exception of specified Indian tribes in Alaska, these terms have the meaning given in the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act.

Reason for change

This is a technical change.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

79. DEFINITIONS—STATE

Present law

For purposes of AFDC, the term "State" means the 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the U.S.

Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa. The last jurisdiction has not implemented AFDC.

Explanation of provision

Except as otherwise specifically provided (e.g., regarding the provision of population growth funds and contingency funds), the term “State” means the 50 States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the United States Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa.

Reason for change

This is a technical change.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

80. ADDITIONAL GRANTS TO PUERTO RICO, THE VIRGIN ISLANDS, GUAM, AND AMERICAN SAMOA; LIMITATION ON TOTAL PAYMENTS

Present law

Under current law, the territories are eligible for 75 percent matching grants for their expenditures on cash welfare for adult assistance (i.e., assistance for needy persons who are aged, blind, or disabled), Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), Emergency Assistance (EA), Foster Care and Adoption Assistance, the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills (JOBS) program, and the Family Preservation program (Title IV-B, subpart 2). These matching grants are limited by caps on Federal payments. The territories also receive grants under the child welfare services (Title IV-B, subpart 1) program.

The law places a ceiling on total payments for AFDC, aid to needy aged, blind or disabled adults, and foster care and adoption assistance to Puerto Rico—$82 million, the Virgin Islands—$2.8 million, Guam—$3.8 million, and American Samoa (AFDC, foster care, and adoption assistance)—$1 million.

Explanation of provision

The proposal retains but increases aggregate welfare ceilings in each of the territories and combines the individual programs into a single block grant. The new ceilings would apply to aggregate spending for cash aid for needy families (temporary family assistance program), cash aid to needy aged, blind or disabled adults, and child protection. Maximum potential fiscal year payments (including both the capped mandatory payments listed below and the authorization of discretionary grants) are as follows: Puerto Rico—$113.5 million; Guam—$5.2 million; U.S. Virgin Islands—$4.0 million; and American Samoa—$1.3 million.

To receive mandatory ceiling amounts (capped entitlements), territories must spend from their own funds in a fiscal year as much as they did in fiscal year 1995 for cash aid to needy families, and cash aid to needy aged, blind, or disabled adults. Federal matching funds, at a 75 percent rate, would reimburse territories for expenditures above their fiscal year 1995 base level, but below the Federal cap. Mandatory ceiling amounts: Puerto Rico, $105.5 million;

Guam, $4.9 million; Virgin Islands, $3.7 million; and American Samoa, $1.1 million.

Reason for change

The provision updates Federal grants for U.S. territories in keeping with revisions in the national welfare system.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

81. REPEAL OF PROVISIONS REQUIRING REDUCTION OF MEDICAID PAYMENTS TO STATES THAT REDUCE WELFARE PAYMENT LEVELS

Present law

If a State reduces AFDC "payment levels" below those of May 1, 1988, the Secretary shall not approve the State's Medicaid plan.

If a State reduces AFDC payment levels below those of July 1, 1987, Medicaid matching funds shall be disallowed for services to certain pregnant women and children not enrolled in AFDC but eligible for Medicaid on grounds of low income.

Explanation of provision

The committee proposal repeals provisions that impose Medicaid sanctions upon States that reduce AFDC payment levels.

Reason for change

States currently must maintain a high level of welfare benefits or suffer the loss of Federal medical assistance funding that would amount in many cases to millions of dollars in lost Federal funds. As a result, this requirement forces many States to maintain benefit levels that may be at odds with the overall goal of the committee proposal of reforming welfare to discourage welfare dependency and encourage family self-reliance. The committee proposal increases State flexibility in operating reformed welfare programs by removing the restrictive current law requirement on benefit levels.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

82. SERVICES PROVIDED BY CHARITABLE, RELIGIOUS, AND PRIVATE ORGANIZATIONS

Present law

The Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG) Act prohibits use of any financial assistance provided through any grant or contract for any sectarian purpose or activity. In general, the CCDBG requires religious nondiscrimination, but it does allow a sectarian organization to require employees to adhere to its religious tenets and teachings.

Explanation of provision

The committee proposal authorizes States to administer and provide family assistance services (and services under SSI and public housing) through contracts with charitable, religious, or private organizations. Under this provision, religious organizations would be eligible, on the same basis as any other private organization, to provide assistance as contractors or to accept certificates and vouchers so long as their programs are implemented consistent with the Establishment Clause of the Constitution. States may pay recipients by means of certificates, vouchers, or other forms of disbursement that are redeemable with such private organizations.

The proposal provides that, except as otherwise allowed by law, a religious organization administering the program may not discriminate against beneficiaries on the basis of religious belief or refusal to participate in a religious practice. States must provide an alternative provider for a beneficiary who objects to the religious character of the designated organization.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to preempt any provision of a State constitution or State statute that prohibits or restricts the expenditure of State funds in or by religious organizations.

Reason for change

Consistent with the intent of the committee proposal to restore flexibility and control over welfare programs to States, communities, and individuals, this provision authorizes States to involve charitable, religious, and private organizations in the operation of their revised welfare programs. The provision encourages participation by religious organizations in the effort to help welfare recipients reach self-sufficiency, while assuring such organizations that they are not required to give up their religious identities and commitments in doing so. The provision also contains language that assures protection of the religious liberties of recipients of welfare services.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

83. CENSUS DATA ON GRANDPARENTS AS PRIMARY CAREGIVERS FOR THEIR GRANDCHILDREN

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for the sake of completeness.)

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary of Commerce shall expand the Census Bureau's question (for the decennial census and the mid-decade census) concerning households with both grandparents and their grandchildren so as to distinguish between households in which a grandparent temporarily provides a home and those where the grandparent serves as primary caregiver.

84. REPORT ON DATA PROCESSING

Present law

No provision. (State child support plans may provide for establishment of a statewide automated data processing and information retrieval system.)

Explanation of provision

The Secretary must report to Congress within 6 months on the status of automatic data processing systems in the States and on what would be required to produce a system capable of tracking participants in public programs over time and checking case records across States to determine whether some individuals are participating in public programs in more than one State. The report should include a plan for building on the current automatic data processing system to produce a system capable of performing these functions as well as an estimate of the time required to put the system in place and the cost of the system.

Reason for change

The revised welfare program provided for in the committee proposal requires a number of major changes in the ways States track participants (such as for purposes of the five-year time limit, interstate movement, work requirements, and child support enforcement). This provision requires the Secretary to report to Congress on current State tracking programs and capabilities and changes needed to allow for the success of revised State programs.

Effective date

The Secretary is to report within 6 months of the date of enactment (October 1, 1996).

85. STUDY ON ALTERNATIVE OUTCOMES MEASURES

Present law

The Family Support Act required the Secretary to submit to Congress recommendations for JOBS performance standards regarding "specific measures of outcomes." It said the standards should not be measured solely by levels of activity or participation. (The report, due Oct. 1, 1993, was submitted 1 year late.)

Explanation of provision

The Secretary must, in cooperation with the States, study and analyze measures of program outcomes (as an alternative to minimum participation rates) for evaluating the success of State block grant programs in helping recipients leave welfare. The study must include a determination of whether outcomes measures should be applied on a State or national basis and a preliminary assessment of the job placement performance bonus established in the Act. The Secretary must report findings to the Committee on Finance and the Committee on Ways and Means not later than September 30, 1998.

Reason for change

The Secretary must consider whether outcomes would be a better measure of State performance than minimum participation rates, and report to Congress on her findings.

Effective date

October 1, 1996 (with the Secretary reporting to Congress by September 30, 1998).

86. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This section makes a series of technical amendments, including the repeal of the JOBS program, that conform provisions of the proposal with various titles of the Social Security Act.

Reason for change

Technical changes.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

87. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS TO THE FOOD STAMP ACT OF 1977 AND RELATED PROVISIONS

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This section makes a series of technical amendments that conform provisions of the proposal with various titles of the Food Stamp Act and other related provisions.

88. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS TO OTHER LAWS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This section makes a series of amendments that conform provisions of the proposal to the Unemployment Compensation Amendments of 1976, the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987, the Housing and Urban-Rural Recovery Act of 1983, the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982, the Social Security Amendments of 1967, the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments Act of 1988, the Higher Education Act of 1965, the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, Public Law 99-88, the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, the Wagner-Peyser Act, the Job Training Partnership Act, the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Act of 1981, the Family Support Act of 1988, the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, the Immigration and Nationality Act, the Head Start Act, and the School-to-Work Opportunities Act of 1994.

Reason for change

Technical changes.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

89. DEVELOPMENT OF PROTOTYPE OF COUNTERFEIT-RESISTANT SOCIAL SECURITY CARD REQUIRED

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The Commissioner of Social Security is required to develop a prototype of a counterfeit-resistant Social Security card. The Commissioner must report to Congress on the cost of issuing a tamper-proof card for all persons over a 3-, 5-, and 10-year period.

Reason for change

This provision is designed to determine the possible efficacy of a counterfeit-resistant Social Security card in preventing fraud and abuse in the administration of public welfare programs.

Effective date

The Commissioner is to submit her report within 1 year after the date of enactment.

90. DISCLOSURE OF RECEIPT OF FEDERAL FUNDS

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Specified public funds (except those provided under Titles IV, XVI, and XX of the Social Security Act) received by nonprofit, tax-exempt 501(c) organizations, must be publicly disclosed. When a 501(c) organization that accepts Federal funds under the Work Opportunity Act makes any communication intended to promote public support or opposition to any governmental policy (Federal, State or local) through any broadcasting station, newspaper, magazine, outdoor advertising facility, direct mailing, or any other type of general public advertising, the communication must state: "This was prepared and paid for by an organization that accepts taxpayer dollars."

91. MODIFICATIONS TO THE JOB OPPORTUNITIES FOR CERTAIN LOW-INCOME INDIVIDUALS PROGRAMS

Present law

The Family Support Act of 1988 (Sec. 505) directed the Secretary to enter into agreement with between 5 and 10 nonprofit organizations to conduct demonstrations to create job opportunities for AFDC recipients and other low-income persons. For these projects, $6.5 million was authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year, 1990–1992.

Explanation of provision

The word “demonstration” is struck from the description of these projects; the projects are converted to grant status. The provision requires the Secretary to enter into agreements with nonprofit organizations to conduct projects that create job opportunities for recipients of family assistance and other persons with income below the poverty guideline. $25 million annually is authorized for these projects.

Reason for change

Technical changes.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

92. SECRETARIAL SUBMISSION OF LEGISLATIVE PROPOSAL FOR TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment, the Secretary must submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a legislative proposal providing for technical and conforming amendments.

Reason for change

Technical change.

Effective date

The Secretary must submit proposals within 90 days after the date of enactment.

93. EFFECTIVE DATE; TRANSITION RULE

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Except as otherwise provided, this title and the amendments made by it take effect on July 1, 1997. Penalties (with the major exception of penalties for misuse of Federal family assistance grant funds) will not take effect until July 1, 1997, or 6 months after the State plan is received by the Secretary, whichever is later.

States may opt to begin their block grant program before July 1, 1997, in which case the State is entitled to receive no more than the State family assistance grant for the entire fiscal year; block grant payments will be made pro rata based on the number of days remaining in the fiscal year after the Secretary first received the State plan. The submission of a State plan is deemed to constitute the State's acceptance of the family assistance grant (including pro rata reductions for a partial fiscal year) and the termination of the individual entitlement to benefits under the AFDC program. Effective October 1, 1996, no individual or family shall be entitled to any benefits or services under any State plan under part A or F of Title IV of the Social Security Act (as in effect on September 30, 1995).

The amendments made do not apply with respect to powers, duties, penalties and other considerations applicable to aid, assistance or services provided before the effective date, or with respect to administrative actions and proceedings that commenced before the effective date. Federal and State officials may use scientifically acceptable statistical sampling techniques in closing out accounts. Each State shall complete the filing of all claims within 2 years after the date of enactment. The person serving as Assistant Secretary for Family Support within HHS on the day before the effective date of this title will continue to serve in that position until a successor is named, performing functions provided under current law and having powers and duties provided in Section 103 of this bill.

Reason for change

This provision allows States the flexibility to begin their block grant programs until as late as July 1, 1997; penalties are generally delayed until that date to allow for the orderly transition to the revised program.

Effective date

July 1, 1997 (or earlier at State option).

SUBTITLE B—SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME

1. REFERENCE TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Any reference in this title expressed in terms of an amendment to or repeal of a section or other provision is made to the Social Security Act.

Reason for change

The purpose of this section is to indicate that all references (to amend or repeal a section or other provision) in this title are made to the Social Security Act.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

CHAPTER 1—ELIGIBILITY RESTRICTIONS

2. DENIAL OF SSI BENEFITS TO INDIVIDUALS FOUND TO HAVE FRAUDULENTLY MISREPRESENTED RESIDENCE IN ORDER TO OBTAIN BENEFITS SIMULTANEOUSLY IN 2 OR MORE STATES

Present law

Current law states that persons who knowingly and willfully make or cause to be made any false statements or misrepresentations in applying for or continuing to receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments shall be fined under title 18, U.S. Code, imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

Explanation of provision

Any person convicted in Federal court or State court of having fraudulently misrepresented residence in order to obtain benefits or services from two or more States from the SSI program is ineligible for SSI benefits for 10 years. In addition, an official of the court in which the individual was convicted is required to notify the Commissioner of such conviction.

Reason for change

The committee has determined that stricter penalties are needed to reduce fraud in the SSI program. This provision imposes a stricter penalty than under current law, ending eligibility for 10 years for individuals who attempt to receive benefits in more than one State.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

3. DENIAL OF SSI BENEFITS FOR FUGITIVE FELONS AND PROBATION AND PAROLE VIOLATORS

Present law

Current law provides safeguards which restrict the use or disclosure of information concerning SSI applicants or recipients to purposes directly connected with the administration of the SSI program or other federally-funded programs. However, such safeguards must not prevent the State or local agency from furnishing a law enforcement officer, upon his request, with the address of any recipient if the officer (1) provides the agency with the recipient's name and Social Security account number, and (2) demonstrates that the recipient is a fugitive felon, that the apprehension of the person is within the officer's official duties, and the request is made in the proper exercise of those duties.

Explanation of provision

No assistance may be provided to an individual who is fleeing to avoid prosecution, custody or confinement after conviction for a crime (or an attempt to commit a crime) that is a felony (or, in New Jersey, a high misdemeanor), or who violates probation or parole imposed under Federal or State law.

Any safeguards established by the State against use or disclosure of information about individual recipients shall not prevent the agency, under certain conditions, from providing the address, Social Security account number, and photograph (if applicable) of a recipient to a law enforcement officer who is pursuing a fugitive felon or parole or probation violator. This provision applies also to a recipient sought by an officer not because he is a fugitive but because he has information that the officer says is necessary for his official duties. In both cases the officer must notify the State that location or apprehension of the recipient is within his official duties.

Reason for change

The committee proposal emphasizes that assistance through the SSI program is intended for the aged, blind, and disabled. Fleeing convicts or probation or parole violators should not be supported through Federal benefits. Measures to improve cooperation between States, SSA, and law enforcement officials are intended to assist in locating and apprehending these individuals.

Effective Date

Date of enactment.

4. TREATMENT OF PRISONERS

(1) Implementation of Prohibition Against Payment of Benefits to Prisoners

Present law

Current law prohibits prisoners from receiving benefits while incarcerated. Federal, State, or county or local prisons are required to make available, upon written request, the name and Social Security account number of any individual who is confined in a penal institution or correctional facility and convicted of any crime punishable by imprisonment of more than 1 year.

Explanation of provision

The Commissioner shall enter into a contract with any interested State or local institution under which the institution shall provide monthly the names, Social Security account numbers, dates of birth, and other identifying information. The Commissioner shall pay to the institution for each eligible individual who becomes ineligible an amount not to exceed $400 if the information is provided within 30 days of the individual becoming an inmate. The payment is not to exceed $200 if the information is furnished after 30 days but within 90 days.

In addition, the Computer Matching and Privacy Protection Act of 1988 shall not apply to the information exchanged pursuant to this contract.

Reason for change

This provision provides new financial incentives for State and local institutions to report information on inmates to the Social Security Administration so SSI and Social Security retirement and disability benefits fraudulently received by prisoners can be stopped.

The Privacy Act's procedural requirements to computer matching agreements between the Commissioner and the institutions imposes an excessively costly administrative burden that could hamper the administration of the prisoner payment provisions. Therefore, the Computer Matching and Privacy Protection Act shall not apply to the information exchanged under these provisions.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

(2) Denial of SSI Benefits for 10 Years to a Person Found to Have Fraudulently Obtained SSI Benefits While in Prison

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Denies benefits for 10 years (beginning the date of release from prison) to a person found to have fraudulently obtained SSI benefits while in prison.

Reason for change

The committee strongly believes that there must be a severe penalty for those found to have fraudulently obtained SSI benefits while in prison.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

(3) Elimination of OASDI Requirement that Confinement Stem from Crimes Punishable by Imprisonment for More Than 1 Year

Present law

Bars Social Security benefits from prisoners convicted of any crime punishable by imprisonment of more than a year, not just felonies.

Explanation of provision

Replaces “an offense punishable by imprisonment for more than 1 year” with “a criminal offense” and deletes other language. Effective for benefits payable more than 180 days after the date of enactment. The provision bars Social Security benefits from persons confined throughout a month to a penal institution or another institution if the person is found guilty but insane.

Reason for change

This change was a result of preliminary audit findings by SSA’s Office of the Inspector General, which found that the language in existing law creates administrative barriers to the effective administration of SSA’s suspension activities by requiring the expenditure of scarce resources to determine the maximum sentence for inmates nationwide. This data is not obtainable from the correction agencies and must be obtained from the courts.

Effective date

Effective for benefits payable more than 180 days after enactment.

(4) Study of Other Potential Improvements in the Collection of Information Respecting Public Inmates

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The Commissioner shall conduct a study of the desirability, feasibility, and cost of establishing a system for courts to furnish the Commissioner information regarding court orders and requiring that State and local jails, prisons, and other institutions enter into contracts with the Commissioner by means of an electronic or similar data exchange system. The report of this study shall be submitted to the responsible committees not later than 1 year after enactment.

Reason for change

The Social Security Administration must find better ways to interface directly with courts and State and local prisons and other institutions so that prisoners do not receive federal benefits.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

5. EFFECTIVE DATE OF APPLICATION FOR BENEFITS

Present law

Application of an individual for SSI benefits is effective on the later of the date the application is filed or the date the individual first becomes eligible for such benefits.

Explanation of provision

Changes the effective date of application to the later of the first day of the month following the date the application is filed or the date the individual first becomes eligible for such benefits. The provision retains the Social Security Administration's authority to issue immediate cash advance against the first month's SSI benefit to individuals faced with financial emergencies. Effective for applications filed on or after the date of enactment.

Reason for change

The committee proposal ends the administrative burden of prorating benefits based on the date of application. In addition, the provision retains SSA's authority to provide immediate assistance to individuals faced with emergencies. The committee notes that in the Social Security disability program, once an individual is determined to be eligible to receive Social Security disability benefits, there is a five-month waiting period during which the individual is not entitled to benefits.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

CHAPTER 2—BENEFITS FOR DISABLED CHILDREN

6. DEFINITION AND ELIGIBILITY RULES

(1) Definition of Childhood DisabilityPresent law

There is no definition of childhood disability in the statute. Under current disability evaluation procedures, to be found disabled a child must have a medically determinable physical or mental impairment that substantially reduces the ability to independently and effectively engage in age-appropriate activities. This impairment must be expected to result in death or to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months.

Explanation of provision

This section adds a new statutory definition of childhood disability: An individual under the age of 18 is considered as disabled if the individual has a medically determinable physical or mental impairment, which results in marked and severe functional limitations, and which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for at least a continuous period of not less than 12 months. The Commissioner shall ensure that the combined effects of all physical or mental impairments of an individual are taken into account in determining whether an individual is disabled. In addition, the Commissioner shall ensure that the regulations prescribed by these provisions provide for the evaluation of children who cannot be tested because of their young age.

Reason for change

The committee intends that only needy children with severe disabilities be eligible for SSI and that the Listings and other disability determination regulations as modified by these provisions properly reflect the severity of disability contemplated by the statutory definition. In those areas of the Listings that involve domains of functioning, the committee expects no less than marked limitations in no fewer than two domains or extreme limitations in at least one domain as the standard for qualification. The committee is also aware that the Social Security Administration uses the term “severe” to often mean “other than minor” in an initial screening procedure for disability determination and in other places. The committee, however, uses the term “severe” in its common sense meaning.

The committee does not intend to suggest by this definition of childhood disability that every child need be especially evaluated for functional limitations, or that this definition creates a supposition for any such examination. Under current procedures for writing individual listings, level of functioning is an explicit consideration in deciding which impairment, with certain medical or other findings, is of sufficient severity to be included in the Listings. Nonetheless, the committee does not intend to limit the use of functional information, if reflecting sufficient severity and is otherwise appropriate.

Effective date

This provision shall apply to applications pending on or filed on or after the date of enactment; this provision shall apply to current recipients upon redetermination.

(2) Changes to SSI Regulations

Present law

Under the disability determination process for children, the Social Security Administration first determines if a child meets or equals the "Listing of Impairments" in Federal regulations. Under the Listings that relate to mental disorders, maladaptive behavior may be scored twice, in domains of social functioning and of personal/behavior functioning.

Under the disability determination process for children, individuals who do not meet or equal the Listing of Impairments are subject to an "Individualized Functional Assessment" (IFA). This assessment examines whether the child can engage in age-appropriate activities effectively. If the child cannot, the child is determined disabled.

Explanation of provision

The Commissioner of Social Security must eliminate references in the Listing of Impairments to maladaptive behavior among medical criteria for evaluation of mental and emotional disorders in the domain of personal/behavioral function.

The Commissioner of Social Security must discontinue use of the Individualized Functional Assessment for children set forth in the Code of Federal Regulations.

Reason for change

The committee received extensive testimony about the inducement that cash payments present to some poor families with children who are not severely disabled. Particularly troubling are reports of "coaching" on the part of parents and generally broadened eligibility criteria that have resulted in a program characterized by explosive growth in enrollment and mounting costs to taxpayers. As a result of these and similar problems, the number of children on SSI grew from 300,000 in 1989 to 914,000 in 1995, while children's benefit spending grew from $1.2 billion to $4.8 billion. The SSI changes in the committee proposal are designed to maintain adequate disability benefits for families in need, while protecting against continued uncontrolled growth in program cost and enrollment.

Effective date

These provisions shall apply to applications pending on or filed on or after the date of enactment; and shall apply to current recipients upon redetermination.

(3) Medical Improvement Review Standard as it Applies to Individuals Under the Age of 18

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This section contains technical modifications to the medical improvement review standard based on the new definition of childhood disability.

Reason for change

Incorporates the new definition of childhood disability in the medical improvement standard.

Effective date

This provision shall apply to applications pending or filed on or after the date of enactment and shall apply to current recipients upon redetermination.

(4) Effective Dates

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Changes apply to applicants and pending claims on or after the date of enactment, without regard to whether regulations have been issued.

No later than 1 year after the date of enactment, the Commissioner shall redetermine the eligibility of any child receiving benefits on the date of enactment who would lose eligibility under these provisions.

Benefits of current recipients will continue until their redetermination. Should a child be found ineligible, their benefits will end following redetermination.

No later than January 1, 1997, the Commissioner must notify individuals whose eligibility for SSI benefits will terminate.

The Commissioner must report to Congress within 180 days regarding progress made in implementing the SSI children's provisions.

The Commissioner shall submit final regulations to the committees of jurisdiction of Congress for their review at least 45 days before they become effective.

Additional funding of $300 million is provided to SSA to assist the agency in conducting the required redeterminations and continuing disability reviews.

Reason for change

The importance of these provisions is emphasized by their immediate effective date for all pending and new applications. The committee allows 1 year for the Commissioner to redetermine the eligibility of those currently receiving benefits whose eligibility may end due to these provisions. Recognizing the impact these redeterminations will have on SSA resources, the committee proposal provides an additional $300 million for this purpose over the next 3 years.

Individuals currently receiving benefits must be notified of possible changes in eligibility no later than January 1, 1997, in an effort to provide SSA additional time to execute the notification process. In addition, due to the importance of these provisions, the committee is requesting review of implementing regulations in advance and a progress report within 6 months.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

7. ELIGIBILITY REDETERMINATIONS AND CONTINUING DISABILITY REVIEWS

Present law

Federal law requires that SSI recipients be subject to a continuing disability review (CDR) at least once every 3 years, except for recipients whose impairments are judged to be permanent. The Commissioner is required to conduct periodic CDRs of at least 100,000 disabled SSI recipients per year for a period of 3 years (i.e., fiscal years 1996–1998) and report to Congress on CDRs for disabled SSI recipients no later than October 1, 1998.

Current law specifies that the Commissioner must reevaluate under adult disability criteria, the eligibility of at least one-third of SSI children who turn age 18 in each of the fiscal years 1996, 1997, and 1998 (the CDR must be completed before these children reach age 19) and report to Congress no later than October 1, 1998, on CDRs for disabled children.

Explanation of provision

(1) Continuing Disability Reviews Relating to Certain Children

In addition to the provisions of current law, at least once every 3 years the Commissioner must conduct CDRs of children receiving SSI benefits. For children who are eligible for benefits and whose medical condition is not expected to improve, the requirement to perform such reviews does not apply (unless the Commissioner decides otherwise). At the time of review the parent or guardian must present evidence demonstrating that the recipient is and has been receiving appropriate treatment for his/her disability.

(2) Disability Eligibility Redeterminations Required for SSI Recipients Who Attain 18 Years of Age

The eligibility for all children qualifying for SSI benefits must be redetermined using the adult criteria within 1 year after turning 18 years of age. The review will be considered a substitute for any other review required under the changes made in this section. The “minimum number of reviews” and the “sunset” provisions of section 207 of the Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994 are eliminated.

(3) Continuing Disability Review Required for Low Birth Weight Babies

A review must be conducted 12 months after the birth of a child whose low birth weight is a contributing factor to the child's disability. At the time of review, the parent or guardian must present evidence demonstrating that the recipient is and has been receiving appropriate treatment for his/her disability.

Reason for change

To protect taxpayers against abuse and also to encourage children whose condition improves to become free of government dependence, the Commissioner is required to review the eligibility of certain children already receiving SSI benefits to continue receiving benefits. Experience has shown that many children with disabilities do improve and that disability reviews can be cost beneficial.

Effective date

Changes involving redeterminations and CDRs apply to benefits for months beginning on or after the date of enactment, regardless of whether regulations have been issued.

8. ADDITIONAL ACCOUNTABILITY REQUIREMENTS

(1) Disposal of Resources for Less Than Fair Market Value

Present law

No provision. There is a transfer of assets provision in Medicaid law that is similar to the committee proposal (Sec. 1917(c) of the Social Security Act).

Explanation of provision

The committee proposal delays eligibility for any child applicant whose parents or guardians, in order to qualify a child for benefits, dispose of assets for less than fair market value within 36 months of the date of application. The provision stipulates that any assets in a trust in which the child (i.e., parent or representative payee) has control shall be considered assets of the child and subject to the 36-month "look-back" rule. The delay (in months) is equal to the amount of assets divided by the SSI standard benefit. This provision is effective 90 days after the date of enactment.

Reason for change

The intention of the SSI program for children is to provide benefits to low-income young people who are severely disabled. Families should not be allowed to evade financial deeming levels by divesting assets or placing them in trusts over which the recipient has ultimate control.

Effective date

This provision shall be effective with respect to transfers that occur at least 90 days after the date of enactment.

(2) Requirement to Establish AccountPresent law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This section requires the representative payee (i.e., the parent) of an individual under age 18 to establish an account in a financial institution for the receipt of past-due SSI payments if the lump-sum payment amounts to more than 6 times the maximum monthly SSI payment (including any State supplement). A representative payee shall use the funds in the account for the following allowable expenses: education or job skills training; personal needs assistance; special equipment or housing modifications related to the child's disability; medical treatment; appropriate therapy or rehabilitation; or any other item or service that the Commissioner determines is appropriate.

Once the account is established the representative payee may deposit any past-due benefits owed to the recipient and any other funds representing an SSI underpayment provided the amount is more than the maximum monthly SSI benefit payment.

The funds in these accounts would not be counted as a resource and the interest and other earnings on the account would not be considered income in determining SSI eligibility.

Reason for change

The committee has found that large lump-sum payments have been subject to misuse. Requiring the establishment of special accounts is designed to increase the likelihood that benefits will be spent on the needs of the child.

Effective date

These provisions apply to benefit payments made after the date of enactment.

9. REDUCTION IN CASH BENEFITS PAYABLE TO INSTITUTIONALIZED INDIVIDUALS WHOSE MEDICAL COSTS ARE COVERED BY PRIVATE INSURANCE

Present law

Federal law stipulates that when individuals enter a hospital or other medical institution in which more than half of the bill is paid by the Medicaid program, their monthly SSI benefit standard is reduced to $30 per month. This personal needs allowance is intended to pay for small personal expenses, with the cost of maintenance and medical care provided by the Medicaid program.

Explanation of provision

Children in medical institutions whose medical costs are covered by private insurance would be treated the same as children whose bills are currently paid by Medicaid (that is, their monthly SSI cash benefit would be reduced to $30 per month).

Reason for change

This provision is intended to provide for equal treatment of children who are institutionalized, regardless of whether their stay is being paid for by Medicaid or by private insurance.

Effective date

The provision would apply to benefits for months beginning 90 or more days after the date of enactment, regardless of whether regulations have been issued.

10. REGULATIONS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The Commissioner of Social Security and the Secretary of HHS will prescribe necessary regulations within 3 months after enactment.

Reason for change

The provision would require prompt issuance of regulations and operating procedures.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

CHAPTER 3—ADDITIONAL ENFORCEMENT PROVISIONS

11. INSTALLMENT PAYMENT OF LARGE PAST-DUE SSI BENEFITS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

If an individual is eligible for past-due benefits (after any withholding for reimbursement to a State for interim assistance) in an amount which exceeds 12 times the maximum monthly benefit payable to an eligible individual (currently $470) or couple (currently $705) (plus any State supplementary payments), benefits will be paid in 3 installments made at 6-month intervals. The first and second installments may not exceed 12 times the maximum monthly benefit payable. Installment caps may be extended by certain debt (food, clothing, shelter, or medically necessary services, supplies, or equipment, or medicine) or the purchase of a home. Installment payments shall not apply to individuals whose medical impairment is expected to result in death in 12 months or for an individual who is ineligible and is likely to remain ineligible for the next 12 months.

Reason for change

The proposal would enhance individuals' ability to use retroactive benefits they receive in a more controlled and rational way, making it more likely that benefits will be used to address needs caused by the disability and less likely that funds will be quickly “spent down” in order to meet program income eligibility standards. By receiving retroactive payments in installments, each of which would be excluded from resources for 6 months, individuals would be able to arrange for purchases of items and services that they need over a longer term.

Effective date

This provision is effective for benefits payable after the third month following the date of enactment.

12. RECOVERY OF SSI OVERPAYMENTS FROM SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS

Present law

Generally, when an overpayment is made, recovery shall be made by adjusting future payments or by recovering the overpayment from the individual.

Explanation of provision

If the Commissioner is unable to recover the overpayment through future payment adjustments or direct recovery, the Commissioner may decrease any OASI or SSDI payment to the individual or their estate. As a result of this action, no individual may become eligible for SSI or eligible for increased SSI benefits.

Reason for change

The effectiveness of the recovery process is limited. Many SSI overpayments cannot be recovered through withholding from SSI benefits because the overpaid individual no longer receives SSI benefits. Nearly half of these individuals, however, continue to receive Social Security benefits from which the overpayment could be recovered. Individuals affected by this proposal would be protected by current Social Security law and policy, which provide for waiver of overpayments under certain circumstances and for a gradual repayment schedule that takes into account the individual’s financial situation.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

13. REGULATIONS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The Commissioner of Social Security and the Secretary of HHS will prescribe necessary regulations within 3 months after enactment.

Reason for change

This provision would require the prompt issuance of regulations and operating procedures.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

CHAPTER 4—STATE SUPPLEMENTATION PROGRAMS

14. REPEAL OF MAINTENANCE OF EFFORT REQUIREMENTS APPLICABLE TO OPTIONAL STATE PROGRAMS FOR SUPPLEMENTATION OF SSI

Present law

Since the beginning of the SSI program, States have had the option to supplement (with State funds) the Federal SSI payment. The purpose of section 1618 of the Social Security Act was to encourage States to pass along to SSI recipients the amount of any Federal SSI benefit increase. Under section 1618, a State that is found to be out of compliance with the “pass along/maintenance of effort provision” is subject to loss of its Medicaid reimbursements. Section 1618 allows States to comply with the “pass along/maintenance of effort” provision by either maintaining their State supplementary payment levels at or above March 1983, levels or by maintaining their supplementary payment spending so that total annual federal and State expenditures will be at least equal to what they were in the prior 12-month period, plus any federal cost-of-living increase, provided the State was in compliance for that period. In effect, section 1618 requires that once a State elects to provide supplementary payments, it must continue to do so.

Explanation of provision

This section repeals the maintenance of effort requirements in Section 1618 applicable to optional State programs for supplementation of SSI benefits, effective on the date of enactment.

Reason for change

This provision broadens States’ ability to manage their supplemental benefit programs which provide State-funded benefits to SSI recipients. It is the intent of the committee that the Federal Government should not have the power to deprive States of their right to manage a program that is optional under federal law.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

CHAPTER 5—STUDIES REGARDING SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME PROGRAM

15. Annual Report on the Supplemental Security Income ProgramPresent law

To date, the Department of Health and Human Services and now the Social Security Administration have collected, compiled, and published annual and monthly SSI data, but federal law does not require an annual report on the SSI program.

Explanation of provision

The Commissioner of Social Security must prepare and provide to the President and the Congress an annual report on the SSI program, which includes specified information and data. The report is due May 30 of each year.

Reason for change

The committee intends for Congress and the President to receive a comprehensive report each year to better promote effective oversight of the SSI program. Under current law, the drafting of such a focused, complete report is not required.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

16. STUDY OF DISABILITY DETERMINATION PROCESS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Within 90 days of enactment, the Commissioner must contract with the National Academy of Sciences or another independent entity to conduct a comprehensive study of the disability determination process for SSI and SSDI. The study must examine the validity, reliability and consistency with current scientific standards of the Listings of Impairments cited above. The study must also examine the appropriateness of the definitions of disability (and possible alternatives) used in connection with SSI and SSDI, and the operation of the disability determination process, including the appropriate method of performing comprehensive assessments of individuals under age 18 with physical or mental impairments. The Commissioner must issue interim and final reports of the findings and recommendations of the study within 18 months and 24 months, respectively, from the date of contract for the study.

Reason for change

Both the SSI and SSDI program have experienced tremendous growth, particularly over the last 5 years. The Listings, as defined in regulation, have served as the chosen method to determine disability, yet they have never been validated. This study will better enable Congress to assess current federal disability determination policy and make any legislative changes that may be necessary.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

17. STUDY BY GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

No later than January 1, 1999, the Comptroller General of the United States must study and report on the impact of the amendments and provisions made by this bill, and extra expenses incurred by families of children receiving benefits not covered by other federal, State, or local programs.

Reason for change

Many families of disabled children incur expenses beyond those experienced by families of children who are not disabled. However, the extra expenses related to a child's disability vary widely, depending on the nature and degree of disability and the availability of federal, State, and local health care and/or disability programs. Congress should investigate whether the unmet needs of families of disabled children could be better and more efficiently met through services, such as mental health treatment or the purchase of items of assistive technology, rather than through cash payments. In the 24 years since the SSI program was created, substantial new federal programs have been authorized to assist children with disabilities, including federal, State, and local funding of special education and the rapid expansion of Medicaid benefits. The impact of these programs on the cash needs of children with disabilities merits further investigation by Congress.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

CHAPTER 6—NATIONAL COMMISSION ON THE FUTURE OF DISABILITY

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This section establishes a new Commission on the future of disability.

The Commission must study all matters related to the nature, purpose and adequacy of all federal programs for the disabled (and especially SSI and SSDI), including: projected growth in the number of individuals with disabilities; possible performance standards for disability programs; the adequacy of federal rehabilitation research and training; and the adequacy of policy research available to the Federal Government and possible improvements. The Commission must submit to the President and the proper congressional committees recommendations and possible legislative proposals effecting needed program changes.

The Commission is to be composed of 15 members who are appointed by the President and congressional leadership and who serve for the life of the Commission. Members are to be chosen based on their education, training or experience, with consideration for representing the diversity of individuals with disabilities in the U.S. The Commission membership will also reflect the general interests of the business and taxpaying community.

The Commission will have a director, appointed by the Chair, and appropriate staff, resources, and facilities.

The Commission may conduct public hearings and obtain information from federal agencies necessary to perform its duties.

The Commission must issue an interim report to Congress and the President not later than 1 year prior to terminating. A final public report must be submitted prior to termination.

The Commission will terminate 2 years after first having met and named a chair and vice chair.

This section authorizes the appropriation of such funds as are necessary to carry out the purposes of the Commission.

Reason for change

The committee creates this Commission to examine growth in the SSI and SSDI programs and reported barriers to employment and independence created by these programs. The Commission is to make appropriate recommendations to the President and the Congress.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

SUBTITLE C—CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT

CHAPTER 1—ELIGIBILITY FOR SERVICES; DISTRIBUTION OF PAYMENTS

1. STATE OBLIGATION TO PROVIDE CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT SERVICES

Present law

States are required to establish paternity for children born out of wedlock if they are recipients of AFDC or Medicaid, and to obtain child and spousal support payments from noncustodial parents of children receiving AFDC, Medicaid benefits, or foster care maintenance payments. States must provide child support collection or paternity determination services to persons not otherwise eligible if the person applies for services. Federal law requires States to cooperate with other States in establishing paternity (if necessary), locating absent parents, collecting child support payments, and carrying out other child support enforcement functions. In cases in which a family ceases to receive AFDC, States are required to provide appropriate notice to the family and continue to provide child support enforcement services without requiring the family to apply for services or charging an application fee.

Explanation of provision

States must provide services, including paternity establishment and establishment, modification, or enforcement of support obligations, for children receiving benefits from the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families block grant (TANF), foster care maintenance payments, Medicaid, and any child of an individual who applies for services. States must enforce support obligations with respect to children in their caseload and the custodial parents of such children. States must also make child support enforcement services available to individuals not residing within the State on the same terms as to individuals residing within the State. States are not required to provide services to families if the State determines, taking into account the best interests of the child, that good cause and other exceptions exist. The provision also makes minor technical amendments to section 454 of the Social Security Act.

When a family ceases to receive benefits from the TANF block grant, States are required to provide appropriate notice to the family and continue to provide child support enforcement services without requiring the family to apply for services or charging an application fee.

Reason for change

The provision simply clarifies the current statute regarding which particular families must receive child support enforcement services from States. Given the Federal Government's investment of taxpayer dollars in the cash provided to families by the TANF block grant, the new Medicaid block grant established by this legislation, and foster care, the Congress has always required States to capture as much money as possible from parents to repay taxpayers for their investment. Indeed, perhaps the major reason Congress established the child support program in 1975 was to do everything possible to ensure that parents, especially parents who did not live with their children, repaid taxpayers for supporting these children. Thus, Congress requires States to try to obtain support from noncustodial parents whose children are receiving cash assistance under either the TANF or foster care programs or medical coverage under the Medicaid block grant. Further, because millions of families are at risk of needing public welfare unless noncustodial parents provide child support, and because additional millions of families are not receiving the financial support that is their legal right from noncustodial parents, States must provide child support services to nonwelfare families that request such services.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

2. DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD SUPPORT COLLECTIONS

Present law

Federal law requires that child support collections be distributed as follows: First, up to the first $50 in current support is paid to the AFDC family (a "disregard" that does not affect the family's AFDC benefit or eligibility status). Second, the Federal and State governments are reimbursed for the AFDC benefit paid to the family in that month. Third, if there is money left, the family receives it up to the amount of the current month's child support obligation. Fourth, if there is still money left, the State keeps it to reimburse itself for any arrearages owed to it under the AFDC assignment (with appropriate reimbursement of the Federal share of the collection to the Federal Government). If no arrearages are owed the State, the money is used to pay arrearages to the family; such monies are considered income under the AFDC program and would reduce the family's AFDC benefit.

To receive AFDC benefits, a custodial parent must assign to the State any right to collect child support payments. This assignment covers current support and any arrearages that accumulated before the family began receiving public assistance, and lasts as long as the family receives AFDC.

Some States are required to provide monthly supplemental payments to AFDC recipients who have less disposable income now than they would have had in July 1975 because child support is paid to the child support agency instead of directly to the family. States required to make these supplemental payments are often referred to as “fill-the-gap” States. These States pay less assistance than their full need standard, and allow recipients to use child support income to make up all or part of the difference between the payment made by the State and the State’s need standard. In addition, States with a need standard that is higher than its actual welfare payments are allowed to use child support to “fill the gap.”

Explanation of provision

Several changes in the distribution rules under current law are made by this section. The $50 passthrough to families on AFDC is ended. In addition, distribution law is changed so that, beginning October 1, 1997, collections on arrearages that accumulated during the period after the family leaves welfare are paid to the State if the money was collected through the tax intercept and to the family if collected by any other method. Distribution law is also changed so that beginning on October 1, 2000, arrearages that accumulated during the period before the family went on welfare are paid to the State if the money was collected through the tax intercept and to the family if collected by any other method. (Note: These new distribution rules require the assignment rules for pre-welfare arrearages to be changed so that families can be paid before States if the money was collected by a method other than the tax intercept; this change in assignment rules was made in Title I and will appear in Section 408(a)(3)(B) of the revised Social Security Act.)

By October 1, 1998, the Secretary must present a report to the Congress concerning whether post-assistance arrearages have helped mothers avoid welfare and about the effectiveness of the new distribution rules.

All assignments of support in effect when this proposal is enacted must remain in effect.

Several terms, including “assistance from the State,” “Federal share,” and “State share” are defined.

If States retain less money from collections than they retained in fiscal year 1995, States are allowed to retain the amount retained in fiscal year 1995.

If a State follows a “fill-the-gap” policy as outlined above, that State can continue to distribute funds to the family up to the amount needed to fill the gap. The provision also clarifies the relationship between gap payments and both the $50 passthrough and the State hold harmless provision.

Reason for change

The $50 passthrough of child support collections to families receiving public assistance poses a significant administrative expense for overburdened State child support agencies. In addition, providing additional funds to families while they remain on welfare provides incentive to stay on welfare. Thus, the committee proposal ends the $50 passthrough. However, to maintain the link between payments by nonresident parents and the support of their children, States are given the option of sending the entire child support payment, minus the Federal share, to the custodial parent and children. If States follow this option, the payments must count as income against welfare benefits.

The major intent of the changes contained in this section is to provide more money to families that leave welfare and thereby increase the odds that such families will be able to maintain their independence from public benefits. The key feature of this section of the proposal is the change in rules governing distribution of collections in the case of mothers who leave welfare. Under current law, collections above the amount of current child support are usually kept by the State and Federal Governments as repayment for tax dollars that were given to the custodial parent and children in the form of public aid. Under the new proposal, which would be phased in between the date of passage and 2000, arrearages obtained from noncustodial parents through any method other than the Federal tax intercept, are provided directly to the custodial parent and children until all the unpaid support that accumulated both before and after the family went on welfare is paid. Research shows that about 75 percent of the mothers who leave welfare come back on the rolls within 5 years. This feature of the proposal will provide a new source of income for mothers trying to work to support their children without relying on public aid. Similarly, the requirement that States continue providing these mothers with child support enforcement services is intended to maintain this new source of income and thereby increase the odds that mothers will be able to support their children without relying on welfare.

The committee proposal includes a rule requiring States to continue paying to the Federal Government a portion of child support collections for parents receiving benefits from the Temporary Family Assistance program. Under current law, States are directly reimbursed by the Federal Government for a portion of their payments to families under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. But the Federal funding provided to States under the new block grant format requires a change in the method of sharing child support collections. The requirement that States provide the Federal Government with the percentage of collections that equals the Medicaid matching rate is intended simply to create a mechanism to ensure that both the Federal and State governments continue receiving roughly the same share of collections they receive under current law.

Effective date

October 1, 1996, or earlier at State option.

3. PRIVACY SAFEGUARDS

Present law

Federal law limits the use or disclosure of information concerning recipients of Child Support Enforcement Services to purposes connected with administering specified Federal welfare programs.

Explanation of provision

States must implement safeguards against unauthorized use or disclosure of information related to proceedings or actions to establish paternity or to establish or enforce child support. These safeguards must include prohibitions on release of information where there is a protective order or where the State has reason to believe a party is at risk of physical or emotional harm from the other party. This provision is effective October 1, 1997.

Reason for change

The committee proposal contains numerous safeguards on privacy, several of which will be described below. Much of the information discovered in court proceedings and contained in child support records is confidential. States must therefore have laws and administrative procedures that protect this information from public disclosure.

States must take every precaution to ensure against mistaken identification of nonresident parents, and to ensure that erroneous information is corrected in cases where mistakes in identify have occurred.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

4. RIGHT TO NOTIFICATION OF HEARING

Present law

Most States have procedural due process requirements with respect to wage withholding. Federal law requires States to carry out withholding in full compliance with all procedural due process requirements of the State.

Explanation of provision

Parties to child support cases under Title IV-D must receive notice of proceedings in which child support might be established or modified and must receive a copy of orders establishing or modifying child support (or a notice that modification was denied) within 14 days of issuance.

Reason for change

The basic purpose of Federal due process requirements is to ensure that no citizen has her rights infringed by government action without the right to present evidence and arguments to defend against such infringement. The purpose of child support judicial and administrative hearings is to establish paternity, to establish child support obligations, or to set or adjust the amount of a child support obligation. All of these government actions substantially effect the interests of both custodial and noncustodial parents. This provision requires States to inform all parties about these hearings. Further, all parties, even those who do not appear at the hearing, must be informed of the results of the proceedings.

Effective date

October 1, 1997.

CHAPTER 2—LOCATE AND CASE TRACKING

5. STATE CASE REGISTRY

Present law

Federal law requires that wage withholding be administered by a public agency capable of documenting payments of support and tracking and monitoring such payments.

Federal law requires that child support orders be reviewed and adjusted, as appropriate, at least once every 3 years.

Explanation of provision

States must establish an automated State Case Registry that contains a record on each case in which services are being provided by the State agency, as well as each support order established or modified in the State on or after October 1, 1998.

The Registry may be established by linking local case registries of support orders through an automated information network.

The registry record will contain data elements on both parents, such as names, Social Security numbers and other uniform identification numbers, dates of birth, case identification numbers, and any other data the Secretary may require.

Each case record will contain the amount of support owed under the order and other amounts due or overdue (including interest or late payment penalties and fees), any amounts that have been collected and distributed, the birth date of any child for whom the order requires the provision of support, and the amount of any lien imposed by the State.

The State agency operating the registry will promptly establish, maintain, update and regularly monitor case records in the registry with respect to which services are being provided under the State plan. Establishing and updating support orders will be based on administrative actions and administrative and judicial proceedings and orders relating to paternity and support, as well as on information obtained from comparisons with Federal, State, and local sources of information, information on support collections and distributions, and any other relevant information.

The State automated system will be used to extract data for purposes of sharing and matching with Federal and State data bases and locator services, including the Federal Case Registry of Child Support Orders, the Federal Parent Locator Service, and Temporary Assistance for Needy Families and Medicaid agencies, as well as for conducting intrastate and interstate information comparisons.

Reason for change

The State Case Registry and the State Disbursement Unit (see below) are essential components of the expanded and automated child support enforcement system envisioned by the committee proposal. Given the importance of mass processing of records and information received from many sources, the details on data processing outlined in this section of the proposal are essential to the overall functioning of the new system. A major theme of the committee proposal is automation and mass processing of records. The committee view is that as long as the child support enforcement program functions on a case-by-case basis, the program will continue to be inefficient and ineffective. Thus, in this and other sections of the proposal, States are required to establish and maintain, with appropriate Federal matching payments, information networks that will increase the efficacy and efficiency of the child support system.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

6. COLLECTION AND DISBURSEMENT OF SUPPORT PAYMENTS

Present law

No provision, but States may provide that, at the request of either parent, child support payments be made through the child support enforcement agency or the agency that administers the State's income withholding system regardless of whether there is an arrearage. States must charge the parent who requests child support services a fee equal to the cost incurred by the State for these services, up to a maximum of $25 per year.

Explanation of provision

By October 1, 1998, State child support agencies are required to operate a centralized, automated unit for collection and disbursement of payments on child support orders enforced by the child support agency and payments on orders issued after December 31, 1993 which are not enforced by the State agency but for which wages are subject to withholding. The specifics of how States will establish and operate their State Disbursement Unit must be outlined in the State plan.

The State Disbursement Unit must be operated directly by the State agency, by two or more State agencies under a regional cooperative agreement, or by a contractor responsible directly to the State agency. The State Disbursement Unit may be established by linking local disbursement units through an automated information network if the Secretary agrees that the system will not cost more, take more time to establish, nor take more time to operate than a single State system. All States, including those that operate a linked system, must give employers one and only one location for submitting withheld income.

The Disbursement Unit must be used to collect and disburse support payments, to generate orders and notices of withholding to employers, to keep an accurate identification of payments, to promptly distribute money to custodial parents or other States, and to furnish parents with a record of the current status of support payments. The Unit shall use automated procedures, electronic processes, and computer-driven technology to the maximum extent feasible, efficient, and economical.

The Disbursement Unit must distribute all amounts payable within 2 business days after receiving money and identifying information from the employer or other source of periodic income, if sufficient information identifying the payee is provided. The Unit may retain arrearages in the case of appeals until they are resolved.

States must use their automated system to facilitate collection and disbursement including at least:

- (1) transmission of orders and notices to employers within 2 days after receipt of the withholding notice;
- (2) monitoring to identify missed payments of support; and
- (3) automatic use of enforcement procedures when payments are missed.

It is the sense of Congress that in establishing a centralized unit for the collection of support payments, a State should choose the method of compliance which best meets the needs of parents, employers, and children.

This section of the proposal will go into effect on October 1, 1998. States that process child support payments through local courts can continue court payments until September 30, 1999.

Reason for change

The State Disbursement Unit is an essential component, along with the Registry of Support Orders and the Directory of New Hires (see below), that form the core of the reformed child support system. The Disbursement Unit will enable States to locate parents who owe support, issue withholding orders soon after the obligor is hired, process the payment and keep records at a central location, and then distribute the support payments in a timely manner.

The committee provision requires only that cases being handled by the State agency be processed through the State Disbursement Unit. Here as elsewhere, the committee intends to interfere with private, nonsubsidized child support arrangements only when the obligated parent fails to pay support promptly.

Effective date

October 1, 1998.

7. STATE DIRECTORY OF NEW HIRES

Present law

In general, no provision. Section 1128 of the Social Security Act is an antifraud provision which excludes individuals and entities that have committed fraud from participation in Medicare and State health care programs. Section 1128A pertains to civil monetary penalties and describes the appropriate procedures and proceedings for such penalties.

Explanation of provision

State plans must include the provision that by October 1, 1997 States will operate a Directory of New Hires.

Establishment. States are required to establish a State Directory of New Hires to which employers and labor organizations in the State must furnish a report for each newly hired employee, unless reporting could endanger the safety of the employee or compromise an ongoing investigation or intelligence mission as determined by the head of an agency. States that already have new hire reporting laws may continue to follow the provisions of their own law until October 1, 1998, at which time States must conform to Federal law.

Employer Information. Employers must furnish to the State Directory of New Hires the name, address, and Social Security number of every new employee and the name, address, and identification number of the employer. Multistate employers that report electronically or magnetically may report to the single State they designate; such employers must notify the Secretary of the name of the designated State. Agencies of the U.S. Government must report directly to the National Directory of New Hires (see below).

Timing of Report. Employers must report new hire information within 20 days of the date of hire. Employers that report new hires electronically or by magnetic tape must file twice per month; reports must be separated by not less than 12 days and not more than 16 days.

Reporting Format and Method. The report required in this section will be made on a W-4 form or the equivalent, and can be transmitted magnetically, electronically, or by first class mail. The decision of which reporting method to use is up to employers.

Civil Money Penalties on Noncomplying Employers. States have the option of setting a civil money penalty which shall be not less than $25 or $500 if, under State law, the failure is the result of a conspiracy between the employer and employee.

Entry of Employer Information. New hire information must be entered in the State data base within 5 business days of receipt from employer.

Information Comparisons. By May 1, 1998, each State Directory of New Hires must conduct automated matches of the Social Security numbers of reported employees against the Social Security numbers of records in the State Case Registry being enforced by the State agency and report the name, address, Social Security number, and the employer name, address, and identification number on matches to the State child support agency.

Transmission of Information. Within 2 business days of the entry of data in the registry, the State must transmit a withholding order directing the employer to withhold wages in accord with the child support order. Within 3 days, the State Directory of New Hires must furnish employee information to the National Directory of New Hires for matching with the records of other State case registries. The State Directory of New Hires must also report quarterly to the National Directory of New Hires information on wages and unemployment compensation taken from the quarterly report to the Secretary of Labor now required by Title III of the Social Security Act.

Other Uses of New Hire Information. The State child support agency must use the new hire information to locate individuals for purposes of establishing paternity as well as establishing, modifying, and enforcing child support obligations. New hire information must also be disclosed to the State agency administering the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, Medicaid, Unemployment Compensation, Food Stamp, SSI, and territorial cash assistance programs for income eligibility verification, and to State agencies administering unemployment and workers' compensation programs to assist determinations of the allowability of claims. State and local government agencies must participate in quarterly wage reporting to the State employment security agency unless the agency performs intelligence or counterintelligence functions and it is determined that wage reporting could endanger the safety of the employee or compromise an ongoing investigation or intelligence mission.

Disclosure to Certain Agents. States using private contractors are allowed to share information obtained from the Directory of New Hires with private entities working under contract with the State agency. Private contractors must comply with privacy safeguards.

Reason for change

The State Case Registry, the State Disbursement Unit, and the State Directory of New Hires comprise the guts of the new child support system envisioned by the committee proposal. Although New Hire reporting imposes a slight burden on employers, the committee has attempted to minimize this burden by enabling employers to submit a form (the W-4 form) they must already complete and by allowing them to submit the form at the time of their regular payroll cycle. In addition, the committee proposal contains a much smaller fine on employers that fail to report new hire information than the fine imposed by previous bills that have been introduced in Congress. Given the importance of quick reporting of employment and the equally quick issuance of the child support withholding order for the collection of child support payments, the committee felt it was necessary to impose this small additional burden on employers.

The formation of the National Directory of New Hires will extend the benefits of rapid new hire reporting and wage withholding to interstate cases. The committee has received extensive information through letters and testimony that the current system of pursuing child support across State lines is far too sluggish to be effective. Here and elsewhere in the proposal, the committee takes strong and innovative action to repair a system that is universally regarded as broken. Data from the Federal Office of Child Support Enforcement show that whereas about 30 percent of child support cases are interstate cases, only 10 percent of collections are from interstate cases. Once the State and National Directories of New Hires are established, the Nation will, for the first time, have a rapid response and automated mechanism in place to locate and withhold wages legally obligated for child support payments.

The committee proposal also includes requirements to share income information across programs within the State and with several national agencies in order to reduce fraud in these benefit programs including Temporary Family Assistance, Unemployment Compensation, Supplemental Security Income, and the Earned Income Credit. The Committee on Ways and Means has received extensive information on fraud in the Earned Income Credit; this new source of information on employees may help reduce such fraud.

Effective date

October 1, 1996, except where otherwise noted.

8. AMENDMENTS CONCERNING INCOME WITHHOLDING

Present law

Since November 1, 1990, all new or modified child support orders that were being enforced by the State's child support enforcement agency have been subject to immediate income withholding. If the noncustodial parent's wages are not subject to income withholding (pursuant to the November 1, 1990 provision), such parent's wages would become subject to withholding on the date when support payments are 30 days past due. Since January 1, 1994, the law has required States to use immediate income withholding for nearly all new or modified support orders, regardless of whether a parent has applied for child support enforcement services. There are two circumstances in which income withholding does not apply: (1) one of the parents argues, and the court or administrative agency agrees, that there is good cause not to do so, or (2) a written agreement is reached between both parents which provides for an alternative arrangement. States must implement procedures under which income withholding for child support can occur without the need for any amendment to the support order or for any further action by the court or administrative entity that issued the order. States are also required to implement income withholding in full compliance with all procedural due process requirements of the State, and States must send advance notice to each nonresident parent to whom income withholding applies (with an exception for some States that had income withholding before enactment of this provision that met State due process requirements). States must extend their income withholding systems to include out-of-State support orders.

Explanation of provision

States must have laws providing that all child support orders issued or modified before October 1, 1996, which are not otherwise subject to income withholding, will become subject to income withholding immediately if arrearages occur, without the need for judicial or administrative hearing. State law must also allow the child support agency to execute a withholding order through electronic means and without advance notice to the obligor. Employers must remit to the State Disbursement Unit, in a format prescribed by the Secretary, income withheld within 5 working days after the date such amount would have been paid to the employee. Employers cannot take disciplinary action against employees subject to wage withholding. All child support orders subject to income withholding, including those which are not part of the State IV-D program, must be processed through the State Disbursement Unit. In addition, States must notify noncustodial parents that income withholding has commenced and inform them of procedures for contesting income withholding. Employers must follow the withholding terms and conditions stated in the order; if the terms and conditions are not specified employers should follow those of the State in which the obligor lives. The section includes a definition of income to be used in interstate withholding and several conforming amendments to section 466 of the Social Security Act.

Reason for change

Under present law, most support orders are automatically subject to income withholding. This provision ensures that every child support order, regardless of when it was issued or modified, would be subject to withholding if arrearages occur. This provision is based on the assumption that a key component of successful child support collection is immediate response when obligors begin to miss payments. At the same time, however, the committee proposal continues to provide an exception for a parent who can convince the court that payments will be forthcoming without State involvement and parents who reach cooperative agreement on child support and maintain good payment records. The Federal-State child support program intervenes when private arrangements fail.

The provision also addresses a serious problem of current interstate law. The Committee on Ways and Means has received abundant information that interstate enforcement is a problem because, among other reasons, employers have difficulty knowing how to respond to orders received from another State. Responding to this problem, the committee provision establishes a definition of income so employers will know exactly which payments are subject to income withholding and allows employers to follow the laws of their own State if an order received from another State is unclear on its face.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

9. LOCATOR INFORMATION FROM INTERSTATE NETWORKS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

All State and the Federal Child Support Enforcement agencies must have access to the motor vehicle and law enforcement locator systems of all States.

Reason for change

Child support enforcement programs are dependent on current information on the Social Security number and address of parents who owe or could owe child support. Most adults have drivers' licenses and many, especially those who owe past-due child support, have had involvement with law enforcement. Thus, the committee proposal requires States to make both sources of child support information available to the child support agencies of all States and the Federal Government.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

10. EXPANSION OF THE FEDERAL PARENT LOCATOR SERVICE

Present law

The law requires that the Federal Parent Locator Service (FPLS) be used to obtain and transmit information about the location of any absent parent when that information is to be used for the purpose of enforcing child support. Federal law also requires departments or agencies of the United States to be reimbursed for costs incurred in providing requested information to the FPLS.

Information Comparisons and Other Disclosures. Upon request, the Secretary must provide to an “authorized person” (i.e., an employee or attorney of a child support agency, a court with jurisdiction over the parties involved, the custodial parent, the legal guardian, or the child’s attorney) the most recent address and place of employment of any nonresident parent if the information is contained in the records of the Department of Health and Human Services or can be obtained from any other department or agency of the United States or of any State. The FPLS also can be used in connection with the enforcement or determination of child custody, visitation, and parental kidnapping. Federal law requires the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health and Human Services to enter into an agreement to give the FPLS prompt access to wage and unemployment compensation claims information useful in locating a noncustodial parent or his employer.

Fees. “Authorized persons” who request information from FPLS must be charged a fee.

Restriction on Disclosure and Use. Federal law stipulates that no information shall be disclosed if the disclosure would contravene the national policy or security interests of the United States or the confidentiality of Census data.

Quarterly Wage Reporting. The Secretary of Labor must provide prompt access by the Secretary of HHS to wage and unemployment compensation claims information and data maintained by the Labor Department or State employment security agencies.

Explanation of provision

The purposes of the Federal Parent Locator Service are expanded. For the purposes of establishing parentage, establishing support orders or modifying them, or enforcing support orders, the Federal Parent Locator Service will provide information to locate individuals who owe child support or against whom an obligation is sought or to whom such an obligation is owed. Information in the FPLS includes Social Security number, address, name and address of employer, wages and employee benefits (including information about health care coverage), and information about assets and debts. The provision also clarifies the statute so that parents with orders providing child custody or visitation rights are given access to information from the FPLS unless the State has notified the Secretary that there is reasonable evidence of domestic violence or child abuse or that the information could be harmful to the custodial parent or child.

The Secretary is authorized to set reasonable rates for reimbursing Federal and State agencies for the costs of providing information to the FPLS and to set reimbursement rates that State and Federal agencies that use information from the FPLS must pay to the Secretary.

Federal Case Registry of Child Support Orders. Establishes within the FPLS an automated registry known as the Federal Case Registry of Child Support Orders. The Federal Case Registry contains abstracts of child support orders and other information specified by the Secretary (such as names, Social Security numbers or other uniform identification numbers, and State case identification numbers) to identify individuals who owe or are owed support, or for or against whom support is sought to be established, and the State which has the case. States must begin reporting this information in accord with regulations issued by the Secretary by October 1, 1998.

National Directory of New Hires. This provision establishes within the FPLS a National Directory of New Hires containing information supplied by State Directories of New Hires. When fully implemented, the Federal Directory of New Hires will contain identifying information on virtually every person who is hired in the United States. In addition, the FPLS will contain quarterly data supplied by the State Directory of New Hires on wages and Unemployment Compensation paid. The Secretary of the Treasury must have access to information in the Federal Directory of New Hires for the purpose of administering section 32 of the Internal Revenue Code and the Earned Income Credit. The information for the National Directory of New Hires must be entered within 2 days of receipt, and requires the Secretary to maintain within the National Directory of New Hires a list of multistate employers that choose to send their report to one State and the name of the State so elected.

Information Comparisons and Other Disclosures. The Secretary must verify the accuracy of the name, Social Security number, birth date, and employer identification number of individuals in the Federal Parent Locator Service with the Social Security Administration. The Secretary is required to match data in the National Directory of New Hires against the child support order abstracts in the Federal Case Registry at least every 2 working days and to report information obtained from matches to the State child support agency responsible for the case within 2 days. The information is to be used for purposes of locating individuals to establish paternity, and to establish, modify, or enforce child support orders. The Secretary may also compare information across all components of the FPLS to the extent and with the frequency that the Secretary determines will be effective. The Secretary will share information from the FPLS with several potential users including State agencies administering the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families program, the Commissioner of Social Security (to determine the accuracy of Social Security and Supplemental Security Income), and researchers under some circumstances.

Fees. The Secretary must reimburse the Commissioner of Social Security for costs incurred in performing verification of Social Security information and States for submitting information on New Hires. States or Federal agencies that use information from FPLS must pay fees established by the Secretary.

Restriction on Disclosure and Use. Information from the FPLS cannot be used for purposes other than those provided in this section, subject to section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code (confidentiality and disclosure of returns and return information).

Information Integrity and Security. The Secretary must establish and use safeguards to ensure the accuracy and completeness of information from the FPLS and restrict access to confidential information in the FPLS to authorized persons and purposes.

Federal Government Reporting. Each department of the U.S. must submit the name, Social Security number, and wages paid the employee on a quarterly basis to the FPLS. Quarterly wage reporting must not be filed for a Federal or State employee performing intelligence or counter-intelligence functions if it is determined that filing such a report could endanger the employee or compromise an ongoing investigation.

Conforming Amendments. This section makes several conforming amendments to titles III and IV of the Social Security Act, to the Federal Unemployment Tax Act, and to the Internal Revenue Code. Among the more important are that: State employment security agencies are required to report quarterly wage information to the Secretary of HHS or suffer financial penalties and that private agencies working under contract to State child support agencies can have access to certain specified information from IRS records under some circumstances.

Requirement for Cooperation. The Secretaries of HHS and Labor must work together to develop cost-effective and efficient methods of accessing information in the various directories required by this title; they must also consider the need to ensure the proper and authorized use of wage record information.

Reason for change

Since the Commission on Interstate Child Support Enforcement published its report nearly 3 years ago, a national directory of information on child support cases and on new hires has been widely viewed as one of the keys to child support reform. The committee proposal contains both of these mechanisms as well as a directory of every child support order in the Nation. With this new information, the FPLS will become the hub of information in a vitalized system for improving interstate child support enforcement. Given that interstate cases constitute about 30 percent of the child support caseload but only about 10 percent of collections, the expanded FPLS should greatly improve child support collections. Moreover, better child support collections will enable more mothers to leave and remain off the welfare rolls, thereby fulfilling the most important goal of the committee proposal. Information from the FPLS, especially that on wages and income, may also prove quite useful in reducing fraud in several large and rapidly growing programs under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

11. COLLECTION AND USE OF SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBERS FOR USE IN CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT*Present law*

Federal law requires that in the administration of any law involving the issuance of a birth certificate, States must require each parent to furnish their Social Security number for the birth records. The State is required to make such numbers available to child support agencies in accordance with Federal or State law. States may not place Social Security numbers directly on birth certificates.

Explanation of provision

States must have procedures for recording the Social Security numbers of applicants on the application for professional licenses, commercial driver's licenses, occupational licenses, or marriage licenses. States must also record Social Security numbers in the records of divorce decrees, child support orders, and paternity determination or acknowledgment orders. Individuals who die will have their Social Security number placed in the records relating to the death and recorded on the death certificate. There are several conforming amendments to title II of the Social Security Act.

Reason for change

The Social Security number is the key piece of information around which the child support information system is constructed. Not only are new hire and support order matches at the State and Federal level based on Social Security numbers, but so too are most data searches aimed at locating nonpaying parents. Thus, giving child support offices access to new sources for obtaining Social Security numbers is important to successful functioning of several other components of the committee proposal. To promote privacy in keeping Social Security numbers confidential, the provision does not require States to place the numbers directly on the face of the licenses, decrees, or orders. Rather, the number must simply be kept in applications and records that, in most cases, are stored in computer files.

In requiring use of Social Security numbers, the committee does not intend to alter current law concerning confidentiality of records containing such numbers. Present law provides that Social Security numbers can be used in nonconfidential, public records if those records were nonconfidential and public under State law prior to October 1, 1990.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

CHAPTER 3—STREAMLINING AND UNIFORMITY OF PROCEDURES

12. ADOPTION OF UNIFORM STATE LAWS

Present law

States have several options available for pursuing interstate child support cases including direct income withholding, interstate income withholding, and long-arm statutes which require the use of the court system in the State of the custodial parent. In addition, States use the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA) and the Revised Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (RURESA) to conduct interstate cases. Federal law imposes a Federal criminal penalty for the willful failure to pay past-due child support to a child who resides in a State other than the State of the obligor. In 1992, the National Conference of Commissioners on State Uniform Laws approved a new model State law for handling interstate child support cases. The new Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA) is designed to deal with desertion and nonsupport by instituting uniform laws in all 50 States that limit control of a child support case to a single State. This approach ensures that only one child support order from one court or child support agency will be in effect at any given time. It also helps to eliminate jurisdictional disputes between States that are impediments to locating parents and enforcing child support orders across State lines. As of February 1996, 26 States and the District of Columbia had enacted UIFSA.

Explanation of provision

By January 1, 1998, all States must have enacted the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA) and any amendments officially adopted by the National Conference of Commissioners of Uniform State Laws before January 1, 1998, and have the procedures required for its implementation in effect. States are allowed flexibility in deciding which specific interstate cases are pursued by using UIFSA and which cases are pursued using other methods of interstate enforcement. States must provide that an employer that receives an income withholding order follow the procedural rules that apply to the order under the laws of the State in which the noncustodial parent works.

Reason for change

Mandatory passage and use of UIFSA is a cornerstone of a major purpose of the committee proposal—improved child support enforcement in interstate cases. Without uniform laws and procedures governing child support, the success of interstate cases will continue to be severely constrained. Virtually every witness that testified on interstate enforcement before the committee recommended that UIFSA be made mandatory.

Effective date

October 1, 1996, except where otherwise noted.

13. IMPROVEMENTS TO FULL FAITH AND CREDIT FOR CHILD SUPPORT ORDERS

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law

Federal law requires States to treat past-due support obligations as final judgments that are entitled to full faith and credit in every State. This means that a person who has a support order in one State does not have to obtain a second order in another State to obtain support due should the debtor parent move from the issuing court's jurisdiction. P.L. 103-383 restricts a State court's ability to modify a support order issued by another State unless the child and the custodial parent have moved to the State where the modification is sought or have agreed to the modification.

Explanation of provision

The provision clarifies the definition of a child's home State, makes several revisions to ensure that full faith and credit laws can be applied consistently with UIFSA, and clarifies the rules regarding which child support orders States must honor when there is more than one order.

14. ADMINISTRATIVE ENFORCEMENT IN INTERSTATE CASES

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

States are required to have laws that permit them to send orders to and receive orders from other States. The transmission of the order itself serves as certification to the responding State of the arrears amount and of the fact that the initiating State met all procedural due process requirements. In addition, each responding State must, without requiring the case to be transferred to their State, match the case against its data bases, take appropriate action if a match occurs, and send the collections, if any, to the initiating State. States must keep records of the number of requests they receive, the number of cases that result in a collection, and the amount collected. States must respond to interstate requests within 5 days.

Reason for change

This provision is simply an additional measure to pursue the goal of improved interstate collection. Strengthening the laws on nonjudicial enforcement across State lines will greatly improve the speed and reduce the expense of enforcing orders in interstate cases. If States do a good job of enacting and then implementing the routine administrative procedures required by the committee proposal, interstate child support collections will improve.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

15. USE OF FORMS IN INTERSTATE ENFORCEMENT

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary of HHS, in consultation with State child support directors and not later than October 1, 1996, must issue forms that States must use for income withholding, for imposing liens, and for issuing administrative subpoenas in interstate cases. States must be using the forms by March 1, 1997.

Reason for change

One reason interstate cases are difficult to work is that States use different legal forms for the same transactions. This provision will ensure that all States are using identical forms for income withholding, lien imposition, and administrative subpoenas, thereby reducing confusion and promoting rapid execution of legal procedures.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

16. STATE LAWS PROVIDING EXPEDITED PROCEDURES

Present law

States must have procedures under which expedited processes are in effect under the State judicial system or under State administrative processes for obtaining and enforcing support orders and for establishing paternity.

Federal regulations provide a number of safeguards in expedited cases, such as requiring that the due process rights of the parties involved be protected.

The Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) of 1974 supersedes any and all State laws. Under ERISA a noncustodial parent's pension benefits can only be garnished or withheld if the custodial parent has a qualified domestic relations order. Similarly, a pension plan administrator is obligated to adhere to medical support requirements only if the custodial parent has a qualified medical child support order.

Explanation of provision

States must adopt a series of procedures to expedite both the establishment of paternity and the establishment, enforcement, and modification of support. These procedures must give the State agency the authority to take the following actions, subject to due process safeguards, without the necessity of obtaining an order from any other judicial or administrative tribunal:

- (1) ordering genetic testing in appropriate cases;
- (2) issuing subpoenas to obtain information necessary to establish, modify or enforce an order, with appropriate sanctions for failure to respond to the subpoena;
- (3) requiring all entities in the State (including for-profit, nonprofit, and governmental employers) to provide information on employment, compensation and benefits of any employee or contractor in response to a request from the State IV-D agency or the IV-D agency of any other State, and to sanction failure to respond to such request;
- (4) obtaining access to a variety of public and private records including: vital statistics, State and local tax records, real and personal property, occupational and professional licenses and records concerning ownership and control of corporations, partnerships and other business entities, employment security records, public assistance records, motor vehicle records, corrections records, and, subject to the nonliability of these private entities and the issuance of an administrative subpoena, information in the customer records of public utilities and cable TV companies, and records of financial institutions;

(5) directing the obligor or other payor to change the payee to the appropriate government entity in cases in which support is subject to an assignment or to a requirement to pay through the State Disbursement Unit;

(6) ordering income withholding in certain IV-D cases;

(7) securing assets to satisfy arrearages: by intercepting or seizing periodic or lump sum payments from States or local agencies including unemployment compensation, workers' compensation, judgments, settlements, lottery winnings, assets held by financial institutions, and public and private retirement funds; by attaching and seizing assets held in financial institutions; by attaching public and private retirement funds; and by imposing liens to force the sale of property; and

(8) increasing automatically the monthly support due to include amounts to offset arrears.

Expedited procedures must include the following rules and authority applicable with respect to proceedings to establish paternity or to establish, modify, or enforce support orders:

(1) Locator Information and Notice. Parties in paternity and child support actions must file and update information about identity, address, and employer with the tribunal and with the State Case Registry upon entry of the order. The tribunal can deem due process requirements for notice and service of process to be met in any subsequent action upon delivery of written notice to the most recent residential or employer address filed with the tribunal.

(2) Statewide Jurisdiction. The child support agency and any administrative or judicial tribunal have the authority to hear child support and paternity cases, to exert Statewide jurisdiction over the parties, and to grant orders that have Statewide effect; cases can also be transferred between local jurisdictions without additional filing or service of process.

Except to the extent that the provisions related to expedited procedures are consistent with requirements of the ERISA qualified domestic relations orders and the qualified medical child support orders, the expedited procedures do not alter, amend, modify, invalidate, impair or supersede ERISA requirements.

The automated systems being developed by States are to be used, to the maximum extent possible, to implement expedited procedures.

Reason for change

Cumbersome court procedures have been a major impediment to the efficient operation of child support systems. Along with automation, expanded sources of information, and the State and national registries and directories, providing child support officials with the authority to bypass court procedures in some cases is a central feature of the committee proposal. If child support agencies can order genetic testing, enter default orders, issue subpoenas for information needed to establish or modify orders, obtain access to financial information, issue income withholding notices, secure assets, and increase monthly payments to secure overdue child support, their ability to quickly and efficiently obtain support payments will be greatly improved.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

CHAPTER 4—PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT

17. STATE LAWS CONCERNING PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT

Present law

Establishment Process Available from Birth Until Age 18. Federal law requires States to have laws that permit the establishment of paternity until the child reaches age 18. As of August 16, 1984, these procedures would apply to a child for whom paternity has not been established or for whom a paternity action was brought but dismissed because of statute of limitations of less than 18 years was then in effect in the State.

Procedures Concerning Genetic Testing. Federal law requires States to implement laws under which the child and all other parties must undergo genetic testing upon the request of a party in contested cases.

Voluntary Paternity Acknowledgement. Federal law requires States to implement procedures for a simple civil process for voluntary paternity acknowledgment, including hospital-based programs.

Status of Signed Paternity Acknowledgement. Federal law requires States to implement procedures under which the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity creates a rebuttable presumption, or at State option, a conclusive presumption of paternity.

Bar on Acknowledgement Ratification Proceedings. Federal law requires States to implement procedures under which voluntary acknowledgment is admissible as evidence of paternity and the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity must be recognized as a basis for seeking a support order without requiring any further proceedings to establish paternity.

Admissibility of Genetic Testing Results. Federal law requires States to implement procedures which provide that any objection to genetic testing results must be made in writing within a specified number of days before any hearing at which such results may be introduced into evidence. If no objection is made, the test results must be admissible as evidence of paternity without the need for foundation testimony or other proof of authenticity or accuracy.

Presumption of Paternity in Certain Cases. Federal law requires States to implement procedures which create a rebuttable or, at State option, conclusive presumption of paternity based on genetic testing results indicating a threshold probability that the alleged father is the father of the child.

Default Orders. Federal law requires States to implement procedures that require a default order to be entered in a paternity case upon a showing of service of process on the defendant and any additional showing required by State law.

Explanation of provision

Establishment Process Available from Birth Until Age 18. States are required to have laws that permit paternity establishment until at least age 18 (or a higher limit at State option) even in cases that were previously dismissed because a statute of limitations of less than 18 years was then in effect.

Procedures Concerning Genetic Testing. The child and all other parties, unless good cause provisions are met, must undergo genetic testing upon the request of a party if the request is supported by a sworn statement establishing a reasonable possibility of parentage or nonparentage. When the tests are ordered by the State agency, States must pay the costs, subject to recoupment at State option from the father if paternity is established. Upon the request and advance payment by the contestant, States must seek additional testing if the original test result is contested.

Voluntary Paternity Acknowledgement. (1) Simple Civil Process. States must have procedures that create a simple civil process for voluntary acknowledging paternity under which benefits, rights, and responsibilities of acknowledgement are explained to unwed parents before the acknowledgement is signed.

(2) Hospital Program. States must have procedures, including good cause exemptions established by the State, that establish a paternity acknowledgement program through hospitals.

(3) Paternity Services. States must have procedures that require the agency responsible for maintaining birth records to offer voluntary paternity establishment services. The Secretary must issue regulations governing voluntary paternity establishment services, including regulations on State agencies that may offer voluntary paternity acknowledgement services and the conditions such agencies must meet.

(4) Affidavit. States must develop their own voluntary acknowledgement form but the form must contain all the basic elements of a form developed by the Secretary. States must give full faith and credit to the forms of other States.

Status of Signed Paternity Acknowledgement. (1) Inclusion in Birth Records. States must include the name of the father in the record of births to unmarried parents only if the father and mother have signed a voluntary acknowledgement of paternity or a court or administrative agency has issued an adjudication of paternity.

(2) Legal Finding. States must have procedures under which a signed acknowledgement of paternity is considered a legal finding of paternity unless rescinded within 60 days or the date of a judicial or administrative proceeding to establish a support order.

(3) Contest. States must have procedures under which a paternity acknowledgment can be challenged in court only on the basis of fraud, duress, or material mistake of fact, with the burden of proof on the challenger.

Bar on Acknowledgement Ratification Proceedings. No judicial or administrative proceedings are required or permitted to ratify a paternity acknowledgement which is not challenged by the parents.

Admissibility of Genetic Testing Results. States must have procedures for admitting into evidence accredited genetic tests, unless any objection is made in writing within a specified number of days, and if no objection is made, clarifying that test results are admissible without the need for foundation or other testimony.

Presumption of Paternity in Certain Cases. States must have laws that create a rebuttable or, at State option, conclusive presumption of paternity when results from genetic testing indicate a threshold probability that the alleged father is the father of the child.

Default Orders. A default order must be entered in a paternity case upon a showing of service of process on the defendant and any additional showing required by the State law.

No Right to Jury Trial. State laws must state that parties in a contested paternity action are not entitled to a jury trial.

In addition to all the above provisions that strengthen similar provisions of current law, the committee report contains a number of new provisions that have no direct parallel in current law. These include:

Temporary Support Based on Probable Paternity. Upon motion of a party, State law must require issuance of a temporary support order pending an administrative or judicial determination of parentage if paternity is indicated by genetic testing or other clear and convincing evidence.

Proof of Certain Support and Paternity Establishment Costs. Bills for pregnancy, childbirth, and genetic testing must be admissible in judicial proceedings without foundation testimony and must constitute prima facie evidence of the cost incurred for such services.

Standing of Putative Fathers. Putative fathers must have a reasonable opportunity to initiate a paternity action.

Filing of Acknowledgement and Adjudications in State Registry of Birth Records. Both voluntary acknowledgements and adjudications of paternity must be filed with the State registry of birth records for data matches with the central Case Registry of Child Support Orders.

National Paternity Acknowledgement Affidavit. The Secretary is required to develop, in consultation with the States, the minimum requirements of an affidavit which includes the Social Security number of each parent to be used by States for voluntary acknowledgement of paternity.

Reason for change

Like interstate enforcement, paternity establishment is one of the major weaknesses of the current child support system. A significant fraction, perhaps as many as half, of the children on the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program do not have paternity established. Obviously, until paternity is established, child support enforcement cannot even begin. Thus, the committee proposal includes a host of provisions that will result in improved paternity establishment performance by States. These provisions, most of which have already proven effective in one or more States, include procedures that make maximum use of blood tests, encourage early and voluntary establishment of paternity, and avoid formal and time-consuming court procedures.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

18. OUTREACH FOR VOLUNTARY PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT

Present law

States are required to regularly and frequently publicize, through public service announcements, the availability of child support enforcement services.

Explanation of provision

States must publicize the availability and encourage the use of procedures for voluntary establishment of paternity and child support.

Reason for change

Several recent studies of innovative State programs indicate that around the time of an out-of-wedlock birth, many fathers are present in the hospital or their location is well-known to mothers. If the putative father is approached at this time and asked to voluntarily acknowledge paternity, he will often do so. Based on these studies of current State programs, the committee feels it would be well worth the effort for States to make the availability of voluntary paternity acknowledgment procedures as widely known as possible, especially since voluntary establishment of paternity is less time consuming, less expensive, and more effective in the long run than court-established paternity.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

19. COOPERATION BY APPLICANTS FOR AND RECIPIENTS OF TEMPORARY FAMILY ASSISTANCE

Present law

AFDC applicants and recipients are required to cooperate with the State in establishing the paternity of a child and in obtaining child support payments unless the applicant or recipient is found to have good cause for refusing to cooperate. Under the "good cause" regulations, the child support agency may determine that it is against the best interests of the child to seek to establish paternity in cases involving incest, rape, or pending procedures for adoption. Moreover, the agency may determine that it is against the best interest of the child to require the mother to cooperate if it is anticipated that such cooperation will result in the physical or emotional harm of the child, parent, or caretaker relative.

Explanation of provision

Individuals or their children who apply for or receive public assistance under the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) program or the Medicaid program must cooperate, as determined by the State child support agency, with State efforts to establish paternity and establish, modify, or enforce a support order. State procedures must require both that applicants and recipients provide specific identifying information about the other parent and that applicants appear at interviews, hearings, and legal proceedings, unless the applicant or recipient is found to have good cause for refusing to cooperate. States must have “good cause” exceptions and they must take into account the best interests of the child. The definition of good cause, and the determination of good cause in specific cases, can be accomplished by the State agency administering TANF, child support enforcement, or Medicaid. States also must require the custodial parent and child to submit to genetic testing. States may not require the noncustodial parent to sign an acknowledgement of paternity or relinquish the right to genetic testing as a condition of cooperation. The State child support agency must notify the agencies administering the TANF Block Grant and Medicaid programs if noncooperation is determined.

Reason for change

Given the central importance of paternity establishment, the committee wanted to clarify that unless mothers cooperate with child support officials, they and their children will be refused cash benefits under the Temporary Family Assistance program. The committee has received testimony that the agency administering the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program may be somewhat lax in ensuring that mothers cooperate with child support officials. For this reason, responsibility for determining whether the mother is cooperating fully is moved from the welfare agency to the child support agency. By contrast, States are given great flexibility in deciding which agency should establish the definition and application of good cause. The committee wants to clarify its intent to require States to have exceptionally clear and strong measures that, if necessary, force applicants for public aid to do all in their power to help establish paternity.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

CHAPTER 5—PROGRAM ADMINISTRATION AND FUNDING

20. PERFORMANCE-BASED INCENTIVES AND PENALTIES

Present law

Incentive Adjustments to Federal Matching Rate. The Federal Government reimburses approved administrative expenditures of States at a rate of 66 percent. In addition, the Federal Government pays States an incentive amount ranging from 6 percent to 10 percent of both AFDC and non-AFDC collections.

Conforming Amendments. No provision.

Calculation of IV-D Paternity Establishment Percentage. States are required to meet Federal standards for the establishment of paternity. The major standard relates to the percentage obtained by dividing the number of children in the State who are born out of wedlock, are receiving AFDC or child support enforcement services, and for whom paternity has been established by the number of children who are born out of wedlock and are receiving AFDC or child support enforcement services. To meet Federal requirements, this percentage in a State must be at least 75 percent or meet the following standards of improvement from the preceding year: (1) if the State paternity establishment ratio is between 50 and 75 percent, the State ratio must increase by 3 or more percentage points from the ratio of the preceding year; (2) if the State ratio is between 45 and 50, the ratio must increase at least 4 percentage points; (3) if the State ratio is between 40 and 45 percent, it must increase at least 5 percentage points; and (4) if the State ratio is below 40 percent, it must increase at least 6 percentage points. If an audit finds that the State's child support enforcement program has not substantially complied with the requirements of its State plan, the State is subject to a penalty. In accord with this penalty, the Secretary must reduce a State's AFDC benefit payment by not less than 1 percent nor more than 2 percent for the first failure to comply; by not less than 2 percent nor more than 3 percent for the second consecutive failure to comply; and by not less than 3 percent nor more than 5 percent for third or subsequent consecutive failure to comply.

Explanation of provision

Incentive Adjustments to Federal Matching Rate. The Secretary, in consultation with State child support directors, must develop a proposal for a new incentive system that provides additional payments to States (i.e., above the base matching rate of 66 percent) based on performance and report details of the new system to the Committees on Ways and Means and Finance by November 1, 1996. The Secretary's new system must be revenue neutral. The current incentive system remains effective for fiscal years beginning before 1999.

Conforming Amendments. Conforming amendments are made in Sections 458 of the Social Security Act. The effective date is October 1, 1997.

Calculation of IV-D Paternity Establishment Percentage. States have the option of calculating the paternity establishment rate by either counting only unwed births in the State IV-D caseload or by counting all unwed births in the State. The IV-D paternity establishment percentage for a fiscal year is equal to: (1) the total number of children in the State who were born out-of-wedlock, and who receive services under Part A or, at State option, Part D, and for whom paternity is acknowledged or established during the fiscal year, divided by (2) the total number of children born out-of-wedlock who receive services under Part A or E or, at State option, Part D. The Statewide paternity establishment percentage is similar except that all out-of-wedlock births in the fiscal year in the State are in the denominator and all paternities established are in the numerator. The requirements for meeting the standard are the same as current law except the 75 percent rule is increased to 90 percent. States with a paternity establishment percentage of between 75 percent and 90 percent must improve their performance by at least 2 percentage points per year. The noncompliance provisions of the child support program are modified so that the Secretary must take overall program performance into account.

Reason for change

Because paternity establishment is the ground upon which child support enforcement is constructed, the committee wanted to provide States with both a positive incentive to improve performance as well as a penalty for bad performance. The positive incentive is the 12 percentage point increase in the basic Federal matching rate for good performance; the penalty is a reduction of State TANF payments of up to 5 percent. The committee proposal sets 90 percent as the standard, although States are given several years to reach this standard. Once States reach this level of paternity performance, millions of additional children will enjoy the advantages of having their paternity established as well as the improved financial security that will follow from increased child support payments by nonresident parents.

Effective date

The new performance based system will become effective on October 1, 1998; meanwhile, the current incentive system remains in place. The requirement that the Secretary develop a proposal for a new incentive system becomes effective upon the date of enactment.

21. FEDERAL AND STATE REVIEW AND AUDITS

Present law

States are required to maintain a full record of child support collections and disbursements and to maintain an adequate reporting system. The Secretary must collect and maintain, on a fiscal year basis, up-to-date State-by-State statistics on each of the services provided under the child support enforcement program. The Secretary is also required to evaluate the implementation of State child support enforcement programs and conduct audits of these programs as necessary, but not less often than once every 3 years (or annually if a State has been found to be out of compliance with program rules).

Explanation of provision

States are required to annually review and report to the Secretary, using data from their automatic data processing system, both information adequate to determine the State's compliance with Federal requirements for expedited procedures and timely case processing as well as the information necessary to calculate their levels of accomplishment and rates of improvement on the performance indicators in the proposal.

The Secretary is required to determine the amount (if any) of incentives or penalties. The Secretary must also review State reports on compliance with Federal requirements and provide States with recommendations for corrective action. Audits must be conducted at least once every 3 years, or more often in the case of States that fail to meet Federal requirements. The purpose of the audits is to assess the completeness, reliability, and security of data reported for use in calculating the performance indicators and to assess the adequacy of financial management of the State program.

Reason for change

The current audit system, like the current incentive system, is ineffective because both are based on process indicators. The flaw in process indicators is that they are only indirect measures of performance—they measure the means by which good performance should be achieved, but not the performance itself. The fundamental change in the committee proposal is to base both incentive payments and audit penalties on actual performance indicators such as paternity establishment ratios, number of child support orders established, and actual child support collected. As a result, States will be able to maximize their incentive payments and avoid penalties only by actually performing well. The overall impact should be increases in child support collections and payments to families.

Effective date

These provisions take effect beginning with the calendar quarter that begins 12 months after enactment.

22. REQUIRED REPORTING PROCEDURES

Present law

The Secretary is required to assist States in establishing adequate reporting procedures and must maintain records of child support enforcement operations and of amounts collected and disbursed, including costs incurred in collecting support payments.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary is required to establish procedures and uniform definitions for State collection and reporting of information necessary to measure State compliance with expedited processes.

Reason for change

The committee wants to ensure that Congress will be able to conduct oversight on implementation of the rules on expedited process and timely case processing, two central features of a successful child support system. In addition, the committee wants to promote the reporting of accurate information that can be used both for reliable calculation of incentive payments and audit penalties and for review by congressional committees and others interested in the performance of State child support programs.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

23. AUTOMATED DATA PROCESSING REQUIREMENTS

Present law

Federal law (P.L. 104-35) requires that by October 1, 1997, States have an operational automated data processing and information retrieval system designed to control, account for, and monitor all factors in the support enforcement and paternity determination process, the collection and distribution of support payments, and the costs of all services rendered.

The automated data processing system must be capable of providing management information on all IV-D cases from initial referral or application through collection and enforcement. The automated data processing system must also be capable of providing security against unauthorized access to, or use of, the data in such system. To establish these automated data systems, the Federal Government provided States with a 90 percent matching rate for the costs of development. This enhanced matching money expired on October 1, 1995.

Explanation of provision

States are required to have a single Statewide automated data processing and information retrieval system which has the capacity to perform the necessary functions and with the required frequency, as described in this section. The State data system must be used to perform functions the Secretary specifies, including controlling and accounting for the use of Federal, State, and local funds and maintaining the data necessary to meet Federal reporting requirements in carrying out the program. The system must maintain the requisite data for Federal reporting, calculate the State's performance for purposes of the incentive and penalty provisions, and have in place systems controls to ensure the completeness, reliability, and accuracy of the data.

To promote security of information, the State agency must have safeguards to protect the integrity, accuracy, and completeness of, and access to and use of, data in the automated systems including restricting access to passwords, monitoring of access to and use of the system, conducting automated systems training, and imposing penalties for unauthorized use or disclosure of confidential data. The Secretary must prescribe final regulations for implementation of this section no later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act.

The statutory provisions for State implementation of Federal automatic data processing requirements are revised to provide that, first, all requirements enacted on or before the date of enactment of the Family Support Act of 1988 are to be met by October 1, 1997. The requirements enacted on or before the date of enactment of this proposal must be met by October 1, 1999. The October 1, 1999 deadline will be extended by 1 day for each day by which the Secretary fails to meet the 2-year deadline for regulations. The Federal Government will continue the 90 percent matching rate for 1996 and 1997 in the case of provisions outlined in advanced planning documents submitted before September 30, 1995; the enhanced match is also provided retroactively for funds expended since expiration of the enhanced rate on October 1, 1995. For fiscal years 1996 through 2001, the matching rate for the provisions of this section will be 80 percent.

The Secretary must create procedures to cap payments to States to meet the new requirements at $400,000,000 over 6 years (fiscal years 1996–2001) to be distributed among States by a formula set in regulations which takes into account the relative size of State caseloads and the level of automation needed to meet applicable automatic data processing requirements.

Reason for change

States appear to be having difficulty implementing the automatic data processing requirements of both the 1988 Family Support Act and the 1993 OBRA legislation. Even so, a number of States with effective data processing systems have shown that remarkable improvements in both total collections and efficiency are possible if the procedures established in the committee proposal are implemented. Although States have a spotty record of implementing the data processing requirements of previous legislation, the potential improvements that could come with effective data processing are worth the risk of imposing the new requirements. As in the past, Congress is offering funding at a high Federal matching rate so that States will develop high quality systems.

It is the intent of the committee to conduct hearings in the future to determine whether the new automatic data processing requirements are being effectively implemented. The committee will also pay careful attention to the timeliness of regulations published by the Secretary.

Effective date

October 1, 1996, except where otherwise noted.

24. TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE (AND FUNDING OF PARENT LOCATOR SERVICE)

Present law

Annual appropriations are made to cover the expenses of the Administration for Children and Families, which includes the Federal Office of Child Support Enforcement (OCSE). Among OCSE's administrative expenses are the costs of providing technical assistance to the States.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary can use 1 percent of the Federal share of child support collections on behalf of families in the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families program the preceding year to provide technical assistance to the States. Technical assistance can include training of State and Federal staff, research and demonstration programs, special projects of regional or national significance, and similar activities. The Secretary will receive 2 percent of the Federal share of collections on behalf of TANF recipients the preceding year for operation of the Federal Parent Locator Service to the extent that costs of the Parent Locator Service are not recovered by user fees.

Reason for change

These changes in current law are intended to provide funding to continue activities that already occur but are expected to expand under the committee proposal.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

25. REPORT AND DATA COLLECTION BY THE SECRETARY

Present law

The Secretary is required to submit to Congress, not later than 3 months after the end of the fiscal year, a complete report on all child support enforcement activities.

Explanation of provision

In addition to current reporting requirements, the Secretary is required to report the following data to Congress in her annual report each fiscal year:

- (1) the total amount of child support payments collected;
- (2) the cost to the State and Federal Governments of furnishing child support services;
- (3) the number of cases involving families that became ineligible for aid under part A with respect to whom a child support payment was received;
- (4) the total amount of current support collected and distributed;
- (5) the total amount of past due support collected and distributed; and
- (6) the total amount of support due and unpaid for all fiscal years.

The Secretary also must report the compliance, by State, with IV-D standards for responding to requests for child support assistance from other States and standards for distributing child support collections.

Reason for change

This provision streamlines data reporting requirements and keeps data reporting by States to a minimum. Each piece of information is necessary for effective operation of the child support program or to provide the administration, Congress, and other interested parties with information about program performance.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

CHAPTER 6—ESTABLISHMENT AND MODIFICATION OF SUPPORT ORDERS

26. SIMPLIFIED PROCESS FOR REVIEW AND ADJUSTMENT OF CHILD SUPPORT ORDERS

Present law

A child support order legally obligates noncustodial parents to provide financial support for their child and stipulates the amount of the obligation and how it is to be paid. In 1984, P.L. 98-378 required States to establish guidelines for establishing child support orders. In 1988, P.L. 100-485 made the guidelines binding on judges and other officials who had authority to establish support orders. P.L. 100-485 also required States to review and adjust individual child support orders once every 3 years under some circumstances. States are required to notify both resident and non-resident parents of their right to a review.

Explanation of provision

Every 3 years, States must review and, as appropriate, adjust support orders being enforced under the TANF block grant and other orders at the request of the parent or at State option. No proof of change or circumstances is needed to initiate the review.

States may adjust child support orders by either applying the State guidelines and updating the award amount or by applying a cost of living increase to the order. In the latter case, both parties must be given 30 days after notice of adjustment to contest the results. States may use automated methods to identify orders eligible for review, conduct the review, identify orders eligible for adjustment, and apply the appropriate adjustment to the orders based on the threshold established by the State. States must also review and, upon a showing of a change in circumstances, adjust orders pursuant to the child support guidelines upon request of either parent or the State. States are required to give parties one notice of their right to request review and adjustment, which may be included in the order establishing the support amount. If neither parent requests a review, States have the option of avoiding the 3-year review requirement.

Reason for change

This provision streamlines data reporting requirements and keeps data reporting by States to a minimum. Each piece of information is necessary for effective operation of the child support program or to provide the administration, Congress, and other interested parties with information about program performance.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

27. FURNISHING CONSUMER REPORTS FOR CERTAIN PURPOSES
RELATING TO CHILD SUPPORT

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law

The Fair Credit Act requires consumer reporting agencies to include in any consumer report information on child support delinquencies provided by or verified by a child support enforcement agency, which antedates the report by 7 years.

Explanation of provision

This section amends the Fair Credit Reporting Act. In response to a request by the head of a State or local child support agency (or a State or local government official authorized by the head of such an agency), consumer credit agencies must release information if the person making the request makes all of the following certifications: that the consumer report is needed to establish an individual's capacity to make child support payments or determine the level of payments; that paternity has been established or acknowledged; that the consumer has been given at least 10 days notice by certified or registered mail that the report is being requested; and that the consumer report will be kept confidential, will be used solely for child support purposes, and will not be used in connection with any other civil, administrative, or criminal proceeding or for any other purpose. Consumer reporting agencies must also give reports to a child support agency for use in setting an initial or modified award.

28. NONLIABILITY FOR FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS PROVIDING FINANCIAL RECORDS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Financial institutions are not liable to any person for information provided to child support agencies. Child support agencies can disclose information obtained from depository institutions only for child support purposes. There is no liability for disclosures that result from good faith but erroneous interpretation of this statute. However, individuals who knowingly disclose information from financial records can have civil actions brought against them in Federal district court; the maximum penalty is $1,000 for each disclosure or actual damages plus, in the case of willful disclosure resulting from gross negligence, punitive damages, plus the costs of the action. Definitions of “financial institution” and “financial record” are included in this section.

Reason for change

Depository institutions are one of the best sources of information about the resources of parents who owe child support. The intent of this provision is to protect this source by requiring that States provide immunity from prosecution for depository institutions providing information to State agencies in accord with State law. To ensure that this information is not misused, States must also have laws that provide civil penalties against employees who knowingly disclose financial information to unauthorized persons or agencies.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

CHAPTER 7—ENFORCEMENT OF SUPPORT ORDERS

29. INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE COLLECTION OF ARREARAGES

Present law

If the amount of overdue child support is at least $750, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) can enforce the child support obligation through its regular collection process, which may include seizure of property, freezing accounts, or use of other procedures if child support agencies request assistance according to prescribed rules (e.g., certifying that the delinquency is at least $750, et cetera.)

Explanation of provision

The Internal Revenue Code is amended so that no additional fees can be assessed for adjustment to previously certified amounts for the same obligor.

Reason for change

This provision is designed to encourage States to use the IRS as an additional tool of child support collection by ensuring that the cost of this IRS service remains moderate.

Effective date

October 1, 1997.

30. AUTHORITY TO COLLECT SUPPORT FROM FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

Present law

Federal law allows the wages of Federal employees to be garnished to enforce legal obligations for child support or alimony. Federal law provides that moneys payable by the United States to any individual are subject to being garnished in order to meet an individual's legal obligation to provide child support or make alimony payments. An executive order issued on February 27, 1995 establishes the Federal Government as a model employer in promoting and facilitating the establishment and enforcement of child support. Under the terms of the Executive Order, all Federal agencies, including the Uniformed Services, are required to cooperate fully in efforts to establish paternity and child support and to enforce the collection of child and medical support. All Federal agencies are to review their wage withholding procedures to ensure that they are in full compliance. Beginning no later than July 1, 1995, the Director of the Office of Personal Management must publish annually in the Federal Register the list of agents (and their addresses) designated to receive service of withholding notices for Federal employees. Federal law states that neither the United States nor any disbursing officer or government entity shall be liable with respect to any payment made from moneys due or payable from the United States pursuant to the legal process. Federal law provides that money that may be garnished includes compensation for personal services, whether such compensation is denominated as wages, salary, commission, bonus, pay, or otherwise, and includes but is not limited to, severance pay, sick pay, incentive payments, and periodic payments. Includes definitions of "United States," "child support," "alimony," "private person," and "legal process."

Explanation of provision

Consolidation and Streamlining of Authorities. (1) Federal employees are subject to wage withholding and other actions taken against them by State child support enforcement agencies.

(2) Federal agencies are responsible for the same wage withholding and other child support actions taken by the State as if they were a private employer.

(3) The head of each Federal agency must designate an agent and place the agent's name, title, address, and telephone number in the Federal Register annually. The agent must, upon receipt of process, send written notice to the individual involved as soon as possible, but no later than 15 days, and to comply with any notice of wage withholding or respond to other process within 30 days. The agent also must respond to any order, process, or interrogatory about child support or alimony within 30 days after effective service of such requests.

(4) Current law governing allocation of moneys owed by a Federal employee is amended to give priority to child support, to require allocation of available funds, up to the amount owed, among child support claimants, and to allocate remaining funds to other claimants on a first-come, first-served basis.

(5) A government entity served with notice of process for enforcement of child support is not required to change its normal pay and disbursement cycle to comply with the legal process.

(6) Similar to current law, the U.S., the government of the District of Columbia, and disbursing officers are not liable for child support payments made in accord with this section; nor is any Federal employee subject to disciplinary action or civil or criminal liability for disclosing information while carrying out the provisions of this section.

(7) The President has the authority to promulgate regulations to implement this section as it applies to Federal employees of the Administrative branch of government; the President Pro Tempore of the Senate and Speaker of the House can issue regulations governing their employees; and the Chief Justice can issue regulations applicable to the Judicial branch.

(8) This section broadens the definition of income to include, in addition to wages, salary, commissions, bonus pay, allowances, severance pay, sick pay, and incentive pay, funds such as insurance benefits, retirement and pension pay (including disability pay if the veteran has waived a portion of retirement pay to receive disability pay), survivor's benefits, compensation for death and black lung disease, veterans' benefits, and workers' compensation; but to exclude from income funds paid to defray expenses incurred in carrying out job duties; amounts owed to the U.S. or used to pay Federal employment taxes, fines, or forfeitures ordered by court martial; and amounts withheld for tax purposes, for health insurance or life insurance premiums, for retirement contributions, or for life insurance premiums.

(9) This section includes definitions of "United States," "child support," "alimony," "private person," and "legal process."

Conforming Amendments. The committee provision makes several conforming amendments to Title IV-D of the Social Security Act and Title 5 of the United States Code.

Military Retired and Retainer Pay. The definition of "court" in the Armed Forces title of the U.S. Code (title 10) is amended to include an administrative or judicial tribunal of a State which is competent to enter child support orders, and clarifies the definition of "court order." The Secretary of Defense is required to send withheld amounts for child support to the appropriate State Disbursement Unit. The provision also clarifies that military personnel who have never been married to the parent of their child are under jurisdiction of the State child support program and the terms of section 459 of the Social Security Act.

Reason for change

The Federal Government employs nearly 3 million people. These employees work in offices all over the United States. Yet the current procedures for ensuring that these employees participate fully in the Nation's child support system are weak. The committee proposal completely revamps the Federal system of responding to child support requests, especially wage withholding. Once these provisions are implemented, the Federal child support system should function more smoothly and efficiently while recovering additional dollars for child support.

Effective date

This section goes into effect 6 months after the date of enactment.

31. ENFORCEMENT OF CHILD SUPPORT OBLIGATIONS OF MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law

Availability of Locator Information. The Executive Order issued February 27, 1995 requires a study which would include recommendations on how to improve service of process for civilian employees and members of the Uniformed Services stationed outside the United States.

Facilitating Granting of Leave for Attendance at Hearings. No provision.

Payment of Military Retired Pay in Compliance with Child Support Orders. Federal law requires allotments from the pay and allowances of any member of the uniformed service when the member fails to pay child (or child and spousal) support payments.

Explanation of provision

Availability of Locator Information. The Secretary of Defense must establish a central personnel locator service that contains residential or, in specified instances, duty addresses of every member of the Armed Services (including members of the Coast Guard, if requested). The locator service must be updated within 30 days of the time an individual establishes a new address. Information from the locator service must be made available upon request to the Federal Parent Locator Service.

Facilitating Granting of Leave for Attendance at Hearings. The Secretary of each military department must issue regulations to facilitate granting of leave for members of the Armed Services to attend hearings to establish paternity or to establish child support orders. The terms "court" and "child support" are defined.

Payment of Military Retired Pay in Compliance with Child Support Orders. Child support orders received by the Secretary do not have to have been recently issued. The Secretary of each branch of the Armed Forces (including retirees, the Coast Guard, the National Guard, and the Reserves) is required to make child support payments from military retirement pay directly to any State to which a custodial parent has assigned support rights as a condition of receiving public assistance. Payments to satisfy current support or child support arrears must be made from disposable retirement pay. Payroll deductions must begin within 30 days or the first pay period after 30 days of receiving a wage withholding order.

32. VOIDING OF FRAUDULENT TRANSFERS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

States must have in effect the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act of 1981, the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act of 1984, or an equivalent law providing for voiding transfers of income or property that were made to avoid payment of child support. States also must have in effect procedures under which the State must seek to void a fraudulent transfer or obtain a settlement in the best interest of the child support creditor.

Reason for change

Some noncustodial parents liquidate their property in order to avoid paying child support. Under the committee proposal, such fraudulent transfer of property for the purpose of avoiding child support would become illegal. Even more important, such transfers would be voided, thereby increasing the amount of income or property that could be attached for payment of child support.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

33. WORK REQUIREMENT FOR PERSONS OWING PAST-DUE CHILD SUPPORT

Present law

P.L. 100-485 required the Secretary to grant waivers to up to five States allowing them to provide JOBS services on a voluntary or mandatory basis to noncustodial parents who are unemployed and unable to meet their child support obligations. (In their report the conferees noted that the demonstrations would not grant any new powers to the States to require participation by noncustodial parents. The demonstrations were to be evaluated.)

Explanation of provision

States must have procedures under which the State has the authority to issue an order or request that a court or administrative process issue an order that requires individuals owing past-due child support for a child receiving assistance under the Temporary Family Assistance program either to pay the support due, to have and be in compliance with a plan to pay child support, or to participate in work activities as deemed appropriate by the court or the child support agency. "Past-due support" is defined and a conforming amendment is made to section 466 of the Social Security Act.

Reason for change

States must require custodial parents on welfare to fulfill work requirements as a condition of receiving public benefits. If the custodial parent refuses to participate, her benefits can be reduced or even terminated. The obligation of noncustodial parents to work for public benefits that support their children is equal to the obligation of custodial parents. However, because noncustodial parents generally do not receive the welfare payment, it is difficult for States to effectively require them to participate in work programs. The committee intends to at least partially rectify this imbalance in the expectations placed on custodial and noncustodial parents by encouraging judges to make noncustodial parents either pay the child support they owe or participate in work programs.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

34. DEFINITION OF SUPPORT ORDER

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

A support order is defined as a judgement, decree, or order (whether temporary, final, or subject to modification) issued by a court or an administrative agency for the support (monetary support, health care, arrearages, or reimbursement) of a child (including a child who has reached the age of majority under State law) or of a child and the parent with whom the child lives, and which may include costs and fees, interest and penalties, income withholding, attorney's fees, and other relief.

Reason for change

The term "support order" is used throughout Title IV-D of the Social Security Act but is never defined. The committee definition includes spousal support if the original child support order includes spousal support.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

35. REPORTING ARREARAGES TO CREDIT BUREAUS

Present law

Federal law requires States to implement procedures which require them to periodically report to consumer reporting agencies the name of debtor parents owing at least 2 months of overdue child support and the amount of child support overdue. However, if the amount overdue is less than $1,000, information regarding it shall be made available only at the option of the State. Moreover, information may only be made available after the noncustodial parent has been notified of the proposed action and has been given reasonable opportunity to contest the accuracy of the claim against him. States are permitted to charge consumer reporting agencies that request child support arrearage information a fee that does not exceed actual costs.

Explanation of provision

States are required to periodically report to consumer credit reporting agencies the name of any noncustodial parent who is delinquent in the payment of support and the amount of overdue support owed by the parent. Before such a report can be sent, the obligor must have been afforded all due process rights, including notice and reasonable opportunity to contest the claim of child support delinquency.

Reason for change

A good credit history is an important part of modern economic life. Most people will go to great lengths to avoid damaging their credit history. Thus, child support agencies should acquire a reputation for notifying credit reporting agencies of delinquent child support. Such reports must become systematic and immediate if they are to gain widespread credibility. An additional reason for this provision, along with several others that will be described below, is to develop enforcement tools that can be used against self-employed individuals. Wage withholding is perhaps the single most effective tool in collecting child support. Unfortunately, this tool is usually not available in the case of self-employed individuals. However, the self-employed need to maintain a good credit rating, so the threat of reporting to credit bureaus can be expected to have a positive impact.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

36. LIENS

Present law

Federal law requires States to implement procedures under which liens are imposed against real and personal property for amounts of overdue support owed by a noncustodial parent who resides or owns property in the State.

Explanation of provision

States must have procedures under which liens arise by operation of law against property for the amount of overdue support. States must grant full faith and credit to liens of other States if the originating State agency or party has complied with procedural rules relating to the recording or serving of liens, except such rules cannot require judicial notice or hearing prior to enforcement of the lien.

Reason for change

Many noncustodial parents, including those who claim to have little cash, own property that can be used to make child support payments. Equally important, the knowledge that property will be seized and, if necessary, liquidated to obtain payment on past-due child support is often enough to force noncustodial parents to locate the cash necessary to make payment on arrearages. In order to be fully effective, seizure of property must be done quickly and efficiently. Thus, the committee provision would require States to have laws that enable them to place liens on property in anticipation of new arrearages. Then, when arrearages occur, child support agencies can immediately seize the property without the need to engage in court proceedings. These laws must also require States to honor the liens of other States if all procedural rules of the State in which the lien is registered. Liens are also an effective collection tool in the case of self-employed individuals.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

37. STATE LAW AUTHORIZING SUSPENSION OF LICENSES

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

States must have the authority to withhold, suspend, or restrict the use of drivers' licenses, professional and occupational licenses, and recreational licenses of individuals owing past-due support or failing, after receiving appropriate notice, to comply with subpoenas or warrants relating to paternity or child support proceedings.

Reason for change

Drivers' licenses, professional and occupational licenses, and recreational licenses are all essential features of life in America. Without them, individuals have serious restrictions on their ability to pursue a livelihood, to get from one place to another, and to engage in recreational activity. Placing licenses to these vital activities in jeopardy is an exceptionally effective way to ensure that noncustodial parents pay child support in a timely fashion. License suspension is often an effective tool against noncustodial parents who are self employed. Not surprisingly, the Committee on Ways and Means has received testimony, including documentary evidence, that States already using license suspension have enjoyed substantial increases in child support collections. The goal of the committee provision is to spread these benefits to the entire Nation.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

38. DENIAL OF PASSPORTS FOR NONPAYMENT OF CHILD SUPPORT

(This section is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

If an individual owes arrearages in excess of $5,000 of child support, the Secretary of HHS must request that the State Department deny, revoke, restrict, or limit the individual's passport. State child support agencies must have procedures for certifying to the Secretary arrearages in excess of $5,000 and for notifying individuals who are in arrears and providing them with an opportunity to contest. These provisions become effective on October 1, 1997.

39. INTERNATIONAL CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

(1) The Secretary of State, with concurrence of the Secretary of HHS, is authorized to declare reciprocity with foreign countries having requisite procedures for establishing and enforcing support orders. The Secretary may revoke reciprocity if she determines that the enforcement procedures do not continue to meet the requisite criteria.

(2) The requirements for reciprocity include procedures in the foreign country for U.S. residents—available at no cost—to establish parentage, to establish and enforce support orders for children and custodial parents, and to distribute payments.

(3) An agency of the foreign country must be designated a central authority responsible for facilitating support enforcement and ensuring compliance with standards by both U.S. residents and residents of the foreign country.

(4) The Secretary in consultation with the States, may establish additional standards that she judges necessary to promote effective international support enforcement.

(5) The Secretary of HHS is required to facilitate enforcement services in international cases involving residents of the U.S. and of foreign reciprocating countries, including developing uniform forms and procedures, providing information from the FPLS on the State of residence of the obligor, and providing such other oversight, assistance, or coordination as she finds necessary and appropriate.

(6) Where there is no Federal reciprocity agreement, States are permitted to enter into reciprocal agreements with foreign countries.

(7) The State plan must provide that request for services in international cases be treated the same as interstate cases, except that no application will be required and no costs will be assessed against the foreign country or the obligee (costs may be assessed at State option against the obligor).

Reason for change

The ever increasing frequency of international travel has led to an increase in international support cases. To date, efforts to pursue support across national boundaries has proven difficult. Thus, in consultation with the State Department and with State child support leaders, the committee has developed a provision that will allow and encourage the Secretary of State to pursue reciprocal support agreements with other nations. In this way, the U.S. and selected foreign nations may be able to help each other deal with the problem of parents and former spouses crossing boundaries to avoid support payments.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

40. FINANCIAL INSTITUTION DATA MATCHES

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

States are required to implement procedures under which the State child support agency must enter into agreements with financial institutions doing business within the State to develop and operate a data match system, using automated data exchanges to the maximum extent feasible, in which such financial institutions are required to provide for each calendar quarter the name, address, Social Security number, and other identifying information for each noncustodial parent identified by the State who has an account at the institution and owes past-due child support. In response to a notice of lien or levy, the financial institution must encumber or surrender assets held by the institution on behalf of the noncustodial parent who is subject to the child support lien. The State agency may pay a fee to the financial institution. The financial institution is not liable for activities taken to implement the provisions of this section. Definitions of the terms "financial institution" and "account" are included.

Reason for change

Collecting child support payments, especially from reluctant noncustodial parents, is one of the major problems in child support enforcement. Thus, several provisions of the committee provision are designed to provide States with additional collection tools. One of the most important is requiring States to have access to the financial assets of noncustodial parents who fall behind in paying child support. This provision will enable States to discover on a routine basis whether obligors have resources in financial institutions and then provide them with the means to gain access to such resources. Several States have been implementing these provisions with great success. In testimony before our committee this year, a witness from one State informed us that after the State legislature enacted this provision, there was an immediate boost in collections directly attributable to the State's ability to gain access to resources held in financial institutions.

EFFECTIVE DATE

October 1, 1996.

41. ENFORCEMENT OF ORDERS AGAINST PATERNAL OR MATERNAL GRANDPARENTS IN CASES OF MINOR PARENTS

Present law

No provision. However, Wisconsin and Hawaii have State laws that make grandparents financially responsible for their minor children's dependents.

Explanation of provision

With respect to a child of minor parents receiving support from the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Block Grant, States have the option to enforce a child support order against the parents of the minor noncustodial parent.

Reason for change

States have an obligation to taxpayers to make certain that every reasonable step is taken to either recover from parents the welfare money spent on their children or avoid payments in the first place. Parents, of course, are responsible for the behavior of their minor children. If minors cause a nonmarital pregnancy, their parents should be held accountable. This provision ensures that they will be.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

42. NONDISCHARGEABILITY IN BANKRUPTCY OF CERTAIN DEBTS FOR THE SUPPORT OF A CHILD

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present Law

Although child support payments may not be discharged in a filing of bankruptcy (i.e., the debtor parent cannot escape her child support obligation by filing a bankruptcy petition), a bankruptcy filing may cause long delays in securing child support payments. Pursuant to P.L. 103-394, a filing of bankruptcy will not stay a paternity, child support, or alimony proceeding. In addition, child support and alimony payments will be priority claims and custodial parents will be able to appear in bankruptcy court to protect their interests without paying a fee or meeting any local rules for attorney appearances.

Explanation of provision

Title 11 of the U.S. Code and Title IV-D of the Social Security Act are amended to ensure that a debt owed to the State "that is in the nature of support and that is enforceable under this part" cannot be discharged in bankruptcy proceedings. This amendment applies only to cases initiated under Title 11 after enactment of this Act.

CHAPTER 8—MEDICAL SUPPORT

43. CORRECTION TO ERISA DEFINITION OF MEDICAL CHILD SUPPORT ORDER (THIS PROVISION IS NOT UNDER JURISDICTION OF THE COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS BUT IS INCLUDED HERE FOR SAKE OF COMPLETENESS.)

Present law

P.L. 103-66 requires States to adopt laws that require health insurers and employers to enforce orders for medical and child support and that forbid health insurers from denying coverage to children who are not living with the covered individual or who were born outside of marriage. Under P.L. 103-66, group health plans are required to honor "qualified medical child support orders."

Explanation of provision

This provision expands the definition of medical child support order in ERISA to clarify that any judgement, decree, or order that is issued by a court of competent jurisdiction or by an administrative process has the force and effect of law.

44. ENFORCEMENT OF ORDERS FOR HEALTH CARE COVERAGE

Present law

Federal law requires the Secretary to require IV-D agencies to petition for the inclusion of medical support as part of child support whenever health care coverage is available to the noncustodial parent at reasonable cost.

Explanation of provision

All orders enforced under this part must include a provision for health care coverage. If the noncustodial parent changes jobs and the new employer provides health coverage, the State must send notice of coverage, which shall operate to enroll the child in the health plan, to the new employer.

Reason for change

Health coverage is a vital aspect of child support enforcement. This is especially the case since the alternative is often taxpayer-provided Medicaid coverage, which is expensive. In recent years, States have gained experience in learning new ways to help promote health coverage by noncustodial parents. One result has been laws requiring that insurance companies cover a worker's children, even if the worker does not live with his children. States have now discovered that even when covered by the noncustodial parent's employer-based health insurance, children can experience gaps in coverage if their parent moves to a different job. The committee provision therefore requires States to immediately notify new employers of the coverage without any judicial or administrative proceedings.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

CHAPTER 9—ENHANCING RESPONSIBILITY AND OPPORTUNITY FOR NON-RESIDENTIAL PARENTS

45. GRANTS TO STATES FOR ACCESS AND VISITATION PROGRAMS

Present law

In 1988, Congress authorized the Secretary to fund for fiscal year 1990 and fiscal year 1991 demonstration projects by States to help divorcing or never-married parents cooperate with each other, especially in arranging for visits between the child and the nonresident parent.

Explanation of provision

This proposal authorizes grants to States for access and visitation programs including mediation, counseling, education, development of parenting plans, and visitation enforcement. Visitation enforcement can include monitoring, supervision, neutral drop-off and pick-up, and development of guidelines for visitation and alternative custody agreements. An annual entitlement of $10 million is appropriated for these grants.

The amount of the grant to a State is equal to either 90 percent of the State expenditures during the year for access and visitation programs or the allotment for the State for the fiscal year. The allotment to the State bears the same ratio to the amount appropriated for the fiscal year as the number of children in the State living with one biological parent divided by the national number of children living with one biological parent. The Administration for Children and Families must adjust allotments to ensure that no State is allotted less than $50,000 for fiscal years 1997 or 1998 or less than $100,000 for any year after 1998. Projects are required to supplement rather than supplant State funds. States may use the money to create their own programs or to fund grant programs with courts, local public agencies, or nonprofit organizations. The programs do not need to be Statewide. States must monitor, evaluate, and report on their programs in accord with regulations issued by the Secretary.

Reason for change

For more than two decades, the Federal Government has played a leading role in requiring States to establish and conduct strong child support enforcement programs. The fundamental goal of these programs, of course, is to increase the financial security of children who live with one parent. This goal enjoys nearly universal support among members of Congress and among the American public. However, in addition to using government power to enforcement child support, many members of Congress believe there is an important role for government in assisting the children of divorced or never-married parents to maintain contact with their noncustodial parent. Thus, in 1988 Congress authorized the first demonstration programs to promote visitation between children and nonresident parents. The committee provision on access and visitation is an extension and expansion of this original provision. Entitlement funding was provided to be certain that the money would be available for these important grants.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

CHAPTER 10—EFFECT OF ENACTMENT

46. EFFECTIVE DATES

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Except as noted in the text of the committee proposal for specific provisions, the general effective date for provisions in the proposal is October 1, 1996. However, given that many of the changes required by this proposal must be approved by State Legislatures, the proposal contains a grace period tied to the meeting schedule of State Legislatures. In any given State, the proposal becomes effective either on October 1, 1996 or on the first day of the first calendar quarter after the close of the first regular session of the State Legislature that begins after the date of enactment of the proposal. In the case of States that require a constitutional amendment to comply with the requirements of the proposal, the grace period is extended either for 1 year after the effective date of the necessary State constitutional amendment or 5 years after the date of enactment of the proposal. This section contains several conforming amendments to title IV–D of the Social Security Act. This section also replaces the term “absent parent” with “noncustodial parent” each place it occurs in title IV–D.

Reason for change

If Congress requires States to change their laws, it is standard practice for Congress to accommodate effective dates to the meeting schedule of State legislative bodies. The committee provision is consistent with this practice.

Effective date

Upon enactment.

SUBTITLE D: RESTRICTING WELFARE TO ALIENS

1. STATEMENTS OF NATIONAL POLICY CONCERNING WELFARE AND IMMIGRATION

Present law. No provision.

Explanation of provision. The Congress makes several statements concerning national policy with respect to welfare and immigration. These include the affirmation that it continues to be the immigration policy of the U.S. that noncitizens within the nation’s borders not depend on public resources, that noncitizens nonetheless have been applying for and receiving public benefits at increasing rates, and that it is a compelling government interest to enact new eligibility and sponsorship rules to assure that noncitizens become self reliant and to remove any incentive for illegal immigration.

Reason for change. It is the intent of the Committee to make clear that the reduction of welfare for aliens supports our national traditions and values regarding work, opportunity and self reliance for those who immigrate to the U.S.

Effective date. Date of enactment.

CHAPTER 1—ELIGIBILITY FOR FEDERAL BENEFIT

2. ALIENS WHO ARE NOT QUALIFIED ALIENS INELIGIBLE FOR FEDERAL PUBLIC BENEFITS

Present law. Current law limits alien eligibility for most major Federal assistance programs, including restrictions on, among other programs, Supplemental Security Income, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, housing assistance, and Food Stamps programs. Current law is silent on alienage under, among other programs, school lunch and nutrition, the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), Head Start, migrant health centers, and the earned income credit.

Under the programs with restrictions, benefits are generally allowed for permanent resident aliens (also referred to as immigrants and green card holders), refugees, asylees, and parolees, but benefits (other than emergency Medicaid) are denied to nonimmigrants (or aliens lawfully admitted temporarily as, for example, tourists, students, or temporary workers) and illegal aliens. Benefits are permitted under AFDC, SSI, unemployment compensation, and nonemergency Medicaid to other aliens permanently residing in the U.S. under color of law (PRUCOL).

Explanation of provision. Noncitizens who are “not qualified aliens” (generally, illegal immigrants and nonimmigrants such as students) are ineligible for all Federal public benefits, with limited exceptions for emergency medical services, emergency disaster relief, immunizations and testing and treatment of communicable diseases, community programs necessary for the protection of life or safety, certain housing benefits (only for current recipients), licenses and benefits directly related to work for which a non-immigrant has been authorized to enter the U.S, and certain Social Security retirement benefits protected by treaty or statute.

Federal public benefits include: any grant, contract, loan, professional license or commercial license, and any retirement, welfare, health, disability, food assistance, unemployment or similar benefit provided by an agency or appropriated funds of the United States.

Reason for change. It is the intent of the Committee that individuals who are illegally present in the U.S. or here for a temporary purpose such as to attend school should not receive public welfare benefits. Accordingly, the Committee proposal restricts the availability of Federal public welfare benefits for such “non-qualified aliens” with only very limited exceptions such as for emergency medical services, immunizations, and non-cash emergency disaster relief.

Effective date. October 1, 1996.

3. LIMITED ELIGIBILITY OF CERTAIN QUALIFIED ALIENS

Present law. With the exception of certain buy-in rights under Medicare, immigrants (or aliens) lawfully admitted for permanent residence are eligible for major Federal benefits, but the ability of some immigrants to meet the needs tests for SSI, AFDC, and food stamps may be affected by the sponsor-to-alien deeming provisions discussed below. Refugees, asylees, and parolees also generally are eligible. Benefits are permitted under AFDC, SSI, unemployment compensation, and nonemergency Medicaid to other aliens permanently residing in the U.S. under color of law (PRUCOL).

Explanation of provision. Legal noncitizens who are “qualified aliens” (i.e., permanent resident aliens, refugees, asylees, aliens paroled into the U.S. for a period of at least 1 year, and aliens whose deportation has been withheld) are ineligible for SSI and food stamp benefits until they attain citizenship, with exceptions noted below. States are given the option of similarly restricting Federal cash welfare, Medicaid and Title XX benefits for qualified aliens, with the exception of those who are receiving benefits on the date of enactment as described below.

Refugees, asylees, and aliens whose deportation has been withheld are excepted for 5 years after being granted their respective statuses. Also excepted are legal permanent residents who have worked (in combination with their spouse and parents) for at least 10 years, and noncitizens who are veterans or on active duty or their spouse or unmarried child.

To allow individuals time to adjust to the revised policy, otherwise restricted aliens who are receiving SSI, food stamps, cash welfare, Medicaid or Title XX benefits on the date of enactment would remain eligible for at most 1 year after enactment. However, if a review determines the noncitizen would be ineligible if enrolling under the revised standards for SSI and food stamps (for example, because the noncitizen failed to qualify under the refugee or work exemptions) such benefits would cease immediately. States have the option of ending cash welfare, Medicaid, and social services benefits for current recipients after January 1, 1997.

Reason for change. Since Congress first passed legislation on immigration in the 1880's, it has been a fundamental tenet of American immigration policy that aliens should not receive public welfare benefits. Yet today there are well over 2.8 million noncitizens receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Supplemental Security Income, Medicaid, and Food Stamps. Studies indicate that total Federal spending on welfare for noncitizens exceeds $20 billion per year.

The Committee proposal is based on the principle that immigration is essentially a reciprocal compact between the nation and each immigrant who requests permission to enter the country: Aliens are allowed to enter the U.S. and join our economy; in return, the nation asks that immigrants obey our laws, pay taxes if they earn sufficient income, and avoid welfare until they become citizens. The Committee proposal is designed to uphold this bargain. In addition, the proposal reduces Federal spending by billions of dollars by withholding welfare payments to aliens.

Effective date. The restrictions in this section generally apply beginning on the date of enactment. For noncitizens who are receiving SSI and food stamp benefits on the date of enactment, eligibility would continue for 1 year; however, if a review or recertification during the year after enactment finds that the noncitizen would not meet the revised eligibility standards (such as by qualifying for exceptions for refugees or for having worked ten or more years), eligibility would end upon the review or recertification. Noncitizens receiving cash welfare, Medicaid, and social services benefits (which States would have the option to restrict) would remain eligible until at least January 1, 1997.

4. FIVE-YEAR LIMITED ELIGIBILITY OF QUALIFIED ALIENS FOR FEDERAL MEANS-TESTED PUBLIC BENEFIT

Present law. See above.

Explanation of provision. The proposal restricts most Federal means-tested benefits (including SSI, food stamps, cash welfare, Medicaid, and title XX social services benefits) for permanent resident aliens who arrive after the date of enactment for their first 5 years in the U.S. Programs that are not restricted to legal non-citizens arriving in the future include emergency medical services, non-cash emergency disaster relief, school lunch and child nutrition benefits, immunizations and testing and treatment of communicable diseases, foster care and adoption payments, community programs for the protection of life or safety, certain elementary and secondary education programs, and higher education grants and loans.

Exceptions are made for refugees, asylees, aliens whose deportation is being withheld, and noncitizens who are veterans, on active duty, or the spouse or unmarried child of such an individual.

Reason for change. See above. In addition to the restrictions on the receipt of SSI and food stamp benefits (and, at State option, cash welfare, Medicaid and social services) for all noncitizens, this provision provides a broader restriction on the availability of Federal welfare benefits for most noncitizens who arrive in the U.S. after the date of enactment (this restriction would apply during the noncitizen's first 5 years in the U.S.). The purpose is to send a clear signal that immigrants are expected to uphold pledges that have been required under U.S. immigration law for generations that they will not become dependent on public welfare benefits prior to obtaining citizenship.

Effective date. The above changes in eligibility apply to most non-citizens arriving in the U.S. after the date of enactment during their first 5 years in the U.S.

5. NOTIFICATION AND INFORMATION REPORTING

(1) Notification

Present law. Under regulation, individual advance written notice must be given of an intent to suspend, reduce, or terminate SSI benefits.

Explanation of provision. Each Federal agency that administers an affected program shall post information and provide general notification to the public and to program recipients of changes regarding eligibility.

Reason for change. Agencies now providing welfare benefits to noncitizens should take reasonable steps to notify aliens of impending program changes in order to help aliens make arrangements for replacing welfare income with earned income or assistance from relatives, friends, sponsoring organizations, or private charities.

Effective date. October 1, 1996.

(2) Information reporting

Present law. AFDC and SSI restrict the use or disclosure of information concerning applicants and recipients to purposes connected to the administration of needs-based Federal programs.

Explanation of provision. Agencies that administer SSI, housing assistance programs under the United States Housing Act of 1937, or block grants for temporary assistance for needy families (the successor program to AFDC) are required to furnish information about aliens they know to be unlawfully in the United States to the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) at least four times annually and upon INS request.

Reason for change. As public benefits are a magnet for illegal aliens to come to and stay in the U.S., welfare agencies should assist INS in its mandate to identify and remove illegal aliens from the country.

Effective date. October 1, 1996.

CHAPTER 2—ELIGIBILITY FOR STATE AND LOCAL PUBLIC BENEFITS PROGRAMS

6. ALIENS WHO ARE NOT QUALIFIED ALIENS OR NONIMMIGRANTS NOT ELIGIBLE FOR STATE AND LOCAL PUBLIC BENEFITS

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law. Under Plyler v. Doe (457 U.S. 202 (1982)), States may not deny illegal alien children access to a public elementary education without authorization from Congress. However, the narrow 5-4 Supreme Court decision may imply that illegal aliens may be denied at least some State benefits and that Congress may influence the eligibility of illegal aliens for State benefits. Many, but not all, State general assistance laws currently deny illegal aliens means-tested general assistance.

Explanation of provision. Illegal aliens are ineligible for all State and local public benefits, with limited exceptions for emergency medical services, emergency disaster relief, immunizations and testing and treatment of communicable diseases, and programs necessary for the protection of life or safety. States may, however, pass laws after the date of enactment that specify that illegal aliens may be eligible for certain State or local benefits that otherwise would be denied under this section.

7. STATE AUTHORITY TO LIMIT ELIGIBILITY OF QUALIFIED ALIENS FOR STATE PUBLIC BENEFITS

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law. Under Graham v. Richardson (403 U.S. 365 (1971)), States may not deny legal permanent residents State-funded assistance that is provided to equally needy citizens without authorization from Congress.

Currently, there is no Federal law barring legal temporary residents (i.e., nonimmigrants) from State and local needs-based programs. In general, States are restricted in denying assistance to nonimmigrants where the denial is inconsistent with the terms under which the nonimmigrants were admitted. Where a denial of benefits is not inconsistent with Federal immigration law, however, States have broader authority to deny benefits and States often do deny certain benefits to nonimmigrants. Also, aliens in most non-immigrant categories generally may have difficulty qualifying for many State and local benefits because of requirements that they be State “residents.”

Explanation of provision. States are authorized to determine the eligibility of “qualified aliens,” nonimmigrants, and aliens paroled into the U.S. for less than 1 year for any State or local means-tested public benefit program. Noncitizens receiving State and local benefits on the date of enactment would remain eligible for benefits until January 1, 1997.

Exceptions to State authority to deny benefits are made for refugees, asylees and aliens whose deportation has been withheld (for 5 years), permanent resident aliens who have worked in the U.S. (in combination with their spouse or parents) for at least 10 years, and noncitizens who are veterans or on active duty or their spouse or unmarried child.

CHAPTER 3—ATTRIBUTION OF INCOME AND AFFIDAVITS OF SUPPORT

8. FEDERAL ATTRIBUTION OF SPONSOR’S INCOME AND RESOURCES TO ALIEN

(1) Federal benefits

Present law. In determining whether an alien meets the means test for AFDC, SSI (except in cases of blindness or disability occurring after entry), and food stamps, the resources and income of an individual who filed an affidavit of support (“sponsor”) for the alien (and the income and resources of the individual’s spouse) are taken into account during a designated period after entry. Sponsor-to-alien deeming provisions were added to these three programs in part because several courts have found that affidavits of support, under current practice, do not obligate sponsors to reimburse government agencies for benefits provided to sponsored aliens. See below.

Explanation of provision. During the applicable deeming period (see “Length of Deeming Period” below), the income and resources of a sponsor and the sponsor’s spouse are to be taken into account under all Federally-funded means-tested programs (with the exception of the programs below) in determining the sponsored individual’s neediness. Excepted programs are emergency medical services, emergency disaster relief, school lunch and child nutrition assistance, immunizations and testing for and treatment of communicable diseases, certain programs that protect life, safety, or public health, certain foster care and adoption assistance, certain elementary and secondary education programs, and higher education grants and loans.

Reason for change. Sponsorship agreements reflect a willingness on the part of the sponsor to assume responsibility for the alien while in the U.S. By deeming the income of the sponsor to the alien when determining the alien’s eligibility for means-tested public assistance, the importance of sponsorship agreements—including needed financial support—is underscored. In addition, deeming sponsors’ income to aliens means it is less likely that taxpayers (including State and local taxpayers) will be called on to pay for public assistance for aliens, in keeping with the purposes of this title.

Effective date. October 1, 1996.

(2) Amount of income and resources deemed

Present law. While the offset formulas vary among the programs, the amount of income and resources deemed under AFDC, SSI, and Food Stamps is reduced by certain offsets to provide for some of the sponsor's own needs.

Explanation of provision. The full income and resources of the sponsor and the sponsor's spouse are deemed to be that of the sponsored alien.

Reason for change. The Committee proposal provides for the deeming of the sponsor's full income to the sponsored noncitizen for two reasons. First, deeming the sponsor's full income reinforces that it is the responsibility of the sponsor, not taxpayers, to provide for the public welfare needs of the noncitizen he or she has sponsored to enter the U.S. Accordingly the sponsor's full resources should be presumed to be available to help support the sponsored noncitizen during times of need. Second, deeming the full amount of the sponsor's income to the sponsored noncitizen reinforces the central theme of the Committee proposal that noncitizens, except in very limited circumstances, should not depend on public welfare benefits prior to obtaining citizenship.

Effective date. October 1, 1996.

(3) Length of deeming period

Present law. For AFDC and Food Stamps, sponsor-to-alien deeming applies to a sponsored alien seeking assistance within 3 years of entry. Through September 1996, sponsor-to-alien deeming applies to a sponsored alien seeking SSI within 5 years of entry, after which the deeming period reverts to 3 years.

Explanation of provision. Deeming extends until citizenship, unless the noncitizen has worked for at least 10 years in the U.S. (either individually or in combination with the noncitizen's spouse and parents).

Reason for change. The current system of deeming for only several years has resulted in taxpayers, not sponsors who promised to support noncitizens as a condition of their entry, providing years of public welfare benefits to thousands of noncitizens. This problem has been particularly pervasive in the SSI and Medicaid programs. For example, the Committee has received reports of sponsors assisting and encouraging sponsored noncitizens, in some cases their own parents, to apply for Federal benefits immediately upon the expiration of the relevant deeming period.

Effective date. October 1, 1996.

(4) Review upon reapplication

Present law. Regulations implementing the food stamp program expressly require providing information on a sponsor's resources as part of recertification.

Explanation of provision. Whenever a sponsored noncitizen is required to reapply for benefits under any Federal means-tested public benefits program, the agency must review the income and resources deemed to the sponsored noncitizen.

Reason for change. Especially as the deeming period is extended to last until citizenship, it is important that any changes in a sponsor's income are considered each time a sponsored noncitizen applies for Federal welfare benefits. A sponsor's income may have increased or decreased over time, significantly affecting the sponsored noncitizen's eligibility for public benefits.

Effective date. October 1, 1996.

(5) Application

Present law. No provision.

Explanation of provision. For programs that already deem income and resources on the date of enactment, the changes in this section apply immediately; other programs must implement changes required within 180 days after the date of enactment.

Reason for change. This provision allows for a transition period for programs that do not currently require sponsor-to-alien deeming.

Effective date. For programs that currently provide for deeming, this provision takes effect on the date of enactment. Other programs must implement changes within 180 days of enactment.

9. AUTHORITY FOR STATES TO PROVIDE FOR ATTRIBUTION OF SPONSOR'S INCOME AND RESOURCES TO THE ALIEN WITH RESPECT TO STATE PROGRAMS

Present law. The highest courts of at least two States have held that the Supreme Court decision barring State discrimination against legal aliens in providing State benefits without Federal authorization (Graham v. Richardson, 403 U.S. 365 (1971)) prohibits State sponsor-to-alien deeming requirements for State benefits.

Explanation of provision. State and local governments may, for the deeming period that applies to Federal benefits, deem a sponsor's income and resources (and those of the sponsor's spouse) to a sponsored individual in determining eligibility for and the amount of needs-based benefits. State and local governments may not require deeming for the following State public benefits: emergency medical services, emergency disaster relief, school lunch and child nutrition assistance, immunizations and testing and treatment of communicable diseases, foster care and adoption payments, and certain programs to protect life and safety.

Reason for change. See explanations regarding deeming for Federal programs, above. It is the Committee's intent that States that choose to follow Federal deeming restrictions are acting pursuant to congressional authorization and as part of a comprehensive national immigration policy.

Effective date. October 1, 1996.

10. REQUIREMENTS FOR SPONSOR'S AFFIDAVIT OF SUPPORT

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

(1) In general

Present law. Administrative authorities may request an affidavit of support on behalf of an alien seeking permanent residency pursuant to regulation. Requirements for affidavits of support are not specified by statute.

Under the Immigration and Nationality Act, an alien who is likely to become a public charge may be excluded from entry unless this restriction is waived, as is the case for refugees. By regulation and administrative practice, the State Department and the Immigration and Naturalization Service permit a prospective permanent resident alien (also immigrant or green card holder) who otherwise would be excluded as a public charge (i.e., because of insufficient means or prospective income) to overcome exclusion through an affidavit of support or similar document executed by an individual in the U.S. commonly called a “sponsor.” It has been reported that roughly one-half of the aliens who obtain legal permanent resident status have had affidavits of support filed on their behalf.

Various State court decisions and decisions by immigration courts have held that the affidavits of support, as currently constituted, do not impose a binding obligation on the sponsor to reimburse State agencies providing aid to the sponsored alien.

Explanation of provision. The proposal provides that when affidavits of support are required, they must comply with the following:

1. Affidavits of support must be executed as contracts that are legally enforceable against sponsors by Federal, State, and local agencies with respect to any means-tested benefits (with exceptions noted below) paid to sponsored aliens before they become citizens.
2. Affidavits of support must be enforceable against the sponsor by the sponsored alien.
3. Reimbursement shall be requested for all Federal, State or local need-based programs with the exceptions noted below.
4. To qualify to execute an affidavit of support, an individual must meet the revised definition of sponsor below.
5. Governmental entities that provide benefits may seek reimbursement up to 10 years after a sponsored alien last receives benefits.
6. Sponsorship extends until the alien becomes a citizen.

(2) Forms

Present law. No statutory provision. The Department of Justice issues a form (Form I-134) that complies with current sponsorship guidelines.

Explanation of provision. The Attorney General, in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Secretary of HHS, shall formulate an affidavit of support within 90 days after enactment, consistent with this section.

(3) Notification of change of address

Present law. There is no express requirement under current administrative practice that sponsors inform welfare agencies of a change in address. However, a sponsored alien who applies for benefits for which deeming is required must provide various information regarding the alien's sponsor.

Explanation of provision. Until they no longer are potentially liable for reimbursement of benefits paid to sponsored individuals, sponsors must notify the Attorney General and the State, district, territory or possession in which the sponsored individual resides of any change of their address within 30 days of moving. Failure to notify may result in a civil penalty of up to $2,000 or, if the failure occurs after knowledge that the sponsored individual has received a reimbursable benefit, of up to $5,000.

(4) Reimbursement of government expenses

Present law. Various State court decisions and decisions by immigration courts have held that these affidavits, as currently constituted, do not impose a binding obligation on the sponsor to reimburse State agencies providing aid to the sponsored alien.

Explanation of provision. If a sponsored alien receives any benefit under any means-tested public assistance program, the appropriate Federal, State, or local official shall request reimbursement by the sponsor in the amount of such assistance. Thereafter the official may seek reimbursement in court if the sponsor fails to respond within 45 days of the request that the sponsor is willing to begin repayments. The official also may seek reimbursement through the courts within 60 days after a sponsor fails to comply with the terms of repayment. The Attorney General in consultation with the Secretary of HHS, shall prescribe regulations on requesting reimbursement. No action may be brought later than 10 years after the alien last received benefits.

(5) Definitions—sponsor

Present law. There are no firm administrative restrictions on eligibility to execute an affidavit of support.

Explanation of provision. A "sponsor" is a citizen or an alien lawfully admitted to the U.S. for permanent residence who petitioned for immigration preference for the sponsored alien, is at least 18 years of age, and resides in any State.

(6) Definitions—means-tested public benefits program

Present law. No provision.

Explanation of provision. A "Means-Tested Public Benefits Program" is a program of public benefits of the Federal, State or local government in which eligibility for or the amount of, benefits or both are determined on the basis of income, resources, or financial need.

(7) Effective date

Present law. No provision.

Explanation of provision. The changes regarding affidavits of support shall apply to affidavits of support executed no earlier than 60 days or later than 90 days after the Attorney General promulgates the form.

(8) Benefits not subject to reimbursement

Present law. No provision.

Governmental entities cannot seek reimbursement with respect to:

1. emergency medical services;
2. emergency disaster relief;
3. school lunch and child nutrition assistance;
4. payments for foster care and adoption assistance;
5. immunizations and testing for and treatment of communicable diseases;
6. certain programs that protect life, safety, or public health; and
7. postsecondary education benefits.

11. COSIGNATURE OF ALIEN STUDENT LOANS

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law. No provision.

Explanation of provision. A student who is an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence shall not be eligible for a loan unless the loan is endorsed and cosigned by the alien's sponsor or by another creditworthy individual who is a United States citizen.

CHAPTER 4—GENERAL PROVISIONS

12. DEFINITIONS

(1) In general

Federal assistance programs that have alien eligibility restrictions generally reference specific classes defined in the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Explanation of provision. Unless otherwise provided, the terms used in this title have the same meaning as defined in Section 101(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Reason for change. Technical provision.

Effective date. October 1, 1996.

(2) Qualified alien

Present law. Some programs allow benefits for otherwise eligible aliens who are “permanently residing under color of law (PRUCOL).” This term is not defined under the Immigration and Nationality Act, and there has been some inconsistency in determining which classes of aliens fit within the PRUCOL standard.

Explanation of provision. An alien who is a lawful permanent resident, refugee, asylee, or an alien who has been paroled into the U.S. for at least 1 year.

Reason for change. The Committee believes that making illegal aliens, short-term parolees, PRUCOL aliens, and nonimmigrants ineligible for public benefits will reduce the incentive for aliens to illegally enter and remain in the U.S.

Effective date. October 1, 1996.

13. VERIFICATION OF ELIGIBILITY FOR FEDERAL PUBLIC BENEFITS

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law. State agencies that administer most major Federal programs with alienage restrictions generally use the SAVE (Systematic Alien Verification for Entitlements) system to verify the immigration status of aliens applying for benefits.

Explanation of provision. The Attorney General must adopt regulations to verify the lawful presence of applicants for Federal benefits no later than 18 months after enactment. States must have a verification system that complies with these regulations within 24 months of their adoption, and must authorize necessary appropriations.

14. STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law. No provision.

Explanation of provision. This title addresses only program eligibility based on alienage and does not address whether any individual meets other eligibility criteria. This title does not address alien eligibility for basic education or for any program of foreign assistance.

15. COMMUNICATION BETWEEN STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT AGENCIES AND THE IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law. The confidentiality provisions of various State statutes may prohibit disclosure of immigration status obtained under them. Some Federal laws, including the Family Education Rights and Protection Act, may deny funds to certain State and local agencies that disclose a protected individual's immigration status. Various localities have enacted laws preventing local officials from disclosing the immigration status of individuals to INS.

Explanation of provision. No State or local government entity may be prohibited, or in any way restricted, from sending to or receiving from the Immigration and Naturalization Service information regarding the immigration status, lawful or unlawful, of an alien in the United States.

16. QUALIFYING QUARTERS

Present law. No provision.

Explanation of provision. In determining whether an alien may qualify for benefits under the exception for individuals who have worked at least 40 quarters while in the U.S. (see sections 402 and 421 above), work performed by parents and spouses may be credited to aliens under certain circumstances. Each quarter of work performed by the parent while an alien was under the age of 18 is credited to the alien, provided the parent did not receive any Federal public benefits during the quarter. Similarly, each quarter of work performed by a spouse of an alien during their marriage is credited to the alien, if the spouse did not receive any Federal public benefits during the quarter.

Reason for change. Millions of noncitizens have worked in the U.S. for long periods without collecting welfare benefits. The Committee proposal recognizes this fact by including general exemptions from the restrictions on eligibility and sponsorship and deeming provisions described above for individuals who have a long history of work without collecting welfare benefits.

Effective date. Individuals can be credited with quarters of work performed either before or after the date of enactment.

CHAPTER 5—CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

17. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS RELATED TO ASSISTED HOUSING

(This provision is not under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means but is included here for sake of completeness.)

Present law. No provision.

Explanation of provision. This section consists of a series of technical and conforming amendments.

CHAPTER 6—EARNED INCOME CREDIT DENIED TO UNAUTHORIZED EMPLOYEES

18. EARNED INCOME CREDIT DENIED TO INDIVIDUALS NOT AUTHORIZED TO BE EMPLOYED IN THE UNITED STATES

Present law. Certain eligible low-income workers are entitled to claim a refundable credit on their income tax return. The amount of the credit an eligible individual may claim depends upon whether the individual has one, more than one, or no qualifying children and is determined by multiplying the credit rate by the taxpayer's earned income up to an earned income amount. The maximum amount of the credit is the product of the credit rate and the earned income amount. For taxpayers with earned income (or adjusted gross income (AGI), if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range, the maximum credit amount is reduced by the phaseout rate multiplied by the amount of earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range. For taxpayers with earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the end of the phaseout range, no credit is allowed.

The parameters for the credit depend upon the number of qualifying children the individual claims. For 1996, the parameters are given in the following table:

	Two or more qualifying children	One qualifying child	No qualifying children
Credit rate (percent)	40.00	34.00	7.65
Earned income amount	$8,890	$6,330	$4,220
Maximum credit	$3,556	$2,152	$323
Phaseout begins	$11,610	$11,610	$5,280
Phaseout rate (percent)	21.06	15.98	7.65
Phaseout ends	$28,495	$25,078	$9,500

For years after 1996, the credit rates and the phaseout rates will be the same as in the preceding table. The earned income amount and the beginning of the phaseout range are indexed for inflation; because the end of the phaseout range depends on those amounts as well as the phaseout rate and the credit rate, the end of the phaseout range will also increase if there is inflation.

Thus, for 1997 the parameters are projected to be as follows:

	Two or more qualifying children	One qualifying child	No qualifying children
Credit rate (percent)	40.00	34.00	7.65
Earned income amount	$9,120	$6,500	$4,330
Maximum credit	$3,648	$2,210	$331
Phaseout threshold	$11,910	$11,910	$5,420
Phaseout rate (percent)	21.06	15.98	7.65
Phaseout ends	$29,232	$25,740	$9,750

In order to claim the credit, an individual must either have a qualifying child or meet other requirements. A qualifying child must meet a relationship test, an age test, an identification test, and a residence test. In order to claim the credit without a qualifying child, an individual must not be a dependent and must be over age 24 and under age 65.

To satisfy the identification test, individuals must include on their tax return the name and age of each qualifying child. For returns filed with respect to tax year 1996, individuals must provide a taxpayer identification number (TIN) for all qualifying children born on or before November 30, 1996. For returns filed with respect to tax year 1997 and all subsequent years, individuals must provide TINs for all qualifying children, regardless of their age. An individual's TIN is generally that individual's Social Security number.

The Internal Revenue Service may summarily assess additional tax due as a result of a mathematical or clerical error without sending the taxpayer a notice of deficiency and giving the taxpayer an opportunity to petition the Tax Court. Where the IRS uses the summary assessment procedure for mathematical or clerical errors, taxpayer must be given an explanation of the asserted error and a period of 60 days to request that the IRS abate its assessment. The IRS may not proceed to collect the amount of the assessment until the taxpayer has agreed to it or has allowed the 60-day period for objecting to expire. If the taxpayer files a request for abatement of the assessment specified in the notice, the IRS must abate the assessment. Any reassessment of the abated amount is subject to the ordinary deficiency procedures. The request for abatement of the assessment is the only procedure a taxpayer may use prior to paying the assessed amount in order to contest an assessment arising out of a mathematical or clerical error. Once the assessment is satisfied, however, the taxpayer may file a claim for refund if he or she believes the assessment was made in error.

Explanation of provision. Individuals are not eligible for the credit if they do not include their taxpayer identification number (and, if married, their spouse's taxpayer identification number) on their tax return. Solely for these purposes and for purposes of the present-law identification test for a qualifying child, a taxpayer identification number is defined as a Social Security number issued to an individual by the Social Security Administration other than a number issued under section 205(c)(2)(B)(i)(II) (or that portion of sec. 205(c)(2)(B)(i)(III) relating to it) of the Social Security Act (regarding the issuance of a number to an individual applying for or receiving Federally funded benefits).

If an individual fails to provide a correct taxpayer identification number, such omission will be treated as a mathematical or clerical error. If an individual who claims the credit with respect to net earnings from self-employment fails to pay the proper amount of self-employment tax on such net earnings, the failure will be treated as a mathematical or clerical error for purposes of the amount of credit allowed.

Reason for change. The Committee does not believe that individuals who are not authorized to work in the United States should be able to claim the credit. To enforce the requirement that credit claimants and their qualifying children have proper Social Security numbers and to insure that credit claimants have paid self-employment taxes on any self employment income used to qualify for the credit, the Committee believes the IRS should be able to use the streamlined procedures it currently uses for mathematical or clerical errors.

Effective date. The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

For additional changes regarding the Earned Income Credit, see Subtitle H: Miscellaneous Provisions.

SUBTITLE E—REFORM OF PUBLIC HOUSING

1. FRAUD UNDER MEANS-TESTED WELFARE AND PUBLIC ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

If a person's means-tested benefits from a Federal, State, or local welfare program are reduced because of an act of fraud, their benefits from public or assisted housing may not be increased in response to the income loss caused by the penalty.

Reason for change

Most welfare recipients receive benefits from more than one program. As a result, a major problem with imposing penalties in a given program is that in many cases this decline in income from the penalty is made up in part by an increase in benefits from another program. This interaction minimizes the impact of the penalty on correcting the client's behavior. By ensuring that housing benefits are not adjusted as a result of penalties imposed on benefits from another welfare program, this provision corrects the interaction problem and helps to maintain the behavioral impact of penalties.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

SUBTITLE F—CHILD PROTECTION BLOCK GRANT PROGRAMS AND FOSTER CARE, ADOPTION ASSISTANCE, AND INDEPENDENT LIVING PROGRAMS

CHAPTER 1—CHILD PROTECTION BLOCK GRANT PROGRAM AND FOSTER CARE, ADOPTION ASSISTANCE, AND INDEPENDENT LIVING PROGRAMS

Note. Under current law, there are at least 36 programs designed to help children who are victims of abuse or neglect. These programs address the child protection issue by supporting abuse reporting and investigation; abuse prevention; child and family assessment, preservation, and support; foster care; adoption; and training of social workers, foster parents, judges, and others. These programs can be divided into two general categories. The first is entitlement programs, all under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means, nearly all of which provide unlimited funding for foster and adoption maintenance payments, administrative costs, and training. The Family Preservation and Support Program provides capped entitlement funds to help States provide services that keep families together and prevent abuse; the Independent Living program provides capped entitlement funds to help children in foster care make the transition to living on their own. The second group of programs are appropriated programs. These programs are smaller and, except the Child Welfare Services Program, are generally under the jurisdiction of the Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee. The committee provision retains all the open-ended entitlement programs to ensure that States have adequate resources to help abused children that must be removed from their homes. The provision also combines the two capped entitlement programs and many of the smaller programs into a block grant that will simplify administration, promote flexibility, and increase efficiency. Working in conjunction with the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunity, the committee has created a block grant that is identical to a block grant created by the Opportunities Committee. Across the two committees, a total of 11 programs are combined into the new block grant structure. Programs under jurisdiction of the Opportunities Committee are mentioned briefly below to clarify the structure of the overall Federal program for helping abused children and their families.

Subchapter A—Block Grants to States for the Protection of Children

1. PURPOSE

Present law

Child Welfare Services, now provided for in Title IV-B of the Social Security Act, are designed to help States provide child welfare services, family preservation, and community-based family support services.

Explanation of provision

The proposed Child Protection Block Grant would replace current law under Title IV–B. The purpose of the Child Protection Block Grant is to:

- (1) identify and assist families at risk of abusing or neglecting their children;
- (2) operate a system for receiving reports of abuse or neglect of children;
- (3) improve the intake, assessment, screening, and investigation of reports of abuse and neglect;
- (4) enhance the general child protective system by improving risk and safety assessment tools and protocols;
- (5) improve legal preparation and representation, including procedures for appealing and responding to appeals of substantiated reports of abuse and neglect;
- (6) provide support, treatment, and family preservation services to families which are, or are at risk of, abusing or neglecting their children;
- (7) support children who must be removed from or who cannot live with their families;
- (8) make timely decisions about permanent living arrangements for children who must be removed from or who cannot live with their families;
- (9) provide for continuing evaluation and improvement of child protection laws, regulations, and services;
- (10) develop and facilitate training protocols for individuals mandated to report child abuse or neglect; and
- (11) develop and enhance the capacity of community-based programs to integrate shared leadership strategies between parents and professionals to prevent and treat child abuse and neglect at the neighborhood level.

Reason for change

Under current law, Congress has created numerous programs to help States provide a range of services designed to help children at risk of abuse or neglect or already the victims of abuse and neglect. The purpose of the block grant is to allow States to have one pool of Federal funds from which to draw in order to implement the particular child welfare activities that best meet the needs of children and families in each State. By simplifying the administrative burden placed on States by multiple programs, the committee intends to reduce paperwork, to allow professionals to focus on providing services to children and families, and to allow States to apply resources where they are most needed.

The committee has received testimony from numerous witnesses in recent years that States could better protect children and save money if they were not burdened by rigid federal mandates. Thus, the approach taken by the committee is to retain the open-ended entitlements under Title IV–E of the Social Security Act while simultaneously creating a large block grant to provide States with the flexibility needed to reduce paperwork and provide funds where they are most needed.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

2. ELIGIBLE STATES

Present law

To be eligible for funding under Title IV–B and IV–E, States must have State plans, developed jointly with the Secretary under Title IV–B, and approved by the Secretary under Title IV–E. In addition, to receive funds under the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA), States must comply with certain requirements including submission of a State plan.

States must have a child welfare services plan developed jointly by the Secretary and the relevant State agency which provides for single agency administration and which describes services to be provided and geographic areas where services will be available. The State plan also must meet many other requirements, such as setting forth a 5-year statement of goals for family preservation and family support and assuring the review of progress toward those goals. For foster care and adoption assistance, States must submit for approval a Title IV–E plan providing for a foster care and adoption assistance program and satisfying numerous requirements. The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) requires States to have in effect a law for reporting known and suspected child abuse and neglect as well as providing for prompt investigation of child abuse and neglect reports, among many other requirements.

To receive funding under Title IV–B and IV–E of the Social Security Act, States must comply with certain procedures for removal of children from their families when necessary, must develop case plans for each child that are reviewed at least every 6 months and contain specified information, and must establish specific goals for the maximum number of eligible children who will remain in foster care for more than 24 months.

Under Title IV–B, for fiscal years beginning on or after April 1, 1996, State plans must provide assurances that:

(1) the State has completed an inventory of all children who, before the inventory, had been in foster care under the responsibility of the State for 6 months or more, which determined: (i) the appropriateness of, and necessity for, the foster care placement; (ii) whether the child could or should be returned to the parents of the child or should be freed for adoption or other permanent placement; and (iii) the services necessary to facilitate the return of the child or the placement of the child for adoption or legal guardianship;

(2) the State is operating to the satisfaction of the Secretary: (i) a statewide information system on children who are or have been in foster care in the last year; (ii) a case review system for each child receiving foster care under the supervision of the State; (iii) a service program designed to help children return to families from which they have been removed; or be placed for adoption; (iv) a preplacement preventive service program designed to help children at risk remain with their families; and

(3) the State has reviewed State policies and procedures in effect for children abandoned at birth; and is implementing (or, will implement by October 31, 1996) such policies or procedures to enable permanent decisions with respect to the placement of such children to be made expeditiously. (For fiscal years beginning before April 1, 1996, these standards were incentive funding requirements that States had to meet to receive their full Title IV-B allotment, and were known as section 427 protections.)

Title IV-E State plans must provide that reasonable efforts will be made prior to the placement of a child in foster care to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of the child from her home and to make it possible for the child to return to her home.

Title IV-E State plans must provide that, where appropriate, all steps will be taken, including cooperative efforts with State AFDC and child support enforcement agencies, to secure an assignment of any rights to support of a child receiving foster care maintenance payments under Title IV-E.

Explanation of provision

An "Eligible State" is one that has submitted to the Secretary, not later than October 1, 1996 and every 3 years thereafter, a plan which has been signed by the Chief Executive Officer of the State. The plan must outline the State's Child Protection Program and provide several certifications regarding the nature of its child protection program.

A State plan must thoroughly describe the State Child Protection Program by describing State activities and procedures to be used for:

- (1) receiving and assessing reports of child abuse or neglect;
- (2) investigating such reports;
- (3) with respect to families in which abuse or neglect has been confirmed, providing services or referral for services for families and children where the State makes a determination that the child may safely remain with the family;
- (4) protecting children by removing them from dangerous settings and ensuring their placement in a safe environment;
- (5) providing training for individuals mandated to report suspected cases of child abuse or neglect;
- (6) protecting children in foster care;
- (7) promoting timely adoptions;
- (8) protecting the rights of families, using adult relatives as the preferred placement for children separated from their parents if such relatives meet all relevant standards; and
- (9) providing services aimed at preventing child abuse and neglect.

The State plan must also certify that the State:

- (1) has in effect laws that require reporting of child abuse and neglect;
- (2) has in effect procedures for the immediate screening, safety assessment, and prompt investigation of child abuse or neglect reports;
- (3) has in effect procedures for the removal and placement of abused or neglected children;

(4) has in effect laws requiring immunity from prosecution under State and local laws for individuals making good faith reports of suspected or known cases of child abuse or neglect;

(5) has in effect no later than 2 years after enactment, laws and procedures affording individuals an opportunity to appeal an official finding of abuse or neglect;

(6) has in effect procedures for developing and reviewing written plans for the permanent placement of each child removed from the family that: specify the goal for achieving a permanent placement for the child in a timely fashion; ensure that the plan is reviewed every 6 months; and ensure that information about the child is gathered regularly and placed in the case record.

(7) has in effect a program to provide independent living services to 16–19 year old youths (and, at State option, youths up to age 22) who are in the foster care system but have no family to support them. (Under the proposal, States also will continue to receive capped entitlement grants for Independent Living services as under current law.)

(8) has in effect procedures or programs (or both) to respond to reports of medical neglect of disabled infants;

(9) has quantitative goals of the State child protection program;

(10) will comply with respect to fiscal years beginning on or after April 1, 1996, with the same child protection standards as under current law. Standards related to abandoned children must be met by October 1, 1997;

(11) will make reasonable efforts to prevent the placement of children in foster care and to make it possible for the child to return home. Each State must also certify that it provides services for children and families where maltreatment has been confirmed but the child remained with the family;

(12) will take all appropriate steps, including cooperative efforts, to secure an assignment to the State of any rights to support on behalf of each child receiving foster care maintenance payments; and

(13) has in effect requirements for disclosure of records only to specified individuals and entities, and provisions that allow for public disclosure of findings or information about cases of child abuse or neglect that have resulted in a child fatality or near fatality (except that such disclosure shall not include identifying information about the individual initiating a report of suspected child abuse or neglect).

The Secretary of HHS must determine whether the State plan includes the required materials and certifications (except material related to the certification of State procedures to respond to reporting of medical neglect of disabled infants). The Secretary cannot add new elements beyond those listed above.

Reason for change

The revised State plan consolidates four different State plans and applications into a single requirement. The new plan requirement is designed to ensure that States are responsible for planning and implementing the essential elements of an effective and efficient child welfare system without placing undue administrative burdens on States. To ensure continual improvement of their child protection system, States are required to identify quantifiable goals. The role of the Federal Government is to ensure that States have a child protection system in place, that Federal money is actually spent on permissible child protection activities, and that information about the effectiveness of the system is made public. The committee provision is similar to the requirement of current law that States must submit a written plan outlining their child welfare program before they are eligible for benefits.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

3. GRANTS TO STATES FOR CHILD PROTECTION

Present law

Title IV–B of the Social Security Act contains both discretionary and capped entitlement funding for helping States provide assistance to troubled families and their children. Of capped entitlement funding for family preservation and support, 1 percent is reserved for Indians. For child welfare services under Title IV–B, $325 million is authorized annually. For family preservation and support services, $225 million is authorized in fiscal year 1996; $240 million in fiscal year 1997; and $255 million in fiscal year 1998. State allotments for child welfare services are based on the State's child population and per capita income. State allotments for family preservation and support are based on the number of children in the State receiving Food Stamps. Funds must be used for: “protecting and promoting the welfare of children * * * preventing unnecessary separation of children from their families * * * restoring children to their families if they have been removed * * * family preservation services * * * community-based family support services to promote the well-being of children and families and to increase parents' confidence and competence.” For-profit foster care providers are not eligible for Federal funding under Title IV–E. Section 1123 of the Social Security Act requires the Secretary to establish by regulation a new Federal review system for child welfare which would allow penalties for misuse of funds. Regulations are expected to be published during the summer of 1996. (This provision would not be affected by the committee proposal.)

Explanation of provision

The block grant contains both entitlement and appropriated funds. From the entitlement funds, each eligible State must receive from the Secretary an amount equal to the State share of the Child Protection Block Grant amount for the fiscal year (see below). A set-aside is provided for Indians equal to 1 percent of the entitlement money flowing into the block grant.

Each eligible State is also given funds equal to the State share of the authorization component of the block grant that is appropriated each year. Indians are given 0.36 percent of the appropriated money flowing into the block grant. Funds for the authorization component of the block grant under this section are not to exceed $325 million each year.

The term "child protection amount" means: $240 million for fiscal year 1997; $255 million for fiscal year 1998; $262 million for fiscal year 1999; $270 million for fiscal year 2000; $278 million for fiscal year 2001; $286 million for fiscal year 2002.

The term "State share" means the qualified child protection expenses of a State divided by the sum of the qualified child protection expenses of all of the States. The term "qualified State expenditure" means Federal grants to the State under the Child Welfare Services Grant and the Family Preservation and Support Services Grant in fiscal year 1994 or the average of 1992-94, whichever is greater. In determining amounts for fiscal years 1992 through 1994, the Secretary shall use information listed as actual amounts in the Justification for Estimates for Appropriation Committees of the Administration for Children and Families for fiscal years 1994 through 1996.

A State to which funds are paid under this section may use the money in any manner the State deems appropriate to accomplish the purposes of this part, but the funds must be expended not later than the end of the immediately succeeding fiscal year. For-profit, foster care facilities are eligible to receive funds from the block grant.

Under the terms and conditions of the block grant, States are subject to several penalties:

(1) For misuse of funds. If an audit determines that any amounts provided to a State have been spent in violation of this part, the Secretary must reduce the grant otherwise payable for the next fiscal year by the amount of the misspent funds, plus 5 percent of the grant;

(2) For failure to maintain effort. If States fail to maintain State spending equal to State expenditures under Part B of Title IV in fiscal year 1994, the Secretary must reduce the grant payable under this section by an amount equal to the previous year's shortfall in maintenance of effort. A penalty of 5 percent of the State grant must also be imposed. States must maintain 100 percent of prior effort in fiscal years 1997 and 1998; and 75 percent in fiscal years 1999 through 2002;

(3) For failure to submit report. If the Secretary determines that the State has not submitted mandatory adoption and foster care data reports within 6 months of the end of the fiscal year, the Secretary must reduce by 3 percent the amount of the State's block grant. If the report is submitted before the end of the immediately succeeding fiscal year, the Secretary shall rescind the penalty.

Except in the case of failure to maintain effort, the Secretary may not impose a penalty if the determination is made that the State has reasonable cause for failing to comply with the requirement. Further, a State must be informed before any penalty is imposed and be given an opportunity to enter into a corrective compliance plan. The provision includes a series of deadlines for submission of such corrective compliance plans and review by the Federal Government. No quarterly payment can be reduced by more than 25 percent; penalty amounts above 25 percent must be carried forward to subsequent quarters.

Each territory is entitled to receive from the Secretary for any fiscal year an amount equal to the total obligations due to the territory under the Social Security Act for fiscal year 1995.

Except as expressly provided in this Act, the Secretary may not regulate the conduct of States under this part or enforce any provision of this Act.

Reason for change

The major purpose of creating the Child Protection Block Grant is to ensure that States have maximum flexibility in their use of Federal resources to meet the needs of abused children and their families.

After consulting with several States, the committee decided that the fairest way to divide Child Protection Block Grant funds among the States was to give each State the same proportion of block grant funds each year as it received of several programs that are included in the block grant for the year 1994 or for the average of the years 1992–1994, whichever is greater.

States are given great latitude in the use of funds because the proposal is based on the understanding that States know best how to help children in troubled families that reside in their State. In the continuum of services that extends from the identification of children who may be victims of abuse or neglect to the treatment of families and the placement of children in foster as well as adoptive families, States have the flexibility to decide where Federal dollars will do the most good.

Given the Federal responsibility to ensure that funds are spent in accord with Federal purposes, States will lose any expenditures on purposes other than child protection and experience a 3 percent reduction in annual funding if they fail to report mandatory adoption and foster care data that will help Congress and the public evaluate program performance.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

4. DATA COLLECTION AND REPORTING

Present law

In 1986, Congress established the National Advisory Committee on Adoption and Foster Care Information to assist HHS in designing a new comprehensive nationwide data collection system with full system implementation expected to be completed by October 1991. However, final regulations were not issued until December 1993 with the first transmission of data due May 1995. All States are now participating in the Adoption and Foster Care Analysis and Reporting System (AFCARS). HHS is currently analyzing the first datasets transmitted from the States. The final rules require semi-annual reporting on all children in foster care. The data collection is child and case specific and is intended to yield a semi-annual snapshot of child welfare trends. It is also intended to yield information that will enable policymakers to “track” children in care and find out the reasons why children enter foster care, how long children stay in foster care, and what happens to children while in foster care as well as after they leave foster care.

In 1993, Congress authorized enhanced funding of 75 percent for both the AFCARS system and for several additional functions not originally envisioned as part of AFCARS capability. These new functions included electronic data exchange within the State, automated data collection on all children in foster care, collection and management of information necessary to facilitate delivery of child welfare services and to determine eligibility for such services, case management, case plan development and monitoring, and information security. Enhanced funding of 75 percent for this second data system, which HHS calls the Statewide Automated Child Welfare Information System (SACWIS), expires on October 1, 1996.

Explanation of provision

The committee provision leaves unaltered the current State data reporting system on child protection. The enhanced funding rate of 75 percent for the SACWIS system is extended for 1 additional year.

Reason for change

HHS has informed the committee that the first wave of data from the AFCARS system has now been reported and that analysts at the Department are confident that the data requirements are being met by States. As a result, Congress and the public will soon have reliable national information about foster care and adoption. Given the progress that seems to be taking place, the committee is leaving the data reporting requirements of current law intact.

The committee has received extensive testimony about the administrative complexity of child protection programs and about its inefficiencies and huge paperwork burden. The SACWIS system was designed to improve efficiency by developing world class data management systems tailored specifically to the needs of child protection. Based on testimony received and inquiries made by the committee, most States have been working effectively to implement their SACWIS systems. However, given the newness of the technology involved, especially the computer software, and the short time limits established by Congress, States are behind in implementation. Because there is nearly universal agreement that the SACWIS system is vital to improved effectiveness and efficiency of child protection programs, the committee provision extends the enhanced funding for an additional year.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

5. FUNDING FOR STUDIES OF CHILD WELFARE

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The Secretary is entitled to receive, for each of fiscal years 1996 through 2002, $6 million to conduct a national study based on random samples of children who are at risk of child abuse or neglect, and $10 million for other research.

Reason for change

The committee proposal provides the Secretary with funds to support a major new scientific study that will collect information on the treatment and outcomes of a national sample of children entering the child welfare system. This information will provide Congress and the American public with the first nationally representative information about the condition and performance of the Nation's child welfare system, about the number of children in foster care, about the type of care they receive, about the length of spells in foster care, about the number of placements, and about the effects of various foster care arrangements on children. In addition, the Secretary is provided with $10 million annually to conduct other studies of child protection to increase our knowledge about the causes and treatment of child abuse and neglect.

Effective date

This provision is effective upon enactment.

6. DEFINITIONS

Present law

The term "child care institution" means a licensed nonprofit private or public facility which accommodates no more than 25 children. The term does not apply to detention facilities, forestry camps, training schools, or centers for delinquent children.

Explanation of provision

Same as present law, except the word "nonprofit" is deleted.

Reason for change

Since 1980, public and nonprofit agencies have been the only providers eligible to participate in child protection activities. The committee provision allows the private, for-profit providers to participate in providing services to troubled children under Parts B or E if States determine that the services they provide are appropriate.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

7. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This section of the provision makes a series of technical and conforming amendments to the Social Security Act and the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986.

Reason for change

These amendments simply bring current law into conformity with the provisions recommended by the committee.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

Subchapter B—Foster Care, Adoption Assistance, and Independent Living Programs

8. CHANGES IN TITLE IV–E OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

The committee proposal retains the policy of current law with regard to the foster care, adoption assistance, and independent living programs under Title IV–E. Thus, open-ended entitlement matching funds will continue to be available for maintenance payments, administrative and child placement costs, and training expenses for both foster care and adoption assistance. The independent living program will continue as a capped entitlement. Medicaid eligibility is guaranteed for children in foster care and those covered under adoption assistance agreements. However, the State plan required for Title IV–E under current law is consolidated into the single State plan required for the proposed Child Protection Block Grant. In addition, the proposal deletes a current law provision requiring that a single State agency administer both Title IV–B and Title IV–E. Statutory references to “State agency” are changed to “State.”

Rather than making numerous technical amendments to current law, section 711 of the proposal restates the statutory provisions authorizing the foster care, adoption assistance, and independent living programs. These provisions establish the purpose of Title IV–E, and define eligible States as those that have submitted plans meeting the requirements of the Child Protection Block Grant. Current law provisions governing the operation of foster care, adoption assistance, and independent living, with necessary technical changes, are re-established in the proposal. Definitions currently found in Title IV–E are moved to the definitions section in the Child Protection Block Grant (see above). Likewise, data collection provisions currently in Title IV–E are moved to the Child Protection Block Grant.

There are three substantive differences between current law and the proposal with regard to foster care, adoption assistance, and independent living. First, Title I of the proposal replaces the AFDC program with a block grant for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, which affects eligibility for Title IV–E. Under current law, children must have been removed from AFDC-eligible families to be eligible for Title IV–E assistance. The proposal establishes that children must be removed from families that would have met eligibility standards for AFDC, as in effect on the day before enactment of these amendments and adjusted for inflation in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary.

Second, the term “nonprofit” is deleted from references to private child care institutions, including in the definition of such institutions. This change is consistent with the rule of interpretation under the Child Protection Block Grant, which states that this part shall not be interpreted to prohibit short- and long-term foster care facilities operated for profit from receiving funds under Part B or Part E.

Third, the committee proposal provides States with 1 year of enhanced funding (at 75 percent rather than 50 percent) to complete implementation of their Statewide Automated Child Welfare Information Systems (SACWIS).

Reason for change

The most notable feature of committee action on Title IV-E is that all the entitlement programs remain intact. In addition, the committee retains the guaranteed Medicaid coverage for children who receive maintenance payments from either the foster care or adoption programs. On the other hand, the committee provision does change current law in three ways.

First, the current law guarantee of eligibility for foster care and adoption maintenance payments for children eligible for the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program was disrupted because the AFDC statute was completely rewritten to give States the authority to establish their own welfare programs. To ensure that the eligibility of poor children for maintenance payments continues, the committee provision guarantees eligibility for all children from families that would have been eligible for the AFDC program as it existed in each State on the day before enactment of this legislation.

Second, the committee provision allows States to use private foster care facilities. The committee believes that States should be allowed to use private child care organizations because they are fully capable of providing quality services. States are responsible for ensuring that children are in safe and reliable care whether it is provided by public or private entities. The committee can see no reason to automatically refuse participation by an entire sector of the child caring community.

Third, the committee provided enhanced funding for the SACWIS system because automation is a vital part of providing quality child protection services. The committee has investigated progress in the States in creating SACWIS and has found that several States are now ready to begin actual implementation and that as many as half the States can be expected to have operational systems by next year if funding remains available. Thus, the committee is extending the enhanced funding rate of 75 percent to encourage States to invest money in these important systems.

Subchapter C—Miscellaneous

9. SECRETARIAL SUBMISSION OF LEGISLATIVE PROPOSAL FOR TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment, the Secretary of Health and Human Services must submit to Congress a legislative proposal providing for technical and conforming amendments required by the changes made in this subtitle of the proposal.

Reason for change

Given the substantial nature of changes in Subtitle IV–B of the Social Security Act, the committee wants to provide the Secretary with an opportunity to introduce appropriate technical and conforming amendments to make the statute more workable.

Effective date

Upon enactment.

10. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS REGARDING TIMELY ADOPTION OF CHILDREN

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This section expresses the sense of Congress that too many adoptable children are spending too much time in foster care, that States must take steps to increase the number of children who are adopted in a timely manner, and that States could achieve savings if they offered incentives for the adoption of special needs children, among other provisions.

Reason for change

By passing a new adoption tax credit and by enacting strong anti-discrimination measures in adoption, the Committee on Ways and Means has already taken major actions to promote adoption in the 104th Congress. This statement is intended to herald, in the strongest possible terms, the congressional consensus that Federal legislators, States, professionals participating in the Nation's child protection system, and individual citizens should do everything possible to promote removing children from foster care and, if appropriate, placing them with adoptive families. Stays in foster care should be as short as possible, and the move from foster care to adoptive placements should be made as quickly as possible.

Effective date

Upon enactment.

11. EFFECTIVE DATE; TRANSITION RULES

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The changes made in this subtitle will be effective on or after October 1, 1996. Provisions that authorize and appropriate funds in fiscal year 1996 for research and court improvements, and certain technical and conforming amendments are effective upon enactment. The proposal establishes transition rules for pending claims, actions and proceedings, and closing out accounts for programs that are terminated or substantially modified.

Reason for change

The effective date of October 1, 1996 was selected so that States could begin enjoying the benefits of the revised and expanded Child Care and Development Block Grant as soon as possible.

Effective date

Upon enactment.

CHAPTER 2—CHILD AND FAMILY SERVICES BLOCK GRANT

The block grant and associated activities under Subtitle B are not under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means. The committees with jurisdiction are the House Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee and the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee. The Child and Family Services Block Grant created by Subtitle B consolidates the following programs into a single block grant: The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act, the Abandoned Infants Assistance Act, adoption opportunities under the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment and Adoption Reform Act, the family support centers under the McKinney Homeless Assistance Act, and the Temporary Child Care and Crisis Nurseries Act. The Child and Family Services Block Grant has the same State plan and certification requirements as the Child Protection Block Grant created by Subtitle A. The two Block Grants also have the same data collection and reporting requirements for child abuse incidence data and for the implementation of foster care and adoption tracking systems. The Child and Family Services Block Grant is authorized at $230 million for fiscal year 1996 and “such sums as may be necessary” are authorized for fiscal year 1997 through fiscal year 2002. Title II of the Child and Family Services Block Grant provides that funds be available for research, demonstrations, training and technical assistance to better protect children from maltreatment. Funds under this block grant also will establish a National Clearinghouse for Information Relating to Child Abuse, provide demonstration grants for the development of innovative programs, provide technical assistance to States to assist with child abuse investigation and the termination of parental rights proceedings, and provide training for professionals in related fields. For these Title II activities, 12 percent of the $230 million provided for this Block Grant is authorized. The Missing Children’s Assistance Act and the Victims of Child Abuse Act of 1990 are both reauthorized.

SUBTITLE G—CHILD CARE

1. SHORT TITLE AND REFERENCES

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

Short Title: Child Care and Development Block Grant Amendments of 1996. Unless otherwise specified, references should be considered as made to the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990.

Reason for change

The committee provision continues current use of the term "Child Care and Development Block Grant" because this popular and widely-used program, which is greatly expanded by this proposal, will become the major Federal-State child care program.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

2. GOALS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This section establishes the following goals for the Child Care and Development Block Grant:

- (1) to allow each State maximum flexibility in developing child care programs and policies that best suit the needs of children and parents within the State;
- (2) to promote parental choice in making decisions on the child care that best suits their family's needs;
- (3) to encourage States to provide consumer information to help parents make informed child care choices;
- (4) to assist States in providing child care to parents trying to become independent of public assistance; and
- (5) to assist States in implementing the health, safety, licensing and registration standards established in State regulations.

Reason for change

The committee believes that establishing a few broad goals for the States, with proper assessments and accountability for results in relationship to these goals, to replace the current fragmented and highly regulated Federal system of support for child care will provide more efficient and effective use of Federal funds.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

3. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS AND ENTITLEMENT AUTHORITY

Present law

The authorization of appropriations for the Child Care and Development Block Grant expires at the end of fiscal year 1995. Appropriations in fiscal year 1996 are $935 million. (Sec. 658B of the CCDBG Act)

(Note: In addition to appropriated funds, entitlement funds are available for the Child Care Block Grant under the AFDC Child Care, Transitional Child Care, and At-Risk Child Care programs authorized by Title IV-A of the Social Security Act.)

Explanation of provision

Authorization of Appropriations. There are authorized to be appropriated $1,000,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1996 through 2002. (Additional mandatory funding will be provided for child care under the Social Security Act so that a total of $22 billion will be provided for child care over the 7-year period fiscal years 1996–2002.)

Child Care Entitlement. The proposal establishes a single child care block grant and State administrative system by adding mandatory funds to the existing Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG). Specifically, one discretionary and two mandatory streams of funding will be consolidated in a reconstituted CCDBG.

a. State general entitlement

From the stream of entitlement funding, each State will receive the amount of funds it received for child care under all of the entitlement programs currently under Title IV–A of the Social Security Act (AFDC Child Care, Transitional Child Care, and At-Risk Child Care) in fiscal year 1994, in fiscal year 1995, or the average amount in fiscal years 1992 through 1994, whichever is greater. This source of funds will provide States with approximately $1.2 billion for child care each year between 1997 and 2002.

b. Remainder

The mandatory funds remaining after the allocation to Indians (see below) and the State General Entitlement (see above) will be distributed among the States based on the formula currently used in the Title IV–A At-Risk Child Care grant. Specifically, funds will be distributed based on the proportion of the number of children under age 13 residing in the State to the number of all of the Nation's children under age 13. States must provide matching funds at the fiscal year 1995 State Medicaid rate to receive these funds and must maintain spending at their fiscal year 1994 level under the Title IV–A child care programs. The money available to States through this source of funds for fiscal years 1997 through 2002, respectively, will be: $0.76 billion, $0.86 billion, $0.96 billion, $1.16 billion, $1.36 billion, and $1.51 billion.

If a State does not use its full portion of funds, the remaining portion will be redistributed to other States according to section 402(i) of the At-Risk Child Care grant (as such section was in effect before October 1, 1995). Thus, each State applying for these remaining funds will receive the percentage of funds that equals the percentage of children under age 13 residing in that State of all children under age 13 residing in all the States that apply for funds. The Secretary must determine whether States will use their entire portion of funds no later than the end of the first quarter of the subsequent fiscal year.

c. Appropriation

Total child care funds under this proposal will equal $22 billion for child care over the 7-year period fiscal years 1996–2002, including both the $15 billion in mandatory funds discussed above and $7 billion in discretionary funds. Under current law for the three existing AFDC-related child care programs, $1.1 billion in mandatory funds will be spent in fiscal year 1996. In addition, a total of $13.85 billion in mandatory funds would be authorized for child care in fiscal years 1997–2002, starting at $2.0 billion in fiscal year 1997 and rising to $2.7 billion in fiscal year 2002. Finally, as stated earlier, $1 billion will be authorized annually in discretionary funds for the Child Care and Development Block Grant.

d. Indian tribes

One percent of all funds under the section are provided to Indian tribes.

Use of Funds. Funds shall only be used to provide child care assistance. Amounts received by a State, based on the amounts received in previous years, shall be available for use by the State without fiscal year limitation. All funds from both mandatory and discretionary sources must be transferred to the lead agency under the Child Care and Development Block Grant and integrated into the State child care programs.

Not less than 70 percent of the total amount of mandatory funds received by the State in a fiscal year must be used to provide child care assistance to families that are receiving assistance under a State program, families that are attempting to transition off public assistance, and families at risk of becoming dependent on public assistance.

Reason for change

The proposal allocates $3 billion more in child care entitlement funds than current law. The committee believes that the consolidation of programs eliminates income requirements, time limits, and work requirements between and among programs, and facilitates efficient use of Federal money by both States and parents.

The substantial increase in funding for child care over current law reflects the subcommittee's position that giving States more resources with maximum flexibility will move more people from welfare to work and help pay the child care expenses of low-income working families. In addition, providing Federal funds that are allowed to follow the parent whether the parent is receiving public cash assistance while participating in work or education, has recently left public assistance, or is otherwise employed but meets the State criteria for "very low income" increases efficiency and saves parents time and trouble.

The proposal contains a requirement that 70 percent of the mandatory child care funds received in a given fiscal year must be used solely to assist in providing child care for families receiving public assistance, or families that recently left public assistance or are at risk of becoming dependent. This provision is consistent with the purpose of the proposal to decrease dependency through work.

Effective date

The effective date of this title will be October 1, 1996, except for the authorization of discretionary funds, which will be effective upon date of enactment.

4. LEAD AGENCY

Present law

The Chief Executive Officer of a State is required to designate an appropriate State agency to act as the lead agency in administering financial assistance under the Act. (Sec. 658D of the CCDBG Act)

Explanation of provision

The proposal requires States to identify a lead agency to administer all the child care funds received under the Act, including funds received through other “governmental or nongovernmental” agencies (instead of other “State” agencies). States must ensure that “sufficient time and statewide distribution of the notice” be given of the public hearing on the development of the State plan. This section strikes language in current law specifying issues that may be considered during consultation with local governments on development of the State plan.

Reason for change

The term “agency” was changed to “entity” to allow States more flexibility in determining how the block grant would be administered. Under this change, an entity, chosen by the State, but not necessarily a State agency, could be established to administer the block grant.

The section also requires that States give sufficient notice of public hearings on the development of the State plan. The committee included this provision in order to ensure that all interested parties have an opportunity to participate in the development of the State plan.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

5. APPLICATION AND PLAN

Present law

States are required to prepare and submit to the Secretary an application that includes a State plan. The initial plan must cover a 3-year period, and subsequent plans must cover 2-year periods. Required contents of the plan include designation of a lead agency; outline of policies and procedures regarding parental choice of providers, summary of policies that guarantee unlimited parental access, parental complaints, and consumer education; and overview of policies that ensure compliance with State and local regulatory requirements, establishment of and compliance with health and safety requirements, and review of State licensing and regulatory requirements.

In addition, the State plan must provide that all funds will be used for child care services, and that 25 percent of funds will be reserved for activities to improve the quality of child care and to increase the availability of early childhood development and before- and after-school child care. (Sec. 658E of the CCDBG Act)

State plans must also assure that payment rates will be adequate to provide eligible children with equal access to child care as compared with children whose families are not eligible for subsidies, and must assure that the State will establish and periodically revise a sliding fee scale that provides for cost sharing by families that receive child care subsidies.

Explanation of provision

The proposal requires the State plan to cover a 2-year period. States must provide a detailed description of procedures to be used to assure parental choice of providers. Instead of “providing assurances,” States must “certify” that procedures are in effect within the State to ensure unlimited parental access to the families providing care to children and to ensure parental choice of child care provider; the proposal also requires that the State plan provide a detailed description of such procedures. Instead of “providing assurances,” a State must “certify” that it maintains a record of parental complaints and requires the State to provide a detailed description of how such a record is maintained and made available. The proposal changes the consumer education part of the State plan to require assurances that the State will collect and disseminate consumer education information. States must certify that they have in effect child care licensing requirements and provide a detailed description of the requirements and how they are enforced. This provision does not require that licensing requirements be applied to specific types of child care providers. States must certify that procedures are in effect to ensure that child care providers receiving funds under this Act comply with applicable State or local health and safety requirements. The Secretary is required to develop minimum standards for Indian tribes and tribal organizations receiving assistance.

The proposal eliminates review of State licensing and regulatory requirements, notification to the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) when standards are reduced, and supplementation. The proposal also eliminates the requirement that unlicensed providers be registered. The committee decided to retain a current law requirement that all States establish health and safety standards. The committee provision does not specify the particular standards that must be established, but all States must have requirements on prevention and control of infectious diseases (including immunizations), building and physical premises safety, and minimum health and safety training.

A summary of the facts relied upon by the State to determine that payment rates are sufficient to ensure equal access to child care must be included in the State plan. Funds must be used for child care services, for activities to improve the quality and availability of such services, and for any other activity that the State deems appropriate to realize the goals specified above. The proposal deletes the current law requirement that States reserve 25 percent of funds for activities to improve the quality of child care and to increase availability of early childhood development and before- and after-school care. States may spend no more than 5 percent on administrative costs.

States must spend a substantial portion of the amounts available to provide child care to low-income working families who are not working their way off welfare or are at risk of becoming welfare dependent. However, States first must comply with requirement that at least 70 percent of mandatory funds must be used for welfare or at-risk families. States must demonstrate how they will meet the child care needs of welfare and at-risk families.

Reason for change

The committee intends this provision to reflect a change in the approval process followed by the Secretary of HHS. In this new approach, the committee limits the Secretary's ability to shape the content of the State plan. For functions in which Congress requires the State to have in effect certain procedures and policies, States must certify in their State plan that such procedures and policies are actually in effect.

In reviewing the State plan, the Secretary may determine the form in which the plan is submitted and determine what information the State presents in the plan. However, unlike the existing approval process, about required components the Secretary is only authorized to ensure that the plan submitted includes the certifications and assurances called for by the statute. The Secretary does not have authority to require changes in the State's plan unless the plan does not include the basic elements called for by the statute or when, based on the content of the plan, it is clear that the State would be expending Federal funds on activities not authorized by law. The committee believes that this approach is necessary to ensure that States are given adequate flexibility to design programs of child care assistance that address needs within the State and that are within the broad parameters of the law.

The committee believes that the information collected and disseminated by the State should directly support the goal of helping parents make informed child care choices rather than being focused solely on bureaucratic requirements. The committee also notes that consumer information should not only include sources of subsidized care, but should make a concerted effort to provide information on other sources of affordable care, such as family and relative care.

While the committee is eliminating some of the burdensome requirements that are unnecessary for assuring the safety of children, the provision does retain the Federal requirements that States establish health and safety standards and ensure that providers of child care comply with applicable licensing and regulatory requirements.

The committee's child care proposal assures that adequate money is available for child care assistance to families working their way off welfare, families at risk of becoming dependent on welfare, and families already dependent on welfare. Further, the proposal reforms current law to ensure that States can use available resources in the most efficient manner while simultaneously protecting the health and safety of children.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

6. ACTIVITIES TO IMPROVE THE QUALITY OF CHILD CARE

Present law

As stated above, 25 percent of State allotments must be reserved for activities to improve child care quality and to increase the availability of early childhood development and before- and after-school child care. Section 658G specifies how these funds are to be used. Of reserved funds, States are required to use no less than 20 percent for improving the quality of care, including resource and referral programs, making grants or loans to assist providers in meeting State and local standards, monitoring of compliance with licensing and regulatory requirements, training of child care personnel, and improving compensation for child care personnel. (Sec. 658G of the CCDBG Act)

Explanation of provision

A State that receives child care funds must use at least 3 percent of all funds received (both mandatory and discretionary) for activities designed to provide comprehensive consumer education to parents and the public, for activities that increase parental choice, and for activities designed to improve the quality and availability of child care.

Reason for change

The categorical language of current law that requires States to spend fixed percentages of funds on specific activities is rigid and interferes with State flexibility. Under the committee proposal, more money is devoted to actually paying for child care and States are given more flexibility over the smaller amount of money set aside for improving the quality of child care.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

7. REPEAL OF EARLY CHILDHOOD DEVELOPMENT AND BEFORE- AND AFTER-SCHOOL CARE REQUIREMENT

Present law

States are required to use no less than 75 percent of funds reserved for quality improvement for activities to expand and conduct early childhood development programs and before- and after-school child care. (Sec. 658H of the CCDBG Act)

Explanation of provision

The set-aside for early childhood development programs and before- and after-school care is repealed.

Reason for change

States are provided with substantially more child care funds than under current law. If they so choose, they may spend part of these funds on either early childhood programs or before- and after-school care. A major goal of the block grant approach is to leave the allocation of funds to specific types of child care completely up to States.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

8. ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT

Present law

The Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) is required to coordinate HHS and other Federal child care agencies, to collect and publish a list of State child care standards every 3 years, and to provide technical assistance to States. The Secretary must also review, monitor, and enforce compliance with the Act and the State plan by withholding payments and imposing additional sanctions in certain cases. (Sec. 658I of the CCDBG Act)

Explanation of provision

This section strikes the current law requirement that the Secretary withhold further payments to a State in case of a finding of noncompliance until the noncompliance is corrected. Instead, the Secretary is authorized, in such cases, to require that the State reimburse the Secretary for any improperly spent funds, or the Secretary may deduct from the administrative portion of the State's subsequent allotment an amount equal to or less than the misspent funds, or a combination of such options.

Reason for change

The committee chose to strike this provision because it did not want to penalize recipients of child care assistance by withholding payments to States indefinitely. Instead, the committee decided to provide the Secretary with discretion in sanctioning States. The committee believes it is important that any sanctions should be designed to ensure the State's compliance while limiting the impact of those sanctions on the families dependent upon Federal assistance to meet their child care needs.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

9. PAYMENTS

Present law

Payments received by a State for a fiscal year may be expended in that fiscal year or in the succeeding 3 fiscal years. (Sec. 658J of the CCDBG Act)

Explanation of provision

Payments received by a State for a fiscal year may be obligated in the fiscal year received or the succeeding fiscal year, instead of expended in the fiscal year received or the succeeding 3 fiscal years.

Reason for change

Requiring States to spend money in only the next fiscal year will permit the Secretary to reallocate unspent funds among other States.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

10. ANNUAL REPORT AND AUDITS

Present law

States must prepare and submit to the Secretary every year a report specifying how funds are used; presenting data on the manner in which the child care needs of families in the State are being fulfilled, including information on the number of children served, child care programs in the State, compensation provided to child care staff, and activities to encourage public-private partnerships in child care; describing the extent to which affordability and availability of child care has increased; summarizing findings from a review of State licensing and regulatory requirements, if applicable; explaining any action taken by the State to reduce standards, if applicable; and describing standards and health and safety requirements applied to child care providers in the State, including a description of efforts to improve the quality of child care. (Sec. 658K of the CCDBG Act)

Explanation of provision

The title of the section is changed from “Annual Report and Audits” to “Reports and Audits.” States must collect on a monthly basis, and report to HHS on a quarterly basis, the following information on each family receiving assistance:

- (1) family income;
- (2) county of residence;
- (3) the gender, race, age of children receiving benefits;
- (4) whether the family includes only one parent;
- (5) the sources of family income, including:
 - (a) the amount obtained from employment, including self-employment;
 - (b) cash assistance or other assistance under Part A;
 - (c) housing assistance;
 - (d) food stamps; and
 - (e) other public assistance;
- (6) the number of months the family has received benefits;
- (7) the type of care in which the child was enrolled (family day care, center, own home);
- (8) whether the provider was a relative;
- (9) the cost of care; and
- (10) the average hours per week of care.

Twice each year, the State must submit the following aggregate data to HHS:

- (1) the number of providers separately identified in accord with each type of provider that received funding under this subchapter;
- (2) the monthly cost of child care services and the portion of such cost paid with assistance from this Act by type of care;
- (3) the number of payments by the State in vouchers, contracts, cash, and disregards from public benefit programs by type of care;

- (4) the manner in which consumer education information was provided and the number of parents who received it; and
- (5) total number (unduplicated) of children and families served.

Reason for change

This set of data elements, which is somewhat more detailed than report elements required under existing law, will provide a consistent set of data on federally subsidized child care programs. This information is necessary for Congress and the public to judge the adequacy, effectiveness, and efficiency of the Child Care and Development Block Grant.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

11. REPORT BY THE SECRETARY

Present law

The Secretary is required to prepare and submit an annual report, summarizing and analyzing information provided by States, to the House Education and Labor Committee and the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee. This report must contain an assessment and, where appropriate, recommendations to Congress regarding efforts that should be taken to improve access of the public to quality and affordable child care. (Sec. 658L of the CCDBG Act)

Explanation of provision

The Secretary must prepare and submit biennial reports, rather than annual reports, with the first report due no later than July 31, 1997; the reference to the House Education and Labor Committee is replaced with the House Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee.

Reason for change

Annual reports are unnecessary; reports every 2 years are sufficient to keep the Congress and the public informed of progress in use of child care funds.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

12. ALLOTMENTS

Present law

The Secretary must reserve $\frac{1}{2}$ of 1 percent of appropriations for payment to Guam, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands, the Northern Marianas and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. The Secretary also must reserve no more than 3 percent for payment to Indian tribes and tribal organizations with approved applications. Remaining funds are allocated to the States based on the States' proportion of children under age 5 and the number of children receiving free or reduced-price school lunches, as well as the States' per capita income. Any portion of a State's allotment that the Secretary determines is not needed by the State to carry out its plan for the allotment period must be reallocated by the Secretary to the other States in the same proportion as the original allotments. (Sec. 658O of the CCDBG Act)

Explanation of provision

Set-asides for the Territories, Indian tribes, and tribal organizations are maintained, except that the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands is deleted from the set-aside for Territories. Indian tribes are provided with a 1 percent set-aside of all funds, both entitlement and appropriated, authorized by this section each year. Under some circumstances, and with approval from the Secretary, Indian tribes are authorized to use a portion of their funds for renovation and construction of child care facilities. Within the overall block grant for social programs provided to the territories, each territory is authorized to spend whatever portion they choose of their capped amount on child care (for additional details see item 79 of Title I). Allotments to States were described in item 3 above.

Reason for change

The reason for this change in allocation to Indians is to assure that they receive a portion of mandatory as well as discretionary child care funding. Territories are provided with a child care block grant that is integrated with the other block grants so they will enjoy maximum flexibility in use of funds.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

13. DEFINITIONS

Present law

The following terms are defined: caregiver, child care certificate, elementary school, eligible child, eligible child care provider, family child care provider, Indian tribe, lead agency, parent, secondary school, Secretary, sliding fee scale, State, and tribal organization. (Sec. 658P of the CCDBG Act)

Explanation of provision

Child care deposits are added as an allowable use of a child care certificate. The definition of "eligible child" is revised to one whose family income does not exceed 85 percent of the State median, instead of 75 percent. The definition of "relative child care provider" is revised by adding great grandchild and sibling (if the provider lives in a separate residence) to the list of eligible relative providers and the requirement that relatives providing care be registered is struck. Relative providers are required to comply with any applicable requirements governing child care provided by a relative, rather than State requirements. The definition for elementary and secondary school is eliminated. The Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands is dropped from the definition of "State." Native Hawaiian Organization is added to the definition of "tribal organization."

Reason for change

The committee is concerned that many child care providers require parents to pay a deposit before their children can be enrolled for services. Such deposits can be a barrier to receiving services for poor families who lack the funds to pay a deposit. The committee provision will eliminate this barrier by allowing States to use funds to pay these deposits when necessary. This section also expands the definition of who can be considered an eligible relative child care provider in order to remove barriers to providing child care services under this proposal.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

14. REPEALS

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The proposal repeals the following programs: (1) Child Development Associate (CDA) Scholarship Assistance; (2) State Dependent Care Development Grants; (3) Programs of National Significance under Title X of the Elementary and Secondary Education Assistance Act of 1965 (child care related to Cultural Partnerships for At-Risk Children and Youth, and Urban and Rural Education Assistance); and (4) Native-Hawaiian Family-Based Education Centers.

(Note: Title I of the proposal also repeals child care assistance provided under current law by Title IV-A of the Social Security Act. This assistance is provided under three programs known as AFDC Child Care, Transitional Child Care, and At-Risk Child Care. Thus, the total number of child care programs merged into the Child Care and Development Block Grant is seven.)

Reason for change

The provision eliminates categorical, single purpose programs and provides maximum flexibility to States in their use of child care dollars by combining seven programs into a single block grant.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

15. EFFECTIVE DATE

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This title and the amendments made by this title take effect on October 1, 1996; the authorization of appropriations and entitlement authority under section 803(a) take effect on the date of enactment.

Reason for change

States are given access to the block grant in the next fiscal year so they can begin enjoying the benefits of greater flexibility as soon as possible. In the meantime, however, funding for child care under existing programs continues.

SUBTITLE H—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

1. EXPENDITURE OF FEDERAL FUNDS IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAWS AND PROCEDURES APPLICABLE TO EXPENDITURE OF STATE FUNDS

Present law

According to the National Conference of State Legislatures, there are six States in which under court rulings of interpretations of State constitutions, certain Federal funds are controlled by the Executive branch rather than the State legislature. (An example would be action on funds when the legislature is out of session.) These States are Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, New Mexico, and Oklahoma.

Explanation of provision

The proposal stipulates that funds from certain Federal block grants to the States are to be expended in accordance with the laws and procedures applicable to the expenditure of the State's own resources (i.e., appropriated through the State legislature in all States). This provision applies to the following block grants: temporary assistance to needy families block grant, the optional State food assistance block grant, and the child care block grant. Thus, in the States in which the Governor previously had exclusive control over Federal block grant funds, the State legislatures now would share control through the appropriations process. However, States would continue to spend Federal funds in accord with Federal law.

Reason for change

The purpose of this provision is to ensure that Federal funds are spent in accord with the wishes of State legislatures as well as Governors.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

2. SANCTIONING FOR TESTING POSITIVE FOR CONTROLLED SUBSTANCES

Present law

Eligibility and benefit status for most Federal welfare programs are not affected by a recipient's use of illegal drugs.

Explanation of provision

States are not prohibited by the Federal Government from testing welfare recipients for use of controlled substances nor for sanctioning welfare recipients who test positive for the use of controlled substances.

Reason for change

Research shows that a substantial number of adults on welfare use drugs. In the Aid to Families with Dependent Children Program, for example, research suggests that about 20 percent of mothers use illegal substances. The purpose of this provision is to clarify that States have the authority to test welfare recipients for use of controlled substances and to sanction recipients, either by reducing their benefit or by taking other actions, if they believe sanctions are appropriate.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

3. REDUCTION IN BLOCK GRANTS TO STATES FOR SOCIAL SERVICES

Present law

The Social Services Block Grant (Title XX) provides funds to States in order to provide a wide variety of social services, including child care, family planning, protective services for children and adults, services for children and adults on foster care, and employment services. States have wide discretion over how they use Social Services Block Grant funds. States set their own eligibility requirements and are allowed to transfer up to 10 percent of their allotment to certain Federal health block grants, and for low-income home energy assistance (LIHEAP). Funding for the Social Services Block Grant is capped at $2.8 billion a year. Funds are allocated among States according to the State's share of its total population. No State matching funds are required to receive Social Services Block Grant money.

Explanation of provision

For fiscal years 1997 through 2002, the Social Services Block Grant is reduced by 10 percent.

Reason for change

Across the three block grants created by this legislation, States will receive about $3 billion more than they would receive under current law. In addition, States will have much greater flexibility in the use of these dollars and are limited in the amount of time they can keep adults on cash welfare. Thus, between the extra funds provided by the block grants, the flexibility to transfer funds across block grants, and the reduced eligibility for funds, States will have enough money to meet the needs of poor citizens. Under these circumstances, a reduction in the general purpose Title XX block grant is appropriate.

Effective date

October 1, 1996.

4. EARNED INCOME CREDIT PROVISIONS

Present law(1) Change test for disqualified income

For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995, an individual is not eligible for the credit if the aggregate amount of “disqualified income” of the taxpayer for the taxable year exceeds $2,350. This threshold is not indexed. Disqualified income is the sum of:

- (1) interest (taxable and tax-exempt),
- (2) dividends, and
- (3) net rent and royalty income (if greater than zero).

(2) Modify definition of adjusted gross income used for phasing out the credit

For taxpayers with earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range, the maximum credit amount is reduced by the phaseout rate multiplied by the amount of earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range. For taxpayers with earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the end of the phaseout range, no credit is allowed.

(3) Second-tier phaseout of the credit

Under present law, for taxpayers with earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range, the maximum credit amount is reduced by the phaseout rate multiplied by the amount of earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range. For taxpayers with earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the end of the phaseout range, no credit is allowed.

Explanation of provision(1) Change test for disqualified income

For purposes of the disqualified income test, the following items are added to the definition of disqualified income: capital gain net income and net passive income (if greater than zero) that is not self-employment income.

The threshold above which an individual is not eligible for the credit is reduced from $2,350 to $2,250, and the threshold is indexed for inflation after 1997.

(2) Modify definition of adjusted gross income used for phasing out the credit

The bill modifies the definition of AGI used for phasing out the credit by disregarding certain losses. The losses disregarded are:

- (1) net capital losses (if greater than zero),
- (2) net losses from trusts and estates,
- (3) net losses from nonbusiness rents and royalties, and
- (4) 50 percent of the net loss from businesses, computed separately with respect to sole proprietorships (other than in farming), sole proprietorships in farming, and other businesses.

For purposes of item (4), above, amounts attributable to a business that consists of the performance of services by the taxpayer as an employee are not taken into account.

(3) Second-tier phaseout of the credit

The bill increases the phaseout rate of the credit for individuals with earned income (or modified AGI, if greater) in excess of a second-tier phaseout threshold. This second-tier phaseout does not apply to individuals with no qualifying children. For individuals with two or more qualifying children, the second-tier phaseout threshold is $21,360 and the phaseout rate for income in excess of that threshold is 23 percent. For individuals with one qualifying child, the second-tier phaseout threshold is $17,340 and the phaseout rate for income in excess of that threshold is 18 percent. These second-tier phaseout thresholds are indexed for inflation after 1997. The phaseout rate applied to income between the present-law phaseout threshold and the new, second-tier phaseout threshold is the same as would apply under present law for 1997 and future years. With these changes, the parameters of the credit for 1997 will be:

	Two or more qualifying children—	One qualifying child—	No qualifying children—
Credit rate (percent)	40.00	34.00	7.65
Earned income amount	$9,120	$6,500	$4,330
Maximum credit	$3,648	$2,210	$331
First-tier phaseout threshold	$11,910	$11,910	$5,420
First-tier phaseout rate (percent)	21.06	15.98	7.65
Second-tier phaseout threshold	$21,360	$17,340
Second-tier phaseout rate (percent)	23.00	18.00
Phaseout ends	$28,568	$24,797	$9,750

For years after 1997, the credit rates and the phaseout rates will be the same as in the preceding table. The dollar values will continue to be indexed, as under present law.

Reason for change

(1) Change test for disqualified income

The committee believes that individuals with substantial assets could use proceeds from the sale of those assets in place of the earned income credit to support consumption in times of low income. Transfer programs such as AFDC, food stamps, and Medicaid have asset tests for determining eligibility. Such programs also have caseworkers available to make determinations about the assets owned by a potential claimant. In the case of the earned income credit, the IRS does not have caseworkers to assess the balance sheets of millions of taxpayers, and it does not currently have information on most taxpayers asset-holdings. Therefore, in order to apply a proxy for an asset-based test, the recently enacted disqualified income test concentrates on the returns generated by those assets. Interest, dividend, and net rental and royalty income represent flows of income from assets that represent wealth of the taxpayer. The committee believes that net capital gains and other passive income represent other flows of income from assets that could be liquidated to support current consumption. The committee also believes that this threshold should be set in inflation-adjusted dollars, so it is indexing the threshold for inflation.

(2) Modify definition of adjusted gross income used for phasing out the credit

The committee believes it can improve the targeting of the credit by expanding the definition of income used in phasing out the credit. The committee believes that the definition of AGI used currently in phasing out the credit is too narrow; denying certain losses reported on Schedules C, D, E, and F would conform the income definition used for the phaseout more closely to the concept of "total positive income."

(3) Second-tier phaseout of the credit

The committee is concerned that the credit is not well-targeted. Under present law, in 1997 taxpayers with two or more qualifying children would be able to claim the credit even if they have AGI as high as $29,232. Taxpayers with one qualifying child would be able to claim the credit even if they have AGI as high as $25,740. The committee believes that taxpayers with such incomes do not need a tax credit designed to benefit the poor. Therefore, the committee increased the rates at which the credit is phased out for credit-eligible taxpayers with higher incomes.

Effective date

The provisions are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1996.
